NIXON VETOES PAY CONTROLS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon declared today that the nation "is on the road to recovery from the disease of runaway prices."

In a broadcast report on his administration's battle against inflation, Nixon said the steady rise in the cost of living had not yet been halted, but he said it had been slowed.

The president said: "We are not considering wage or price controls." Nor, he said, would he use the so-called guideline system of telling the working man how much he should charge for his services or how much a businessman should charge for his goods.

★

Labor Seeking Price Freeze

OTTAWA (CP)—In an unprecedented joint news conference, the Canadian Labor Congress and the Confederation of National Trade Unions today called for a one to two-year freeze on all prices.

CLC President Donald MacDonald said recent price increases have created serious hardships for many persons, particularly those on fixed incomes and in weak bargaining positions.

"Price increases should be permitted only in the case of those business firms which can properly justify such cases," he said. A prices review board would study requests for price increases.

"We reject outright the idea that voluntary guidelines can cope effectively with the current inflation. This is a highly oversimplified approach to a very complicated problem."

Any restraints on wage increases would be unjust unless other forms of income, such as profits, rents, interest, professional fees and real estate speculation, were similarly restrained.

RESEARCH LACKING

Since there was no practical way to restrain these other forms of income, the voluntary wage restraint approach was "highly impractical."

The federal prices and incomes commission has an important role to play in analysing the inflationary pressures in the economy, he said, but the commission was wrong to try to ask unions, business and governments for major policy commitments before it had completed the necessary research.

He disagreed with a suggestion that constitutional problems would prevent implementation of a freeze on prices.

WITHIN COMPETENCE

"We believe it's quite within the competence of governments to restrain prices if they so desire."

Price regulation machinery could be established within 12 to 16 months, he said.

Wages, however, were not to be classed with prices. "There seems to be an impression abroad that wage increases of themselves are inflationary. This has not been established and we don't accept it."

A prices review board could determine whether wage increases justified price increases, he said.

"If there is to be any sacrifice within the various sectors of the economy then there has to be equality of sacrifice.

Russian Trawler Hit By Vietnam Shellfire

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese Navy vessel fired on and hit a Soviet trawler off the coast of South Vietnam on Thursday but the trawler escaped with smoke pouring from her forward section, official sources reported.

The informants said today the trawler was intercepted by a South Vietnamese naval patrol boat inside South Vietnam's 12-mile territorial waters limit south of Da Nang.

The patrol boat asked the trawler to identify herself and when she refused the Vietnamese fired a warning shot, the sources added.

When the trawler continued on her course, the Vietnamese craft fired another shot but this time aimed to hit and did, the sources said. Nevertheless, the trawler headed into open sea.

Earlier reports said the U.S. ships were involved, but a spokesman for the U.S. command denied this.

A spokesman for President Nguyen Van Thieu said: "We had a report of an incident off Quang Ngai. We have conflicting reports and we are checking further." Quang Ngai is a province south of Da Nang.

Dock Strike Settlement Seen Close

Members To Study New Terms

About 600 Vancouver Island longshoremen will meet in Nanaimo Monday to study the terms of an agreement reached early today in Vancouver for settling the British Columbia strike which has halted all loading except grain in B.C. ports for 23 days.

Local spokesman Stan Ball said members of the Victoria, Port Alberni and Chemainus locals would take a ballot on the recommendations.

"We will have to vote on whether we will buy it. We don't know yet what's in the package."

He agreed with local shipping agent George Dawson that it would be three or four days before a decision could be reached and cargoes start moving.

At present there are 16 freighters waiting it out in Vancouver Island waters, three of them anchored at Royal Roads off the Victoria coastline.

BACK PACT

Following a nine-hour session ending about 3 a.m. PDT, federal mediator William Kelly said both the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union and the B.C. Maritime Employers Association had agreed to recommend approval of the terms to their members.

Settlement of the wage dispute came on the 23rd day of the strike by 3,200 longshoremen.

Mr. Kelly described the proposed contract, which would cover a two-year period, as a

TORONTO (CP)—A show of hands Thursday night during a session of a federal inquiry into the non-medical use of drugs, showed that about 200 York University students, three-quarters of the audience, had smoked marijuana.

One of the inquiry commissioners, Dr. Heinz Lehmamn of Montreal, raised his hand also.

Chairman Gerald LeDain had asked for the show of hands and had been told the students would agree if the five commission members also would participate.

LeDain, head of York's Osgoode Hall law school, checked his colleagues and they all agreed to the show of hands. (See also page 39.)

Australians Urge Grants, Not Loans

By JOHN MIKA

The Australian delegation, seizing the initiative on the eve of the plenary sessions starting Monday, urged the Colombo Plan conference here today to reform its organization into a foreign aid plan rather than a foreign loan exchange.

The problem of interest charges and repayment instalments for the 18 recipient countries is growing so rapidly that one survey has estimated all Colombo Plan financial assistance will be totally eaten up in debt payments by 1975 unless there is a new trend to "soften" terms and increase the flow of financial aid.

P. J. Flood, head of the aid section in the Australian department of external affairs' delegation here, said his country has formally proposed to the six donor nations that they change their aid policies to oveome the problem.

In a statement this morning, he said Australia has backed its position with deeds by consistently increasing its foreign aid

No Such Pact—Paris

PARIS (CP) — Informed circles here were quoted by Le Figaro today as saying it has never been part of arrangements between Ottawa and Paris that French ministers visiting Quebec should automatically visit the federal capital as well.

Neither is it true that a minister's visit to Ottawa would automatically mean that he should go to Quebec City, the newspaper reported the circles as saying.

FILTHY WATER pours into bucket as thirsty child waits for drink. Ottawa this week agreed to provide funds for clean water at Shell Beach.

Shell Beach Knows The Vivid Reality Of Polluted Water

By REG SILVESTER

The trail follows a gully, carved by the creek that's only a trickle in the bottom now.

About 200 yards up from the main road through Indian Reserve 13, a white pumphouse sits in such deep seclusion the sound of leaves tumbling down is startling.

But at the pumphouse, leaves float on top of the still water that is making people sick at Shell Beach.

The little reservoir is contaminated.

"All specimens show coliform organisms," says the Indian health unit at Nanaimo.

They tested it in May of this year, and the year before.

But at last, relief is in sight. National NDP leader T. C. Douglas said in an interview from Ottawa this week the people of Shell Beach will get fresh, uncontaminated water from a clean-water well on the reserve which is to be uncapped and equipped with pump and pipes.

He said the Indian department would meet with band members to work out a long-term approach to the problem.

Shell Beach consists of 16 houses across Chemainus Bay from Ladysmith. On the other side of the peninsula, which is the reserve, a similar small community — Culleet Bay — also has bad water.

Responding to complaints this week, the Indian Affairs Branch uncapped a well of clean water, dug in 1966 but unused because of lack of money, and promised to spend about $2,500 to pipe water on a temporary basis to Culleet Bay.

Four out of five specimens taken from the current water source there show coliform organisms.

DRINKING WATER looks more like a swamp than a reservoir but it has served residents of Shell Beach as only water source. (Silvester photos.)

. . . SHELL BEACH

Mrs. Lawrence Harris, the kindergarten bus driver at Shell Beach, pours water from the tap in her yard into a bucket. She watches for the scum she has become used to seeing settle to the bottom. It doesn't.

Her husband is the chief, so she knows the Indian Affairs branch sent two engineers that day to look at the supply system.

"They must have put chlorine in it."

But if they did, it would only last a couple of days. The 1,000-gallon tank the pumphouse fills often, empties fast. At times during the summer, people would find their taps dry, the tank empty and await until morning as the only way to get water.

Across the grounds of a deserted school from the Harris house, Vince Louie, a band councillor, is digging out his septic tank. It's stopped up and overflowing, and he wants to fix it.

"I'm luckier than most of the people here. I have indoor plumbing," he says, climbing out of the trench to talk.

He credits the plumbing for the fact that none of his family has been sick. All the water they use goes through the hot water tank first.

Three other houses have indoor plumbing, and three now under construction will probably have it too.

One of them belongs to Raymond Harris, the chief's son. Until it's finished, he's living in a different part of the reserve where the water is clean.

But during the summer, he and his wife brought their infant daughter and two-year-old son to stay for two weeks in his parents' house while they were on holidays.

Within four days, the children were in hospital with the stomach cramps and diarrhea that accompany salmonella, a disease usually caused by food poisoning.

As the kindergarten bus driver, his mother heard of other cases of the disease and began to complain.

During the past year, the hospital at Ladysmith handled at least 13 cases of salmonella from the reserve. Children are usually the most susceptible.

The head of the Indian health unit in Nanaimo says the contamination is not necessarily human. It could be vegetable.

It's hard to keep still surface water from being contaminated, he said, especially when there's no control of the watershed that feeds it.

The water at the reservoir at Sheell Beach, sitting three to four feet deep behind a small concrete dam, comes from a swamp.

If you drink the water regularly, health officers say there's "a good possibility" you will get sick.

The people at Shell Beach are drinking the contaminated water. The let it sit in buckets first, hoping the contamination will settle out.

But it still doesn't taste good, and it makes their tea very, very black.

'Good Night' Will Change To 'Goodbye'

NEW YORK (AP) — After more than 13 years of saying "Good night, David," Chet Huntley is expected to leave NBC News next year, the New York Times say.

Huntley, who has paired with David Brinkley in one of television's best-known news teams, probably will leave between February and June, The Times says.

But NBC News President Reuven Frank said a more realistic date would be after the 1970 non-presidential-year elections.

Huntley, 57, said his departure is contingent upon completion of arrangements for a $15,000,000 resort area he plans to develop in his native Montana.

"It has to come to an end sometime," Huntley told The Times. "There's no crunch now. But I don't intend to keel over in this office."

Brinkley was quoted as saying: "I'd stay a while if they asked me."

The pair was teamed in October, 1956, and the "Good night, Chet . . . Good night, David," closing soon became familiar to many households.

Their program brings NBC advertising revenue estimated at $30,000,000 a year.

Suspects Released

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — Two suspects, held almost 24 hours for investigation into the $600 armed robbery of a Credit Union office, have been released into the custody of British Columbia Penitentiary officials. Municipal Police Inspector Frank Colpitts said the two men were taken over as parole violators. He said no charges concerning the robbery had been laid against the men.

history-making arrangement. He said it could set the pattern for handling containerization problems plaguing most North American ports.

Details of the agreement were not released.

Mr. Kelly said work could be back to normal within a week at the six deep sea ports affected by the strike—Vancouver, Prince Rupert and Kitimat on the B.C. mainland and Victoria, Chemainus and Ladysmith on Vancouver Island.

SOUGHT 93½ CENTS

The dock workers downed tools Sept. 25 after rejecting an employer offer of a 75-cent hourly wage increase over three years. The longshoremen wanted 93½ cents over two years, on a base rate of $3.88 an hour.

From the start, the longshoremen offered to continue handling grain cargos but the employers association, despite federal government pleas, refused to put on gangs to work ships except for four grain ships in harbor when the strike started.

The federal government, arguing that a stoppage in grain shipments would endanger export contracts vital to Prairie farmers, took over direction of grain loading with longshoremen working under the national harbors board.

The federal government's intervention brought bitter protests from B.C. businessmen that the action discriminated against the province's vital forestry and mining exports.

LEGISLATURE MEETS AGAIN JAN. 22

The next legislative session will begin Jan. 22, Premier Bennett announced today.

He picked the traditional Thursday for an opening of the first session of the 29th legislature of B.C. which will be dominated by 38 Social Credit MLAs.

The NDP representation as official opposition was cut to 12 and Liberals contingent reduced to 5 in the Aug. 27 election.

Bank Act 'Blunder' —Bennett

Premier Bennett today said the federal government should reopen the Bank Act in its coming session and wipe out the "blunder" it made in the last amendment which permitted chartered banks to charge more than 6 per cent for loans.

In a vehement statement to a press conference, he said Ottawa should clamp the 6 per cent ceiling on chartered banks again and the central bank should "roll back" the current level of high interest rates through its monetary control of chartered banks.

Bennett said the federal government's bank rate "blunder" and its record of deficit financing were among the main reasons for the present inflationary spiral.

He said the only other major reason was for inflation was the tendency of wages to outstrip productivity.

Bennett contended that the federal government must meet the three causes head on and "solve not just salve them over" if inflation was to be overcome.

He predicted, however, that interest rates have hit their peak and will start a decline, probably slowly, from present levels.

Bennett emphasized that he was not demanding more program curtailments which could bring unemployment.

He accused "The United States and Canada of trying to force "stormy economic weather.

"You can see it in all of their (government) statements—saying to cut back and cut back," he said.

Bennett said Socred policies in B.C. were neither inflationary nor deflationary.

WIRES BACK WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House reports President Nixon's Vietnam policy is being supported by more than 4 to 1 in telegrams tabulated in the wake of Vietnam Moratorium Day.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the telegrams did not relate directly to the demonstration but coincided with it.

outflow at a time when total world aid to developing nations is stationary or even declining.

OUTRIGHT GIFTS

"Australia now has formally suggested to a conference special committee, that a much higher proportion of aid needs to be in the form of grants, that is, outright gifts," he said.

"Too much 'hard-term' lending to the developing countries is being classified as 'aid' when it is no more than commercial credit.

'The loans must take account of the repayment capacity of recipient countries. Australia has asked 'what's the point of hard-term loans which givers know, at the outset, cannot be repaid?'," he concluded.

But his question will be taken up as one of the main themes of the conference proper which ends Oct. 31.

PACIFIC NATIONS

There will be plenty of well-known and unknown government representatives from various Pacific nations mulling it over as the 20-year-old Colombo Plan enters one of its most crucial discussions, according to conference secretary-general John Hadwen who gave a press briefing Thursday afternoon.

Hadwen — an ambassador in Canada's external affairs department — said there was no question that the Colombo Plan will survive but the current meeting likely will re-shape it to meet changed conditions.

He asid the calibre of ministerial delegates and their staffs attracted to this year's meeting is above average because of the vial nature of the discussions.

He said most of the Asian member countries are sending senior government ministers to the meeting and particularly noted as significant the likelihood that Indonesia's foreign minister will come for the windup.

CHAIRMAN

Hadwen said External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp will arrive to lead Canada's delegation from Monday on and is expected to be named conference chairman as well.

He said at least one other federal minister — believed to be Finance Minister Benson — is expected to attend along with five MPs who are members of the external affairs parliamentary committee. Some provinces also will send representatives.

The five MPs are: Norman Cafik (L—Pickering), Keith Penner (L—Thunder Bay), Marcel Prud'Homme (L-Montreal-St. Denis), Gordon Fairweather (PC—Fundy-Royal), and Bruce Howard (L—Okanagan-Boundary).

The week-long meetings of technical staffs behind closed doors ended today with preparation of the reports which will be discussed at the plenary sessions in the coming two weeks.

PUBLIC SPEECHES

Many of the plenary sessions also will be closed to the press and public but considerably more briefings, interviews and one-shot public speeches will make Victorians more aware of the international group gathered in their midst.

The technical reports assembled this week largely recount the operations—both successes and failures—of various aid projects in the recipient countries to enable all participants to provide both criticism and advice aimed at improving the Colombo Plan's effectiveness.

That's a leading reason for keeping so many meetings under wraps but the conference planners also will try to achieve a goal of increasing public understanding everywhere of the need and value of continuing foreign aid programs and that's why there will be several spectacular breaches of the general silence.

Fatal Shot Fired At Close Range

Seven witnesses appeared before Coroner Edmond St. Jorre de Jorre Thursday night to give evidence at the inquest into the death of Norma Maureen Desjardins.

Miss Desjardins who was also known as Norma Maureen Shepard died Oct. 4 as the result of a bullet from a .303 rifle fired from close range, experts said.

Dr. John Marsden, St. Joseph's hospital pathologist who conducted the autopsy, told the jury the bullet that killed her shattered her right wrist before inflicting a large wound in her upper left chest. A small exit wound was left in her back.

S. Sgt. H. G. Van Dusen, RCMP firearm expert from Vancouver, said after having test-fired the rifle found at the scene it was his opinion it had been fired at close range.

Constable Hugh B. McCombe of the Colwood RCMP detachment said he arrived at 232 Island Highway about 10 p.m. Oct. 4 and found the deceased and Arthur David Shepard who was "upset and talking all the time."

McCombe and Constable Richard F. Lee, who also testified, later took two statements from Shepard who was charged with non-capital murder. A stay of proceedings was ordered later by the Crown.

Dr. John S. P. Lane, a general practitioner in the Colwood area, said he went to the Shepard address in answer to a call and pronounced the woman dead around 10:35 p.m. Oct. 4.

Bruce G. Chayter, who lives in the apartment below the Shepard residence, said he tried to administer first aid to the woman before police arrived.

Brian A. Calloway, the dead woman's brother-in-law, told the jury he indentified the body.

The inquest was adjourned until Wednesday at 7.30 p.m. in the Law Courts.

Pope, Bishops Must Consult —Archbishop

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Roman Catholic archbishop of Paris submitted a working paper to the Synod of Bishops today calling for considerably more consultation between the Pope and his bishops.

The key points in the paper presented by Francois Cardinal Marty to the 146 prelates from around the world were:

1. The Pope should inform himself of the thinking of all the Church's bishops before releasing a major document.

2. The national bishops' conferences should insist on at least being warned before the release of such documents.

3. A synod of bishops should meet once a year, or at the most once every two years, to advise the Pope.

4. Commissions should be set up by each national bishops' conference corresponding to the offices of the Roman Curia to increase contract between the central church administration and the bishops in the field.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

Although you can get sunburned in winter if you are out under the blue sky on the sunny side of a mountain slope, it isn't nearly as easy to get a burn as it is in the summer. It isn't because there is less heat to be felt in the sun. It's because of the slant of the sun.

You can probably remember a summer's afternoon when you sat in the shade to get away from the glare of the sun, but discovered that night that your face and arms were burned a fiery red. The ultraviolet rays that you couldn't see gave you the sunburn.

When the sun is high overhead, as it is in summer, you are in danger of burn from the ultraviolet rays. In winter the rays have too far to go and they are coming at you from a different angle.

They slant through layer after layer in the earth's lower atmosphere and by the time they reach you they aren't very potent. The sun feels good but it won't burn except under unusual conditions.

Meter Readers Pay for Chance To See Figures

THURLESTONE, England (AP) — The electricity meter reader had an eye for figures so he hired out his uniform for his friends to see them, too.

The meter was in a nudist camp.

Electricity board chairman Bill Irens told a meeting the meter man rented his official cap and badge to friends for 2s 6d (32 cents) a time so they could go along and see the figures, too.

The subterfuge was discovered when camp authorities inquired why some electric bills were surprisingly high and others amazingly low.

The friends of the meter reader—who was not identified to save further embarrassment, said Irens could not make proper meter readings. What happened to the reader was not disclosed.

SOVIET COSMONAUT Col. Vladimir Shatalov, commander of the Soyuz 8 spacecraft and one of two men in space today, is shown in a state of weightlessness during training for the Russian Troika Mission, which saw three space vehicles in orbit at the same time. (AP Wirephoto.)

Second Soyuz Returns As Troika Mission Ends

MOSCOW (CP) — The second spaceship in the Soviet Union's troika mission landed safely today, returning three more cosmonauts to earth and leaving only two aloft in Soyuz 8.

Moscow radio said Soyuz 7, carrying Anatoly Filipchenko, Vladislav Volkov and Viktor Gorbatko, softlanded in the Soviet central Asian republic of Kazakhstan. It was in orbit nearly five days.

Still flying in space aboard Soyuz 8 were veteran cosmonauts Vladimir Shatalov and Alexei Yeliseyev.

The other ship in this biggest-ever mission, Soyuz 6, was brought to earth Thursday with Georgy Shonin and Valery Kubasov aboard.

Soyuz 8 is expected to land Saturday.

Just before landing Thursday, Soyuz 6 tested some new automatic welding equipment.

"It is still too early to sum up the results (of the welding tests), but it has already been proven that welding of metals is possible in near-earth space," wrote welding expert Boris Paton in Pravda, the Communist party newspaper.

Moscow newspapers reported that the Soyuz 6 cosmonauts met Soviet journalists at a news conference as soon as they shaved and changed clothes after their landing

The question-and-answer text included these exchanges:

Q—How did the welding experiments work out in weightless conditions?

Kubasov—The welding experiments went well. But it's a bit too early yet to speak about results. The samples will be checked on earth, and then the experts will give their evaluation of our work.

Q—Tell us how easy it is to control the spaceship and how did it respond to your commands?

Shonin—It's astonishing how such a huge thing obediently fulfilled all the movements of my hands. The spaceship obeyed me better than I expected.

Q—What could you say about the manual controls of the spaceship?

Shinin—The problem of whether to use a manned or unmanned spacecraft has been widely debated in our press as well as the foreign press. We cosmonauts feel that unmanned systems help achieve work in space. Our American colleagues have a similar point of view. We spoke about this with Frank Borman the Apollo astronaut who visited the Soviet Union recently . . . I think our work has proven this point of view.

Reporting on the welding experiment, Dr. Nikolai Kazakov wrote in Krasnaya Zvezda—Red Star:

"For the first time we obtained information on how different metals are welded and cut and how they melt in conditions of space vacuum and weightlessness."

NO PLATFORM YET

Today's landing appeared to rule out any attempt to begin construction of an orbiting space platform—long an announced goal of the Soviet space program—at the present time.

None of the three ships docked in spact, although they flew close to each other, and there was no evidence that ei- anything in space that could be used as the basis for a future platform.

Russia already has achieved one manned docking in space, earlier this year. Two of the crew members of that operation, carried out by Soyuz 4 and Soyuz 5, are aboard Soyuz 8.

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A welding exqert said Thursday he believes the "cold welding" technique used by Russian cosmonauts in space simply consists of butting two clean pieces of metal together in a vacuum and allowing the molecules to fuse.

"The process is unbelievably simple," said Max Taylor, a technical representative for the National Cylinder Gas Co.

He said the Russians made the discovery while studying metals in a vacuum on earth. No heat or electricity is needed.

Liquor Profitable For Government

The provincial treasury achieved a net profit rate of 30.02 per cent on every dollar's worth of liquor sold by the government in the last fiscal year.

This was revealed in the abridged public accounts released Thursday by Premier Bennett.

The document was ready for the usual release during the summer but Bennett said he had been away from his office so much that he could not release it until now. He said he did not hold it back because of the recent election campaign.

The abridged accounts — which will be followed by full details at next spring's legislative session — cover the year ending March 31, 1969, on a department-by-department basis.

The LCB balance sheet showed that it sold $184,988,249 worth of liquor during the period, up from the $169,085,835 the previous year.

SURPLUS DETAILED

After deducting $10 million of operating expenses from the gross profit, the government retained a net profit of $56,055,120 — reported last July by Bennett in his mid-year review.

The accounts also add some detail to the premier's summer disclosure that there was a $39 million cash surplus for the year even though total government appropriations were overspent by $1.3 million.

Thursday's breakdown showed the net appropriation overexpenditure occurred because a total underexpenditure of $38.7 million in some departments was outpaced by $40 million of overspending in other departments.

Main overexpenditures were: $19 million for social welfare, $12 million for B.C. Hospital Insurance Service payments, and $2.4 million for certain maintenance and construction phases of highways and ferries operations.

UNDEREXPENDITURES

Main underexpenditures were: almost $11 million by the education department including $9.4 million of vocational school appropriations and $1.4 million earmarked for post-secondary programs, $2.4 million for mental health services, $6 million by the lands, forests and water resources department, $4 million by the municipal affairs department.

Among the smaller items in which the government did not spend the full allocations made by the legislature were a $32,000 underexpenditure on pollution control and $3.4 million intended for housing and urban renewal.

Grain Pays Fees

EDMONTON (CP)—About 25 University of Alberta students have been granted approval to pay tuition fees in grain. R. B. Wishart, administrator of student awards, said Wednesday that more applications are expected although the deadline for payment of tuition fees without penalty was Wednesday.

Regional Evolution

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS MINISTER Campbell is quite right in his description of the difference between metro government and the regional system. The former is a fourth level of government, the latter technically is not. However, when regional boards assume a large number of important powers they become an agency of administration which ought to be placed under the restrictions that govern a level of government—that is, they should become directly responsible to the electors and not merely to the municipal councils that appoint representatives to regional boards.

As Mr. Campbell rightly says, there are a number of aspects of municipal government which should be preserved. Even when regional boards take over many of the functions heretofore under municipal jurisdiction, there will remain responsibilities such as provision of sewerage connections, construction and repair of streets, garbage collection, and similar services. But whether municipal councils will be content with such relatively minor chores is another matter.

The point would come at which the regional board would find it more efficient to levy taxes directly for necessary revenue—and at that point the spending of such revenue would have to come more closely under the control of the voting public. After that, the difference between a metro government and a regional board would become largely academic. The name of the game should be dependent on the results of the function performed.

Regionalism, at any rate in the form which we enjoy at present in this area, is certainly not equivalent to amalgamation. It is, as the minister points out, merely a mechanism by which separate municipal governments may perform joint activities for joint benefit. Hospital construction, parks which cater to the whole regional area, planning for the area as a whole—these are very proper functions for regional boards. To them Mr. Campbell now adds water distribution, property assessment, garbage disposal, transit, air pollution and housing.

How long will it be before police and fire services are also added? There is little doubt that, although staff at the patrol level would probably not be reduced, there could be appreciable savings at the administrative level. There is little more than custom to support the present compartmented arrangement, even though excellent teamwork exists among the various forces.

What the public must watch for, in welcoming the increased efficiency and expectable savings to be derived from further applications of the regional system, is that an overall regional board and its subsidiary committees should not be so removed from direct public control and selection that they become relatively independent satrapies, in practice if not in theory beyond the reach of the voter.

Mr. Campbell has done the province a service in pressing for regional arrangements to simplify local government. It is well that he has refrained from force in urging that this service or that should go regional. But it is obvious that the force is available if required. In most cases municipalities have been happy enough to set up regional boards composed of municipal council representatives. But the real test will come when the tail begins to wag the dog, when junior outgrows his municipal progenitors and begins to overshadow the parental authority. Some mayors and aldermen may already see the portent of things to come; it would be unlikely that Mr. Campbell does not see it also.

Best They Can With What They Have

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE of the B.C. Teachers' Federation leaves no doubt of its continuing opposition to the current provincial school financing formula. The federation's October Newsletter is emphatic on that score—but adds that "problems caused by the formula should not be accepted as an excuse for any deterioration of teaching and learning conditions."

Leaders of the profession's governing body issue what amounts to an injunction to members to keep doing the best they can even if circumstances are not entirely to their liking. This is in contrast to objections last year which took the form of token work stoppages because of what were called intolerable conditions.

There is room for argument about the profession's opposition to "legislation which requires a school board to seek approval from municipal councils or representatives or from ratepayers through a referendum for any portion of its operating budgets."

When that legislation was promulgated, the minister of education made the point that some school boards were not as provident as others, and that the ones who paid the piper, meaning the taxpayers, had some claim to call the tune. The method by which the tune is called, however, has brought from the teachers an examination of referendums. They are, says the federation, undemocratic. Only owner-electors vote and a mere 40 per cent of those voting can defeat a referendum—a case of minority rule. The referendum, adds the federation, reflects more the public's reaction to higher municipal taxes than it does to matters of education.

Less acceptable is the BCTF's implied complaint that when a referendum is defeated the schools suffer for taxation practices over which they have no control. Is it the opinion of the teachers that they should tell the taxpayer what he should pay? Anyone who thinks so might consider the statement made here last month by Dr. S. N. F. Chant. He quoted Dr. R. B. Bryce, deputy minister of national revenue, and one of the country's most highly regarded experts on government finance, to the effect that the cost of university and college education alone in Canada will equal the country's total productive capacity by 1994 if current trends continue.

Somewhere along the line, obviously, the taxpayer has to reserve the right to call a halt, to point out that there are limits and to remind educationists that services other than education also have to be financed.

What Limits on the High Seas?

FROM SAN DIEGO COMES NEWS of "a furious war" to see which nation can develop the tuna fleet most effective in harvesting the fish on the high seas. According to present statistics, the Japanese still lead, but the United States, a virtual noncompetitor as recently as 10 years ago, has moved into an "uneasy" second place, with Taiwan, Korea, European and South American countries expanding their fleets to participate in a haul of a reported million tons a year.

This is interesting as an indication of technical progress in harvesting a highly palatable and useful fish. Each of the nations concerned may be expected to improve its equipment and methods and conceivably will continue to increase its catches.

But for how long? On the high seas, who establishes the conservation measures which seem essential for all types of food fish if they are not to be over-exploited? Are we here being informed of more "progress" in liquidating a resource? Or have we come around to the point where that possibility is worth considering on an international basis?

REPORT FROM MRS. NOGGINS

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Secret of Perpetual Commotion

MY neighbor, Mrs. Alfred Noggins, returned from a visit to her married daughter in Ottawa today and informed me that things were fine in the nation's capital.

Hutchison

"Since we got participatory democracy," she said, "nobody knows wot the gover'mint is doin' and even the cabinet can't read the Thoughts of Chairman Pierre in the little red book, all the pages blank so far. Well, it's best to keep national policies secret or first thing you know the 'Ouse of Commons will start arguin' about the public business, the elected members might generate some idears of their own and the country couldn't stand the strain.

"But don't worry. The solutions to all our problems will be comin' out of the computers any day now, neatly packaged, pre-cooked and ready for instant use. They probably won't work, of course, but in this troubled age you can't expect everything.

"Anyways, you can 'ear the whir and clank of the thinkin' machines on Parliament Hill a mile off, and so many of Trudeau's lost task forces are rushin' about the town in search of the final answers that traffic is at a standstill, the post office department 'as collapsed under the weight of Eric Kierans' new efficiency and Canada is the first nation in 'istory to build a just society before it's learned how to deliver the mail.

Leadin' the World

"Tis no matter. We're above these sordid considerations. We're leadin' the world into collective security by cuttin' down our defences. We're teachin' China the ways of peace by negotiations at Stockholm while the mobs wreck Montreal, projectin' a shiny image of Canadian identity everywhere, and the army is movin' up to the Arctic to protect us from the Eskimos and the polar bears. We may not 'ave law and order, but we've sure got sovereignty and that's wot counts.

"Besides, we've got permanent prosperity, thanks to the Economic Council which gallantly offered to rescue the gover'mint from a fatal mistake in the nick of time. Jest do the opposite of anything you intend to do, the council tells Trudeau, jest plead guilty to all charges, repujiate everything you've ever said, stop fightin' the false bogeyman of inflation and you'll be all right.

"Then Trudeau suddenly remembered that the mess we're in was all planned by the experts from the beginnin' and 'e decides, as a reckless experiment, to do the opposite of wot they say, and with a little bit of luck we might pull through the crisis yet, in spite of all the scientific advice.

"Only one thing is clear up to now. It's that wages and profits 'ave nothing to do with prices. Every labor union and business executive 'as always known this obvious fact but it's some'ow escaped public notice.

"If the cost of production rises, and prices follow it's merely an odd coincidence, as Uncle 'Erbert said when the London detectives found 'im with the Egyptian belly dancer, a case of stolen champagne and a dreadful 'angover.

"Nacherally, that wise man, Bryce Mackasey, 'as warned the gover'mint that it can't interfere with collective bargainin' even if the western ports are closed, Montreal without police or firemen and prices so 'igh that a roast of beef 'as become a wistful folk memory in a nation with the world's second richest livin' standard.

"But these abundant blessin's don't satisfy the left wing of the NDP in the season of Thanksgivin' and it's meetin' in Winnipeg to frame a truly socialist system. I can't imagine why, when we've achieved a better system than Karl Marx ever dreamed of.

"The gover'mint doesn't need to nationalize anything more because it already takes more than 'alf the profits of every business in taxes without takin' any investment risks or responsibility. If things go wrong somebody else is to blame, never the gover'mint, and the revenues pour in all the faster as inflation speeds up and no one suffers, except the people. I tell you Canada 'as discovered the secret of perpetual commotion at last.

"Poor old Karl didn't live to see 'is Utopia in full bloom but the modern socialists are determined to improve it still more. Since gover'mint always mismanages everything it touches, and can't even keep the mails movin' on time, it's logical, says the NDP, to extend the control of the state over the rest of the economy and finish the job that Marx started, while the premier of Manitoba, with a frightened look back over his shoulder, assures the wicked capitalists of New York that private enterprise is absolutely safe in 'is sympathetic 'ands.

"So the Just Society advances on all fronts, with every class and province in the country 'atin' the others more every day in a broad regional equality. Myself, I'd settle for a letter from my girl in Ottawa only a week or two late but I guess that's too much to ask until Kierans scraps 'is old-fashioned computin' machines and trains a new flock of carrier pigeons for the glorious age of technology."

The Voice of Autumn

Through shadowy veils of rain we are aware
Of burning bush, and feel we tread on holy ground.
Now even those callous to color stare
At autumn-splendored trees as if they sense the sound
Of that strong Voice within the fire that empowers
The heart to sing in thanks for bounty that is ours.

AT UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

By WILLIAM R. FRYE

Sympathy for Nixon Follows Moratorium

THE United Nations tried very hard to be diplomatically correct about the Vietnam "Moratorium" in the United States. It was a domestic matter, and the world community could not be officially involved. But the fact is the international community here, from Secretary - General U Thant down, was extremely interested in Wednesday's events, a little astonished that they could happen in a country at war, and eager to analyze their probable effects. Much of the UN comment, in private, reflected a sympathetic concern for what is seen as President Nixon's "plight"—a desire to disengage from the war but inability to do so in honorable conditions. Many UN people doubted that the moratorium would help, and were therefore critical of it.

Frye

Senator Edmund Muskie (D) of Maine, who lunched with Thant Tuesday, put into words one major concern of those who worry about the effect of the moratorium.

Peace Initiatives

Pressure from young Americans for total, precipitate disengagement, Muskie said, "may deprive us of the freedom" to take imaginative diplomatic initiatives leading toward peace and American withdrawal in conditions of political stability for South Vietnam.

Muskie, who was Democratic candidate for vice president in 1968, said he and Thant had discussed several possible peace initiatives which could be taken if there were sufficient "flexibility" in Washington, Saigon and Hanoi.

They included:

- An effort to deal with the "political results of disengagement" — presumably an offer to talk with the Communists about a coalition regime.
- An offer of, or unilateral decision to initiate, a stand-still cease-fire, with "some kind of discussion of the political arrangements tied to a cease-fire."

In so far as Wednesday's moratorium presses President Nixon and the Saigon government in these directions, it could be constructive, Muskie indicated. But he said he feared it might, in fact, have exactly the opposite effect.

"We might be deprived of the chance to try such initiatives," he said, "if we get caught up in a wave of emotionalism about disengagement."

"Political realism is essential on all sides," he said. "If either tries to press the other toward a capitulation, this will hinder the prospect of peace."

He indicated that he feared the moratorium would tempt the Communists to do just that.

Other non-Communist comment here, even from sources not normally friendly to American policy, includes similar concern that the moratorium may encourage the Communists to hold out for victory, rather than negotiate a compromise of the kind the United States could accept.

This note of sympathetic concern for the American diplomatic posture is new here. During most of the Johnson era, private comment on Vietnam was harsh.

The UN community, broadly speaking, has accepted the proposition that Nixon wishes to disengage from the war if it can be done in conditions of minimum honor. By that is meant the absence of an overt Communist government in Saigon, and-or a massive purge of Vietnamese anti-Communists.

UN people say, however, that the reality would be a military defeat for the United States. They know the United States has never lost a war (although it did accept a stalemate in Korea) and that — as Muskie indicated — the experience may be traumatic for many Americans.

Domestic Backlash

Some diplomats, speaking very privately, say they fear the possible domestic backlash in the United States of a humiliating defeat. They say it could lead to a wave of recriminations and irrational anti-Communism reminiscent of the MacCarthy era that followed national frustration in Korea.

UN people, however, do not see anything they can usefully do, as an organization, about it. They are trying hard not to "become involved."

Thant, for example, has carefully avoided public comment — something he has not always done in the past when he felt Washington needed to be nudged.

The effect of this policy is to avoid adding to Washington's embarrassment — a fact which, in itself, reflects the new attitude of solicitude for the administration.

Times Good Music

I do want to tell you how much I enjoyed your program Monday evening, first hearing that dear Scottish song and my favorite, "Loch Lomond." Second on hearing remarks about TV being the wrong thing for school children, which I do think is correct as there are so many programs on TV that are decidedly wrong for school children. I used to listen all the time to your hour on CJVI as I always have my radio tuned to that station—for 14 years now—in preference to any Vancouver station. — Mrs. Barbara McGalliard, 12664-24 Ave. White Rock.

Caddy or Otters?

In reference to your October 8 front page story regarding "Caddy's Kiddy" — from the description (and the photo on page 17) it looks as though it might be one of the Aleutian Islands sea otters recently released hereabouts.

On the TV news reports showing the release of these delightful creatures it was apparent that they made an undulating movement through the water, not unlike everyone's idea of a sea serpent. Also, they appeared to be between four and five feet in length.

The reason they may be unfamiliar to your readers is because no one has seen a sea otter in these parts, its original home, since the turn of the century when they were virtually exterminated for their fur.— Phyllis Young (Miss), 3024 Kings Ave., Vancouver.

White Collar Unions

In the Times of October 7, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce urges the federal government to prohibit strikes by federal employees.

The Chamber of Commerce is highly critical of the Woods Task Force on Industrial Relations, as is also the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. This attitude is to be expected from groups that are mainly profit motivated. The Chamber of Commerce, among other proposed restrictions, would refuse the establishment of a public interest disputes commission.

I am a member of the Professional Institute of Public Service of Canada, whose executive director is L. W. C. S. Barnes. May I quote from the Exec. Directors Notebook of P.I.P.S. Magazine September 1969:

"Some of the research studies carried out on behalf of the Task Force on Labor Relations (the Woods Task Force), are now being published. An interesting example is a paper on the growth of white-collar unionism by George Bain in the current issue of 'Industrial Relations.'

. . . "On the assumption that democratic decision making is in itself desirable, he draws the conclusion that the relative lack of unionism amongst the white-collar sector of the community is a serious matter. After reviewing the major influences which govern the development of white-collar unionism, he goes on to show that, while the organization of white-collar workers and professionals in the public sector is more advanced than in the private sector, there is still room for improvement in both law and philosophy as they govern the public service staff relation scene."

In the past, the professional has been status conscious, but times are a-changing, and he is now asking for a voice in the decision making as it affects his work.—Mrs. Berta Schmidt, 765 Arden.

New York's Special Kind of Craziness

By SUSAN KASTNER
The Globe and Mail

NEW YORK—Everybody here is either demonstrating, getting ready to demonstrate or just getting finished demonstrating.

Stencilled on the road at Park Avenue and 51st Street on the quietly rich East Side, is this faded call to arms: "Protest against outrageous Israel rules of autopsy. Join march on consul, Thurs., June 19."

Farther west, in a dilapidated building on upper Broadway, Cubans who are left-wing but anti-Castro plan ways to keep the right-wing, anti-Castro Cubans out of their next demonstration. Downtown, a new free-form school for radicals called Alternate U. offers no-exam, no-credit courses in dialectical philosophy, anarchism, yoga and the mimeograph as a revolutionary tool.

Out on Long Island Sound, 200 civil rights marchers set their faces for Fire Island, a sand-swept resort known for communities of limp-wristed young men and arty heterosexual couples. It seems that one genteel (and gentile) tip of the island has managed to keep up its restriction on all Semites, blacks, and nouveau-riche arrivistes.

The marchers descend with signs reading: "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner?" "And eating pickles. Herring. Chitling?" A figure in a green cassock waves a giant cross majestically over each house, chanting: "Unclean . . . Unclean."

On Fifth Avenue, a little band of butchy girls and effete men are marching in a solemn circle outside the Rockebeller Centre. A couple of yawning policemen have cordoned off the sidewalk. The pickets carry a huge pink sign that reads: "The third sex supports the third world in its struggle for emergence."

One of the girls explains that the occasion is Governor Nelson Rockefeller's "phony tour to the oppressed nations of Latin America." The oppressed homosexuals of America wish to declare their solidarity with their fellow underdogs.

Gay Power

Earlier that week, the homosexuals had carried the Gay Power banner straight up Avenue of the Americas, demanding freedom now and a Gay representative in Congress.

Meanwhile, with the homosexuals gathering strength, it's not really surprising that women of the city should veer off to do their own thing. The snowballing female liberation movement teaches its members karate and frigidity to ward off lecherous, woman-subjugating males (apparently there still are some, somewhere).

Some members of them in witches' robes, led by Abby Aldrich Rockefeller of the Rockefellers, picketed and hexed her dad's Chase Manhattan Bank. Apparently these freedom fighters, too, support the people of the third world struggling for liberation. With friends like these, who needs enemies?

Alas, in the end all the pitches get lumped together—gay power with black power, ban-the-bomb with legalize-pot—and they all begin to sound the same. In fact, the really astute do-gooders have taken their causes to Madison Avenue—why should toilet tissues be sold more professionally than slum clearance?

And now, immediately after the commercial for the newest cosmetic obscenity—vaginal deodorant— comes a plug for slum education.

The same silken-slick voice-over goes straight from "A girl's biggest deodorant problem . . .", to: "This child will suffer from inferior education . . . simply because he is black."

Making the first extended visit to New York in three years, after having lived there for two years, the expatriate finds the city's tenseness more palpable, its special craziness pressing in from all sides.

Drop and Pop

Downtown, the once-colorful Lower East Side has turned into an experimental drug farm. Living by the dozen in coldwater walkups the kids drop and pop everything from acid to amphetamines and beyond.

Diet pills are very big, procured from prescriptions which were originally toted downtown by plump runaways from Long Island. They all wind up rail-thin, glassy-eyed, wildly freaked out.

The police don't bother them because the speed freaks are no trouble at all—mostly they stay indoors watching the hurdy-gurdy slam-banging inside their heads.

The New Yorkers who haven't plunged into drugs for enlightenment (of course, everyone tells you, pot isn't a drug) turn to cults. The stars rule all.

After the moon shot, when the city had nearly two weeks of uninterrupted rain, the dead-serious comment heard everywhere was: "You ever see such weather? Ever since they went messing with the moon?"

Never mind that the weather at Cape Kennedy was normal. New York knew that the outraged galaxy had singled this city out for watery punishment.

More than 200 astrologers are listed in the yellow pages of the phone book. Depending on the sincerity of your commitment you could pay $5—to hear Madame Bettina on 14th Street tell you to be careful of your health—or $30, to hear Park Avenue's Zoltan Mason warn you to beware of adverse bio-chemical and bio-astral influences on your ductless glands.

Astrology

Star-crossed lovers find each other through the astrology dating service Several astrologers who give investment advice to stockbrokers are facing charges of practising as stock consultants without a licence.

And no really fashionable New York woman would touch her hair before consulting the monthly astrology report by Xavora Pove in one of the big fashion glossies, telling exactly which day and what time it is astrologically advisable to have your hair done.

Meanwhile, out in the streets, some of the color and vitality that made New York such a joy still remains. The sidewalks are still rich with every shade of face, every extreme of dress and manner. There are still flashes of the old funny, life-living nose-thumbing approach to the universe.

A man waiting for a bus gazes into the window of a Broadway delicatessen heaped with strawberries the size of oranges, oranges like cantaloupes and salamis like footballs.

Inside, the counterman stops in the midst of serving a customer, leans his belly into the strawberries and beckons comically to the stranger through the window.

The stranger looks embarrassed, half-smiles, shakes his head. The counterman hefts himself off the strawberries and throws open the door.

Buy a Salami

"So c'mon," he bellows, face wreathed in smiles. "Don't stand around outside—come in, how do I make a living from window shoppers?" The stranger misses his bus and buys a salami. It's the least he can do.

But other times, the slightest contact between two people seems certain to trigger a street fight. Brush against someone accidentally and he snarls like a tiger.

It takes a while to realize that it's all talk. It never really goes farther than name-calling, which has become ritualized—an art in itself. A cabbie rounding a corner cuts so close behind a crossing pedestrian that you can see the man's nape hair riffle in the breeze. The cabbie's upper lip peels back.

"Whyntcha watch where yer going, you meathead?"

The pedestrian whirls with a look of incredulous hatred. He begins kicking the fender of the car. "You pinhead," he shrieks.

"Shutup, you meathead," roars the cabbie, without making the slightest move to leave the car.

"Pinhead, Pinhead," Kick, stomp, kick—but staying down at the fender.

"Meathead. Meathead." The cabbie pulls away. Far behind on 34th Street the pugging pinheads grow fainter and fainter.

How Birds Find Winter Caches

By IRSTON R. BARNES

Some recent visitors to parks in the Western U.S. have asked questions about two of the birds they observed — the omnipresent Steller's jay and the mountain-dwelling Clark's nutcracker. Both were seen caching seeds and other food, and the natural question is — do they ever find the stores they have secreted?

Fortuitously, I am able to answer on the basis of a recent and thorough canvass of the scientific literature, furnished to me by one of the authors, Leon Kelso, of Washington.

The most extensive studies relate to the Eurasian nutcracker, whose activities have been found to be of economic importance to the forest industry.

The Eurasian nutcracker is notable for its food transportation and storage behavior. Indeed, the bird has evolved a special anatomical device, a sublingual pouch, in which seeds are carried. These birds are about the same size as the Clark's nutcracker, that is, about 12 to 13 inches, but with white speckles on a brown body, they are somewhat suggestive of winter starlings.

In its sublingual pouch, a nutcracker may store and carry as many as 200 small pine seeds. Most seeds are presumably hidden after being carried relatively short distances, but there are records of the nutcrackers carrying seeds as much as 10 to 15 kilometers (6 to 9 miles).

The nutcracker commonly caches its seeds in the ground, poking them into the forest litter, into moss or lichen. Nutcrackers in the process of concealing their stores have been observed to drive other nutcrackers purposefully from the scene.

A typical cache averages about a dozen seeds, but the number may vary from three to 60.

Food storage is an essential business for the nutcracker. It enables the birds to endure prolonged and rugged winters where other sources of food are limited.

It also permits the nutcrackers to nest early, using the highly nutritious seeds which they have stored to feed their nestings. Where the summer season is short, early nesting allows the young birds to mature and establish their own winter stores for the next season.

The ability of the nutcracker to relocate its hidden caches is remarkable. Even deep snows do not deter the birds from going directly to the spot and digging a tunnel down through depths of 40 inches.

Seemingly the birds rely on visual memory with reference to some landmark, perhaps a shrub or tree. There appears to be no trial and error; the birds search and find with certainty.

The Clark's nutcracker also appears able to locate food under snow cover. Dr. Victor Cahalane has reported one instance of a Clark's nutcracker excavating directly through 8 inches of snow to a Douglas fir cone that was lying on the forest floor.

In forest areas, the Eurasian nutcracker has been observed to place its caches in a straight line at regularly spaced intervals. This pattern may aid the bird to locate successive stores.

Food transportation and storage by the nutcracker have been much studied because of the economic importance of the birds to forest ecology. Many trees with wingless seeds, some pines, oaks and nut trees, are dependent on such seed transport and storage to maintain and extend forest boundaries.

Where seeds are not recovered and eaten, they sprout and produce clusters of seedlings. The fierce competition among such clustered seedlings forces rapid, straight growth on the stronger seedlings and this is thought to produce better and stronger trees.

Those Mysterious Urchin Homes

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

The most spiny member of the starfish group is the sea urchin, a common resident of our rocky coast. However, since they do not stand exposure well, sea urchins are seldom found above the low tide level except in tide pools or in deep recesses of the rock where they are protected from sun and predators.

Three kinds are regularly seen and although their habits vary the three may all be in close proximity to each other.

Most common is the green sea urchin, readily recognized by the greenish color and the short, blunt spines. Shaped like a flattened sphere the body is about three inches in diameter and the spines are a little more than half an inch long.

★ ★ ★

Green urchins seem to prefer the more protected types of shoreline where they may sometimes be found clinging to the rock in great numbers. They are not easily dislodged; even on an exposed rock where they can not jam themselves into cracks the suckers on the numerous tube feet hold them securely in position. When removed forcefully many of the tube feet are broken off but are replaced in time.

★ ★ ★

While most of our sea-shore animals are of species found only in this part of the world the green sea urchin is an exception. This species is found not only in the North Pacific but also in the North Atlantic including the shores of Europe. In fact it was originally described from specimens taken in Norway and is now known to be circumpolar in distribution.

Next in size and also very abundant is the purple sea urchin which favors more exposed coast lines. This attractive-looking creature, vivid purple in color, ranges in size up to six or seven inches over-all and is found along our entire coast from Alaska to California wherever suitable rocky habitat occurs.

Purple urchins can be seen on beaches near Victoria usually just below the lowest tide level by the most spectacular display of these animals is to be found on exposed sandstone shores such as at Muir Creek and Botany Beach northwest of Sooke. Here they are not only common in almost every tide pool but they occupy a most unusual habitat—cavities in the rock apparently formed by each individual urchin.

★ ★ ★

The rock hollows are apparently permanent abodes; in many instances the urchin is larger than the entrance so that it is obvious it could not leave even if it wished to. Advantages are obvious. Each inhabitant is perfectly protected from wave action and predators but is assured of ample food being washed in by the movement of water past the opening.

However, no one has yet explained how the excavations have been made. It is inconceivable that the sea urchin can wear away the rock with its spines or teeth since the spines are actually sheathed in delicate skin that could not stand constant abrasion and the teeth could only operate in an extremely limited area.

It has been suggested that the animal secretes an acid or some other chemical that dissolves away the rock but this has never been demonstrated.

The best explanation so far is that the sea urchins merely keeps the rock surface very clean so that the sea water can dissolve away the rock at a faster than normal rate. Nevertheless it is obvious that these cavities are the result of many years association on the part of the sea urchins.

Our largest and most spectacular species is the red sea urchin usually found in deeper water. This creature has a shell up to six inches or more in diameter with extra long spines which increase its over-all size to eight or ten inches — particularly at the northern end of its geographic range where most animals tend to be large. Two color phases occur; most are reddish or red-brown but some are dark purple like their smaller cousins.

★ ★ ★

Sea urchins are an important source of food for many animals including man. The eggs which occur in five bands within the shell are particularly favored and are eaten regularly by our native Indians. They are still considered a delicacy by many people, either prepared like caviar or raw.

These portions as well as the remaining parts of the animal were also staple diet for sea otters which used to occur so abundantly along the Pacific Coast particularly in the Bering Sea areas, and they are also consumed by gulls, mink, raccoons or any other predator that can gain access to them at low tide.

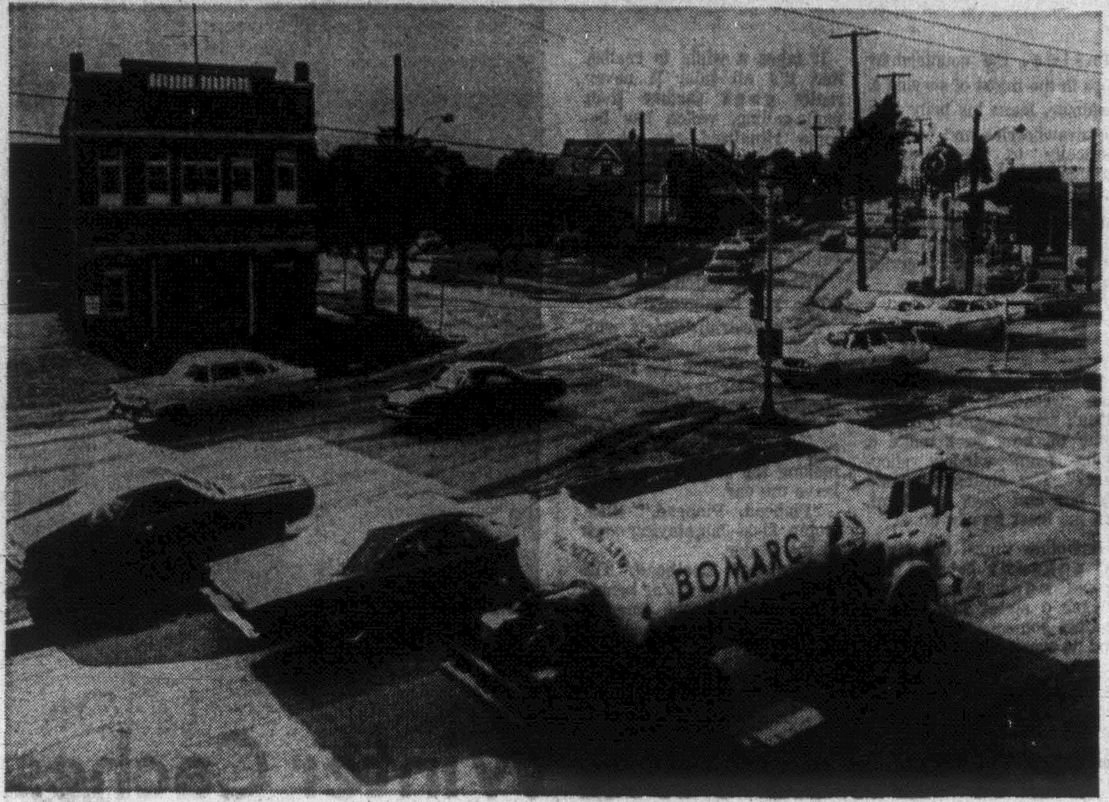
Dangerous Intersections—Part 5



The Burnside-Douglas intersection illustrates the need for drivers to make well-planned approaches to trouble spots. Drivers finding themselves in a left-turn lane and suddenly trying to switch out is one reason there have been 16 accidents here this year. Last year, there were more people injured here—nine—than at any other area corner. Police say a policy of "selective enforcement" has helped prevent injuries this year, but say there is a continuing need for education and care.

Juvenile Attendance Centre May Halt Brannan Lake Flow

An attendance centre, to enable youngsters in trouble with the law to stay with their families in Victoria rather than being banished to Brannan Lake, could be in operation within a few weeks.

The final financial stumbling block to the centre should be resolved withing a few days, says Bruce McLean, senior probation officer with the Family and Children's Court.

McLean was outlining the changing philosophy of the Children's Court, to the health and civic personnel committee Thursday.

He explained that under new provincial legislation a judge cannot send a youngster to Brannan Lake.

"Youngsters still wind up at Brannan Lake however through the Children's Aid Society." said McLean.

McLean explained that Brannan Lake is no longer a jail for juveniles but a treatment centre.

"But you don't necessarily solve a juvenile's problem by sending the offender away from his family and community.

"That is why an attendance centre in Victoria is so important."

McLean said the court has already rented St. Andrew's Church hall on Niagara Street to serve as the centre and is negotiating with the federal government for financial aid to operate it.

When it is in operation the judge will have an alternative to making a juvenile offender a ward of the CAS.

"The judge could order a youngster to attend the centre," said McLean.

"There would be a number of projects organized from school study sessions to community projects such as cleaning beaches."

In this way, McLean explained, the child is able to continue living at home and going to school.

TO ALL YOUTH

To qualify for federal aid the centre must also cater to youth in general rather than exclusively to youngsters in trouble.

McLean explained that new provincial legislation is designed to focus on the preventive aspects, solving problems before they get to court.

"Most of the community sees us as operating in limbo, quite apart from other governmental departments," he said. "But the people we serve are not vocal, they are people in trouble."

SIX OFFICERS

He explained that six probation officers work exclusively with juveniles in conflict with the law and quietly handle 50 cases each a month.

Two other probation officers deal exclusively with family problems and handle about 100 cases each a month.

"At one time there were always many more juveniles in court than adults," said McLean.

During the first six weeks after the new legislation went into effect 115 juvenile cases were handled without court appearances.

If the case does get to court, the judge has several alternatives.

REPRIMANDED

The offender can be reprimanded or fined up to $25, or ordered to visit a probation officer on a weekly or monthly basis. He can also be made a CAS ward and often winds up at Brannan Lake.

At the meeting Ald. Robert Baird asked McLean if Cool-Aid, a Victoria youth organization, was proving of assistance to probation officers.

"They're doing a good job in reaching certain young people," said McLean.

"Cool-Aid has been able to do something," he said, "but some of these kids are unreachable."

Workers Return To Jobs

PORT ALBERNI — About 400 employees of MacMillan Bloedel's Sproat Lake logging division were back on the job today.

The men returned home Thursday when they were met by pickets on their way to work.

It is believed the pickets were employees of Coulson Prescott Logging Ltd., granted a British Columbia Supreme Court injunction Wednesday requiring the International Woodworkers of America union to end a work stoppage at the company's Sproat Lake operation.

About 50 Coulson employees had stayed away from work after an IWA member left the job in a dispute with the firm which contracts for MacMillan Bloedel.

Society Probes Death in 'Hole'

The B.C. attorney-general's department may be asked to review the case of Leo Stanley Jensen of Port Alberni who died in a five-by-seven-foot concrete jail cell in Wilkinson Road jail July 2.

Greater Victoria Association on Alcoholism has requested its executive committee to explore the matter and, if necessary, ask the attorney-general's department for a review.

Reg Clarkson, Vancouver Island director of the Alcoholism Foundation of British Columbia, said Jensen was serving a 21-day sentence for impaired driving at Wilkinson Road.

On the second or third day after being admitted, he developed symptoms of delirium tremens. He became violent and tried to "push out the walls" of his regular cell.

He was the put into a five-by-seven-foot concrete box known as "the hole" where he died.

Clarkson said a coroner's jury was critical of the jail staff in its administration of artificial respiration but not over the fact that the man was placed in "the hole" or that he was not admitted to hospital.

"Such a death deserved more investigation than it apparently got," Clarkson said.

350 Men Laid Off At Honeymoon Bay

By SUSAN RILEY

DUNCAN—Western Forest Industries Ltd. sawmill at Honeymoon Bay will close today in spite of settlement of the longshoremen's strike.

Huge piles of accumulated lumber and a poor market now mean 350 men will be laid off and production will stop completely, said company spokesman Alec Walker

"We don't know when the trucks will be in here to get the lumber out. It has been sitting outside for weeks now and there isn't any place else to store it."

ANOTHER WEEK

Ratification of the settlement by union members could also take another week, he said.

He has no idea how long it will be until excess lumber is cleared away and the mill can reopen.

A directive from Vancouver head office said the mill should close until "there is an upturn in the demand for lumber."

"So with the strike and a generally poor market it is hard to say when we'll be back at work."

Meanwhile Crofton Pulp and Paper mill is "out of the woods."

Spokesman Gordon Cameron said the plant would have closed Oct. 25 but settlement of the strike averted this.

15,000 TONS

However, it will take a while until the roughly 15,000 tons of accumulated pulp is moving again.

"The minute the longshoremen are ready to go back to work we will investigate the availability of pulp and paper ships. We don't know where they are right now."

Because of the length of the strike it will take shipping agents a while to get vessels to British Columbia ports.

Crofton has continued full operation and pulp is being stored outside under tarps.

Although he hasn't exact figures, a spokesman for the MacMillan Bloedel sawmill at Chemainus said today: "All I see around me is lumber."

Two deep sea ships are lying offshore.

One of the vessels, Vancouver Forest, was to have loaded at Chemainus before the strike started but he said he doesn't know where it will load now.

"We have millions of feet of lumber piled around but remember it only takes a couple of these big ships to clear it out."

The Chemainus mill has been operating full tilt since the strike started

Hidden Valley Home Planned For Mobiles

An application for rezoning of a 65-acre mountain valley to permit construction of a luxury residential mobile home park has been made to the B.C. government.

The mountain valley is located at the north end of Florence Lake, off the Trans-Canada Highway, in Langford.

The mobile home park is described as a fully self-contained residential community — the first of a number of such parks planned for the lower Vancouver Island area by Wagon Train Estates, Ltd.

It is to be called Hidden Valley Park.

"When completed, it will be the most modern, most fully equipped park on the Pacific Coast," a company spokesman said.

RECREATION

Plans call for one-way perimeter roads with central cul-de-sac cluster developments, no interior traffic, paved roads and curbs, street lighting and a large central recreational complex.

The complex will include a main lounge, club rooms, hobby shop, service building, coffee bar, offices, and a large indoor and outdoor swimming pool.

There will be adults only and family unit areas. Each family area will offer play facilities and recreational equipment in addition to large open parkland areas.

"Each new park will have a full-time resident manager and recreational supervisor," the company spokesman said. "The entire area will be landscaped as part of a high-quality residential community."

Golf Challenge Fails

30-Car Ferry Starts Run

CAMPBELL RIVER — The new 30-car ferry Quadra Queen II began service between Campbell River and Quathiaski Cove, Quadra Island, this morning.

There were no ceremonies when she slipped into her berth here Thursday or when her predecessor, the 16-car ferry which has been in use since the service started in 1960, slipped away to undergo repairs.

The old ferry will be used for a new run between Cortez Island and Heriot Bay on the east coast of Quadra Island.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell says that when full service is in operation between the islands he hopes that Campbell River Chamber of Commerce will work with a committee from Quadra and Cortez Islands on planning of an inaugural ceremony "about the end of November."

'Gasoline Alleys Won't Dot North'

CAMPBELL RIVER—A totally new concept will be used for community and regional planning and parks in the development of the northern part of Vancouver Island.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, speaking at a luncheon attended by 100 delegates from the Northwestern B.C. Chambers of Commerce and their Alaska affiliates, and wives, said:

"You will not see gasoline alleys, billboards, car bodies or scattered development. There will be planned communities based on forestry, mining, fishing and planned use of recreational land."

He added that the land bridge completion from Victoria to Port Hardy would be done in the 1970s and estimated that about 80 to 90 miles of road still to be built between Kelsey Bay and Port Hardy would be completed within the next five or six years.

Campbell said the establishment of a ferry terminus at Port Hardy would complete the land bridge between Vancouver Island and the entire central coastal region and the Interior, opening up the tourist potential of the Chilcotins.

Two main resolutions were endorsed at the convention's first day of meetings.

The first, proposed by the Stewart Chamber, urged Premier Bennett to provide funds for the construction of a bridge over the Nass River in the immediate future. It also asked for accelerated construction on the Stewart-Watson Lake highway.

The second, submitted by Terrace Chamber, urged that the provincial government make a study and survey of suitable areas for winter park use, with the intent of placing reserves on chosen sites.

Also endorsed, was a resolution by Houston and district, which called for removal of political posters from the highways within 10 days of an election.

Black Panthers Offer Food, Indoctrination

NEW YORK (CP) — In several United States cities these days young slum school children —mostly black, but some white —drop in on the Black Panthers for good breakfast and a spot of indoctrination.

In New York, Chicago, Baltimore, Kansas City, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Oakland, Calif., and elsewhere slum children come in for breakfasts of grits (corn meal) with sausages, or scrambled eggs, or pancakes or cereal, plus a vitamin pill or cod liver oil.

It is a wholesome breakfast that few of them could expect at home. It makes it possible for them to go to school without, in the words of one Panther official, "their stomachs growling."

In some cities law-enforcement officials keep a nervous eye on Panther proceedings. There are charges that the Panthers' breakfast program is not what it is said to be and some suspicion over how the Panthers acquire their food.

But the Panthers deny the charges, ignore the suspicions and continue a growing program of feeding the children, hoping that they will grow up to be strong healthy revolutionaries dedicated to controlling their own affairs. They also have a free clothing program.

RUN AFOUL OF POLICE

The Panthers are a relatively new and frankly revolutionary Negro rights organization which has a reputation more for carrying guns than for passing cereal bowls. They have run afoul of the police in a number of states.

They were formed initially as a "defensive" organization to protect blacks from police brutality. But slowly they are gaining a reputation among some blacks as a community-minded group devoted to helping the under-privileged. They have not given up the call, however, for every Negro to carry a gun for protection.

The breakfast program became news in Canada last week when it was revealed that Shirley Jean Sutherland, daughter of New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas, participated in such a program in Los Angeles.

News of this came following the disclosure that she has been charged, along with novelist Donald Freed, with conspiring to obtain 10 hand grenades for the Black Panthers.

Panthers say that there is a breakfast and clothing program wherever they are located—which would mean that the number of kids taking breakfast must number in the thousands.

CONTROVERSY ABOUNDS

There is little doubt that the children get a wholesome meal. But, like everything else connected with the Panthers, there is controversy over how the food is obtained and about the indoctrination.

The breakfasts generally are served in a local church. The food, or money to buy food, is donated by local merchants. The Panthers deny there is any coercion involved in getting the donations but they make it plain where they think a merchant's duty lies.

Says Mrs. Bayo Patterson, breakfast program co-ordinator here: "The merchants have been living off the poor and oppressed for years so it is right that they make a contribution to the program."

She says merchants in the area where breakfast is being served are canvassed by the Panthers for contributions. If they refuse, the Panthers may call a boycott. Mrs. Patterson says this would only apply to the large chain stores that have been charging the community high prices for years.

Mrs. Patterson says the indoctrination is aimed at educating "the people on what socialism is all about. . . . People today only relate to capitalism."

DISTRIBUTE PROGRAM

She says the only literature distributed to the children is the Panthers' 10-point program. This program demands better housing, jobs and education for Negroes.

It also says all Negroes should carry guns, there must be an end to police brutality, all blacks should be released from prison on the grounds that they did not get fair trials from white-dominated courts and that there should be a United Nations-supervised plebiscite among blacks to determine if they want to secede.

Welcome Mat Out for Hardy Winter Sailors

By PAT DUFOUR

Operators of marinas in Canadian coastal waters are gradually catching on to a trend which sees more and more owners enjoying their boats all year round.

To take a weekend cruise after the end of September a few years back was a venture in frustration. Where you enjoyed dockside gaiety and conveniences a few weeks back, you'd be met with deserted jetties and cut-off water pumps.

Things have changed.

While popular American resorts like Roche Harbor on San Juan Island religiously close up shop at the end of the summer season, at least five Canadian operators keep the welcome mat out for those boaters who are not averse to a little morning ice on their decks.

Among the first to recognize the new trend's significance were Stan and Helen Lettner. This will be the fourth fall and winter that it's been business as usual at their Bedwell Harbor resort on South Pender.

They have dockage for about 45 boats, much of which is in use on winter weekends, especially at Christmas and New Year's.

Stan and Helen have built steadily at Bedwell since they settled there from Vancouver a few years ago.

There's a covered heated swimming pool, a dining room, a beer parlor, a dance float, a roomy lodge that offers three rooms. There are also six self-contained cabins, complete down to the coffee pot.

Developing the trend to all-year service, Stan is a partner in B.C. Coastal Marine Resorts Ltd. which now provides winter facilities at Silva Bay on South Gabriola.

There you will find a lodge with 24 rooms and full dining facilities, a cocktail bar, and room for 45 boats. Like Bedwell, there's also a store in case the first mate has forgotten something vital — like salt.

Two resorts have changed hands this year and are among those which will welcome the hardy in the months ahead.

The first is at Genoa Bay, the sheltered little anchorage off Cowichan Bay.

Skip and Betty Winn started running the marina there in June. Formerly of San Francisco, they visited the island last year, and decided this is where they want to settle.

Skip, who is 40, has been "around marinas all my life" but this is the first he's owned.

The Winns have 17,000 feet of floats, open all year. The lodge, once known for its gourmet meals, has been sold.

But Betty lures the tastebuds at the shop they run every day but Wednesday. The fare is simple — but satisfying — coffee, man-sized breakfasts, cheeseburgers and steak sandwiches.

Other newcomers on the marina circuit are Helen and Lyle McKenzie who took over Manana Lodge in Ladysmith Harbor in July.

Originally from Alberta, the McKenzies spent the last three years at Port Moody where Lyle owned a fire equipment business.

The McKenzies will remain open all year and can offer room for 45 boats, and a lodge with full dining room and accommodation for 18 people.

The Benson brothers have been in the marina business since 1961 at their Maple Bay Marina in Bird's Eye Cove.

John, Arne and Leif cut their rates for docking during the off-season five cents a foot, including shore power.

The close-by Mai Tai Restaurant closes its doors at the end of October but there's always the Maple Bay Inn a mile away.

Opinions are divided on the reasons for the upsurge in winter cruising.

One of the most popular theories is that the increased use of fibreglass by boat designers and builders has accelerated the trend. Where, once owners spent the long winter scraping, painting and varnishing, they are now free to do what they like best—set to sea.

New Rubber May Allow Gill System for Men

LONDON (Reuters) — Two British doctors announced Wednesday they have developed a rubber silicone membrane which could enable men to breathe under water.

Dr. Dennis Melrose said the device forms a barrier against solids and living organisms while permitting gasses and vapors to pass through.

The artificial gills would allow swimmers to take oxygen from the water instead of wearing cumbersome oxygen tanks or relying on surface-based supplies of oxygen.

Melrose, who teaches surgical science at the Royal Postgraduate Medical School in London, developed the membrane with a colleague, Dr. Nora Burns.

He said the membrane's high permeability to carbon dioxide and oxygen makes it ideal for heart-lung machines.

The gills could also be used to recover valuable gases from industrial waste products.

COURT OF REVISION

1969 - 1970 Voters' List

A Court of Revision to consider any corrections in the Voters' List of The Corporation of the District of Oak Bay will sit in the Municipal Hall, at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, November 3, 1969.

A copy of the List of Electors revised as of September 30, 1969, has been posted on the Notice Boards at the Municipal Hall.

E. H. HART, Municipal Clerk.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

It pays to roll your own

50 Appearances Set for Duke On Rush Tour

By JOHN MOSHER

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Prince Philip faced a busy five hours here today, on a whirlwind Canadian tour for presentation of his Duke of Edinburgh Awards to young people judged exceptional for community, physical fitness and creative achievements.

He will be in Victoria Oct. 25.

He was scheduled to present 101 gold, silver and bronze medals at Prince Charles School (elementary) and Simonds regional high school. The remainder of his Saint John program comprised a luncheon and departure from the municipal airport at 2.45 p.m. ADT for Ville St. Laurent, Que.

The 11-city tour, involving more than 50 public appearances and most of the 4,500 boys and girls participating in the Canadian scheme, will end in Vancouver Oct. 28-29.

Prince Philip brought his two-engined Andover aircraft of the Queen's Flight to a smooth touchdown late Thursday afternoon, slightly ahead of schedule after a fueling stop at Goose Bay, Labrador.

CHATS WITH STUDENTS

With the award program's national co-ordinator, Maj.-Gen. George Kitching of Toronto, in welcoming the scheme's originator were Lieutenant-Governor Wallace S. Bird, Premier Louis J. Robichaud and Mayor James E. Calvin. Prince Philip chatted with Bertha Lee Dunham, 14, and Glen Thomas Josselyn, 16, representing the two schools involved in today's activities.

Later, both said they were impressed with the duke's friendliness. "He's human," said Bertha.

The city tendered a reception and a private dinner was held with the national co-ordinator and Commander G. J. Manson of Hamilton, Ont., executive secretary of the awards' national council.

At the reception, Prince Philip talked longest with Brian Hamilton, now married and first gold medal winner under the program introduced to Canada in 1963 after its start in Britain in 1956.

Successful participants receive a certificate and badge, both bearing the personal cypher of Prince Philip. He usually presents personally the coveted gold award certificate and 20 of these were on today's list.

Vatican Envoy 'Non-Issue'

Canada's diplomatic recognition of the Vatican, announced Wednesday, hasn't turned many heads in Victoria.

Canon Grahame Baker, president of the Greater Victoria Council of Churches said he has had only one worried phone call. He says he normally receives several calls on church issues, which indicates that this one is a "non-issue."

There's nothing to show it has had any effect on people in Victoria, he said.

Rev. Gilbert Smith, rector at Trinity Presbyterian Church and convener of evangelism and social action for Vancouver Island, was disappointed at the "unnecessary" action of the government.

POLITICAL

He said it has given recognition to a single religious denomination. The idea, he said, is purely political, and meant to help keep Catholic Quebec in the country.

Most Rev. Remi De Roo, Catholic Bishop of Vancouver Island, said the Canadian government had initiated the diplomatic relations talks and had made extensive consultations and studies of the matter.

He said Prime Minister Trudeau is on record as saying the intent of diplomatic relations is to co-operate with the Vatican on areas of human rights and the fostering of world peace.

"I'm inclined to accept his judgment about it although I'm aware there are many differing opinions on the matter."

RELATIONS

Rev. W. O. Nugent, Abbotsford, B.C., clerk of the B.C. Synod of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, said he didn't think establishment of Canadian diplomatic relations with the Vatican was necessary.

"I think the Vatican is a spiritual centre rather than a political centre," Mr. Nugent said.

"It does have influence on the countries of the world but I don't think ambassadors would increase that influence at all."

Raymond Bowers, of Vancouver, president of the Alaska-Canadian Mission, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon) said he wouldn't support the move.

"I'm not a Canadian . . . but I would probably feel the same in the United States. There's not much to be added by it."

"I feel it's an infringement upon religious freedom of rights.

"I think there should be a separation of church and state."

Chretien To Watch Provinces

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien has promised that the federal government will ensure proper treatment of Indians by the provinces after the federal department is phased out.

Mr. Chretien made the statement Wednesday during recording of the television program Under Attack for later broadcasting.

Answering questions from a panel of Queen's University students, the minister said he had proposed that Ottawa sign agreements with each province, detailing the services which they would extend and the funds the federal government would transfer for the purpose.

"If they don't provide the services, we will not send them the money," he said.

Asked if the provinces have shown any inclination to help the Indians, Mr. Chretien replied:

"In some provinces, yes. In others, not very much."

Commenting on his proposal that Indian lands be directly controlled by the Indians, Mr. Chretien said:

"At the present, they have to go up to the Great White Father for any changes (in development of Indian lands)—and that's me.

"I am ashamed to be grandfather to 250,000 people."

Mr. Chretien issued a statement on Indian policy in June proposing negotiations with the provinces to extend provincial education and welfare services to Indians on the same basis as other citizens.

The proposals suggest a five-year timetable for the transfer of services to the provinces from Ottawa, but Mr. Chretien has since said it will take longer.

Integrity Issue Brings Resignation

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Justice Minister T. Alex Hickman quit the Newfoundland cabinet Thursday night, claiming his honor and integrity had been seriously challenged by Premier Joseph Smallwood, his main competitor in the Liberal party's leadership race.

Mr. Hickman announced his decision at a news conference shortly after delivering a letter of resignation to Lt.-Gov. E. John Harnum.

The 44-year-old lawyer from Grand Bank on Newfoundland's south coast said he resigned because he couldn't serve under a premier who believed it was dishonorable to ask delegates to the leadership convention Oct. 31-Nov. 1 to vote as their consciences dictated.

Mr. Hickman took exception to remarks by the premier on a television panel show Wednesday night.

Mr. Smallwood said "committed delegates to the leadership convention are bound to support the candidate they were elected to support."

'WOULD BE A DISHONOR'

"It would be a dishonor for committed delegates not to represent the views of those who elected them.

"It would be shameful thing to ask delegates to dishonor their commitment."

When Mr. Hockman entered the race Monday night, he said he was counting on winning some delegates already committed to Mr. Smallwood and the other major candidate, John C. Crosbie.

About 1,750 persons, including 34 elected delegates from each of the 41 district Liberal associations, executives and the party's ex-officio members will vote at the convention.

Mr. Hickman said he was receiving wide support. He planned to open his campaign tonight with a speech at Grand Bank.

There were no declared supporters for the other two candidates, businessman Vincent Spencer of Windsor and Randy Joyce, a 21-year-old arts student at Memorial University.

MEETING SET FOR NOV. 3 ON CENTENARY

The celebrations, to be coordinated among an expected 300 community committees, will mark the anniversary of B.C.'s entry into Confederation.

Attending the Victoria meeting will be 69 persons including 11 directors, 15 honorary directors, 20 honorary members and 23 sub-committee chairmen.

Deputy Provincial Secretary L. J. Wallace, the centennial's general chairman, said today local organizing has begun in 30 communities.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Bloom Off Stock Boom

Late-in-the-day performance helped Toronto maintain a five-day string of trading advances, but at New York the market was off and volume considerably short of Thursday's sharp rally.

Western oils were still in decline and at Vancouver profit-taking was seen in the mines list.

AT TORONTO, prices were slightly up near the close of trade, bringing the market's rise to its fifth consecutive day.

All groups except western oils showed strength in afternoon trading which overcame slight early declines.

Among industrials, Algoma was up ⅞ to 16¾, Cominco ¾ to 30 and Union Gas ⅜ to 16⅞. Stelco fell ⅝ to 23 and Consumers' Gas and the CPR ¼ each to 15½ and 76½, respectively.

Western oils continued to drift down. Asamera was off 1½ to 22½ and Dome Pete ⅝ to 71⅜. Imperial dropped ⅛ to 17⅞ and Texaco ½ to 26½.

AT NEW YORK the stock market showed a modest loss on average but a near standoff between advances and declines of individual issues at the close.

On the big board, Occidental Petroleum was off 1⅞ at 23⅞; Addressograph was off 6¾ to 77½, and Natomas was up 1⅝ to 89¾.

On the American Stock Exchange, Telex gained 1½ to 75, Fleetwood Enterprises dropped 2¾ to 64½ and Canadian Javelin rose 1¼ to 15⅛.

AT MONTREAL, the stock market firmed slightly but continued lower during light afternoon trading.

Papers led losses while utilities alone were higher than at Thursday's close.

In banks, Montreal declined ¼ to 15⅝ and Canadienne Nationale ⅛ to 10⅞.

Among industrials, Velcro declined 1 point to 43, Radio Engineering 1 point to 27, Du Pont ⅝ to 27¾ and Falconbridge ½ to 144½ while Asbestos Corp. picked up ½ to 24.

AT VANCOUVER, profit-taking hit the mining section of the Vancouver stock exchange in late-morning trading.

Brenda fell .25 to $12, Lornex dropped .50 to $14, Utica was off .15 to $2.35 and Valley Copper lost .12 to $16.

On the plus side, a good gain was made by Bethlehem, up $2 to $18. Magnum put on .15 at $2.95.

In oils, Abidonne rose .10 to $2.50 while Bison fell .15 to $2.10.

United Bata gained .05 to $3.70.

Hamilton Harvey rose .45 to $2.95 and Fields was up .37 to $8.12. Capital Estates lost .25 to $2.

AT LONDON, the stock market moved ahead, although there was little buying support to extend initial gains.

Among leaders, Rank A was 1s 4½d higher at 111s 3d while Unilever was 9d up at 55s and Beechams 6d firmer at 38s 6d.

In shipping Furness-Withy rose 3s 4½d to 62s 4½d. Elsewhere, Hudson's Bay, Bowaters and banks were firm.

The firm trend in transatlantic markets enabled Canadians to go ahead, although in oils, Dome lost 6 points at 172, Pacific Petroleum eased 1¼ at 72 and Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas, Imperial and Gulf eased.

Gains were made by International Nickel, West Coast Transmission, Hiram Walker, Consolidated Bathurst, Brascan, Noranda and Central Del Rio. Banks were firm.

Money Squeeze Eased, Rates Dip

OTTAWA (CP) — Pressure on the Canadian money market eased this week and rates for short-term cash dipped to the lowest point since mid-summer.

Weekly statistics issued Thursday night by the Bank of Canada show commercial banks with more ready money on hand after a squeeze position which forced a record borrowing of $42 million from the central bank last week.

The rare drawing from the government bank, shown as repaid in this week's statement, had Bank of Canada officials wondring whether the chartered banks were testing to see how far they could push their emergency right to borrow in a cash-shy situation.

Strong Evidence of Oil Seen In Geology of Atlantic Area

TORONTO (CP) — There is strong evidence of big oil deposits on land and off the shore of the Maritime provinces, a geologist of the Calgary-based French Petroleum Co of Canada Ltd. said Thursday.

Denny E. Duff, speaking at the annual meeting of the Ontario Petroleum Institute, said there is ample evidence in the Maritimes of a geological formation "which will undoubtedly form reservoirs of petroleum."

He estimated deposits at about 4,400,000,000 barrels but said the actual amount may be significantly different because oil and gas fields are not distributed in equal amounts or sizes throughout a basin or area.

Mr. Duff said there would be a ready market for any oil that may be found because the Maritimes and Quebec currently import about 575,000 barrels a day.

Shell Canada Ltd. of Toronto already has started drilling offshore, he said. Two other major groups, Amoco Canada Petroleum Co. Ltd. and Imperial Oil Ltd., plan deep tests off Prince Edward Island.

MANITOBA ISSUES DEBENTURES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba has filed a registration statement with the U.S. Securities Exchange Commission in Washington to issue $50,000,000 in debentures in the U.S.

G. A. Clark, of Wood Gundy Securities Ltd., said in an interview Thursday the offering date of the debentures is Nov. 6, 1969, with delivery set for Dec. 5. Interest rate on the issue which will come due Nov. 15, 1994, will be set once the commission has cleared the issue.

The debenture issue will be the first large test of Manitoba's New Democratic Party government's attraction to U.S. investors.

EMPLOYEES REJECT OFFER

Steel Strike Settlement Fails

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP) — The 300 stewards at the Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. plant today rejected a memorandum of agreement signed Thursday by negotiators for the company and Local 1005 of the United Steelworkers Union.

The announcement was made at a mass meeting of union members at Civic Stadium and brought cheers from several thousand production workers.

The 11,500 members of Local 1005, employees of Stelco's Hilton works here, will vote Sunday whether to accept the agreement.

President Ron Tipler of Local 1005 said he was not worried about the stewards' rejection.

"This agreement should be accepted," he told the meeting.

He said the union has enough money to continue the strike but that the agreement is "the best possible" one the workers could get at this time.

The memorandum of agreement was signed Thursday, 78 days after the strike affecting 14,500 employees began.

Details of the agreement were not made public.

The 11,500 men at the Hilton works walked out Aug. 1 when the old contract expired. They were joined by another 3,000 men at fabricating plants in Toronto, Brantford and Gananoque in Ontario and Montreal.

Larry Sefton, director of the union's District 6, said the Stelco agreement "provides for a number of breakthroughs with this company."

"The economic gains . . . represent improvements which will make it possible for our members to maintain a decent standard of living in today's society."

Mr. Sefton, whose territory stretches from the Ontario-Quebec border to the West Coast, had earlier been supervising negotiations with Inco, which has had its operations shut down since July 10.

Talks in the Inco dispute have been suspended indefinitely after repeated failures to reach agreement under Mr. Dickie's mediation.

Inco is the western world's largest supplier of nickel and the strike has been causing severe shortages in Canada, the U.S. and elsewhere.

A number of observers have seen a Stelco settlement as a vital prerequisite to an agreement at Inco, where the Steelworkers have stated they want "the highest basic industrial wage rates in Canada."

Beyond that, the partners are to maintain interest in the copper-molybdenum prospect by spending $85,0000 in two stages up to Aug. 31, 1970.

Imperial Oil

Imperial Oil's $50 million fertilizer plant at Redwater was opened Thursday by Alberta Premier Harry Strom.

The plant, capable of producing about 500,000 tons a year of nitrogenous and phosphatic fertilizers, will employ 250 persons and run on a 24-hours-a-day basis, 365 days a year.

By establishing in the town 45 miles northeast of Edmonton, Imperial took advantage of the federal government's industrial incentive program for designated areas.

NW Industries

Northwest Industries Ltd. and CAE Aircraft Ltd. of Winnipeg and Edmonton have been awarded a $5 million contract to recondition and modify North American Rockwell Sabreliner jet personnel transports for the U.S. air force and navy.

Northwest earlier this year purchased the Air Canada overhaul base at Winnipeg when the national air carrier transferred its Winnipeg maintenance operations to Quebec.

ARCO-Humble

Atlantic Richfield Co. and Humble Oil and Refining Co. Thursday announced start-up of a 1,000-barrel-a-day crude oil topping plant at Prudhoe Bay, Alaska.

The $2 million plant will produce Arctic fuel, a diesel-like product used in heating units and heavy equipment engines. About 5,000 barrels of crude oil will pass through the refining unit each day, with 4,000 barrels of residue pumped back into the producing reservoir.

Northwest Gas

The Northwest Natural Gas Company of Portland reported Thursday net income increased by almost $1 million during the last 12 months over the same period a year ago.

F. F. Hill, president, said net income exceeded $6 million during the period that ended Sept. 30.

Canada Safeway

Canada Safeway Ltd. reports net income of $9.12 million in the nine months ended Sept. 6, down slightly from $9.2 million in the same period of 1968.

The drop was attributed to higher operating costs. Chairman W. J. Kraft of Vancouver said sales increased to $431.28 million from $410.86 million. The figures cover 252 stores.

First National

Net earnings of First National City Corp., of New York, rose 2.2 per cent to $97.66 million during the first nine months of the year.

The corporation reports earnings were held down by increasing cost of money and that interest income had not been adjusted accordingly.

At Sept. 30 total assets, including wholly-owed subsidiaries, amounted to $21.166 billion, up 11.8 per cent, and deposits were up 10.8 per cent to $17.45 billion.

NEW YORK GOES DELIRIOUS MONDAY PROCLAIMED METS' DAY

'Whistling While They Work' Cleaners on the Job

By JIMMY MEILLEUR

NEW YORK (CP) — A sea of paper awaited street cleaners after delirious New Yorkers celebrated far into the night the Mets' sweep of the world championship of baseball in five games against Baltimore Orioles.

And the celebrations are far from over. Mayor John V. Lindsay proclaimed Monday as Mets Day, with a city hall welcome and parade for the team.

The Mets finished off the Orioles 5-3 Thursday to win the World Series four games to one.

"Even better than the astronauts," said Wall Street secretary Eileen Nolan. "It's beautiful. Everything's covered with snow," she said as the tickertape flowed.

"Sanitation men share the joy of the World Series victory," said New York City's sanitation commissioner, Griswold L. Moeller. "Our night shift and task force are prepared to do the job—whistling while they work."

Grandmothers in tennis shoes were out at Shea Stadium embracing anyone they could get their hands on when the Mets made it four straight wins over the Orioles after losing the opener.

When Cleon Jones pulled in Dave Johnson's fly ball to left field for the final out, one 77-year-old widow, recovering from a cancer operation, said:

"My, My They did it! They did it! It's just unbelivable."

Comments of the disgruntled and flabbergasted Baltimore fans generally revolved around the theme of:

"We've been through this before. It only happens in New York, where God is on the side of the angels, the Mets, the Knickerbockers and Joe Namath."

The Knicks eliminated Baltimore in last season's National Basketball Association playoffs and Namath of the pro football Jets wrecked Baltimore Colts in the Super Bowl.

Hyman A. Pressman, the Baltimore comptroller who exchanged poetic predictions of victory with Mayor Lindsay before the Series, provided the defeatist verse:

Let's face it men and pay our debts
The Birds have bowed to the New York Mets.
We'll have to admit it sooner or later,
The Birds are great but the Mets are greater.

Bill WALKER

What else?

For a team which never won anything bigger than ninth place before this year, the New York Mets have done much better than all right. This is particularly so as yesterday afternoon in riotous Shea Stadium, they won the championship of all baseball.

And they hung it on a pretty good ball club. Baltimore Orioles, by all the rules, were considered to be the best balanced club the American League had produced in the last decade. Even in both leagues.

But the Mets were not impressed. Ever. They won the series as most fans hoped they would, not by walking on water alone, but by sound functional baseball; timely, if not surprising hitting, great fielding and fine pitching.

They spotted the Orioles a three-run lead in the final, on two homers, caught them by the same method, and then passed them on a couple of hits, and with only the slightest touch of the witchcraft which they had displayed on occasion earlier.

There was no mystique about their eventual success. In five games, they simply were the better club. They won the last four after losing the first, a feat which strangely but fittingly paralleled their seasonal heroics.

For in winning the National League East, they suddenly popped up in second place in mid-July. They stayed reasonably close until mid-August, and then put away Leo Durocher and the Chicago Cubs in a surprising rush that saw them take over the league lead on Sept. 10 and lock up the pennant, mini-style, on Sept. 24.

And, as they say in the trade, they were pulling away at the finish.

Then faced with the mini-series against Atlanta, the Mets started off as if they were about to be bombed out of existence. But the spirit rose and the first game was won. So were the next two, and the Mets were now representing both halves of the National League.

●

They looked a trifle seedy in dropping the first game to Baltimore. But hadn't the experts said they would, and probably more?

After that, all sorts of things began to happen, most of them to the Mets, and most of them good.

Pitcher Jerry Koosman and the unlikely Al Weis were to combine their talent in the second game, Weis by knocking in the winning run and Koosman with a two-hitter.

Tommy Agee hit a home run and made two sensational catches to provide the history of the third game.

Tom Seaver flashed his 25-game winning style to halt the Orioles in the fourth game.

And "Koos" came back to beat the Birds in the final.

There had been hints earlier that the Mets had been blessed by a supernatural being.

But it wasn't true. It only seemed to be to the Orioles.

For in the second game, which they lost, 2-1, they had the winning runs on base in the ninth, and were stopped cold.

In the third game, 5-0, Agee did his thing, twice.

In the fourth game, 2-1, the voodoo aspect was three-fold.

Ron Swoboda made a sparkling diving catch of a Brooks Robinson line drive that, if missed, could have provided a Baltimore victory.

Elrod Hendricks then hit a ball into the stands which would have done the same. But it was foul by 10 feet.

Then came the lost-in-the sun double by Jerry Grote of the Mets and the bunt that sparked all sorts of controversy. Suffice to say now that Met pinch hitter J. C. Martin ran down the inside of the first base line, got himself hit on the wrist, and the winning run scored all the way from second. For the Mets.

●

Yesterday, and after what had gone before, one couldn't blame Baltimore manager Earl Weaver for believing the slogan "God is on the Mets' side," may have had a smidgeon of truth to it.

For when Frank Robinson was hit with a pitched ball in the Baltimore sixth, the umpire ruled the ball had gone off Robinson's bat. Robinson said otherwise, and so did Weaver. They lost.

Then in the Met sixth, Cleon Jones claimed he was hit on the foot with a Dave McNalley pitch. Umpire Lou DiMuro said no. But Met manager Gil Hodges produced the baseball, pointed out a spot of shoe polish and DiMuro awarded Jones first base.

The Mets were not averse to accepting anything, and first baseman Donn Clendenon, later adjudged the series star, promptly hit a McNally pitch out of the park to prove the point and bring the Mets from behind a 3-0 deficit to 3-2

Then Weis, who now has hit all of six homers in his baseball life, spanked another into the stands, in the seventh, and the Mets had come up even. Weis was later to admit that McNally was his personal patsy. He had hit one off him previously.

The Mets played it legitimately in getting the go-ahead run in the eighth. Jones doubled off the wall, and Swoboda followed with another to do the damage.

●

But just to be on the safe side, the Mets appealed to providence to make it certain.

When Jerry Grote smashed a hard drive to first, Boog Powell knocked the ball down, but couldn't make the play himself. Pitcher Eddie Watt was mesmerized for the moment, and when he finally got to first, Charles already had arrived and Swoboda was still coming for home, all the way from second.

The official scorer was not amused at the futility of the Orioles and charged a double error on the play, one to each.

That was it. Game over. Series over. Mets champions.

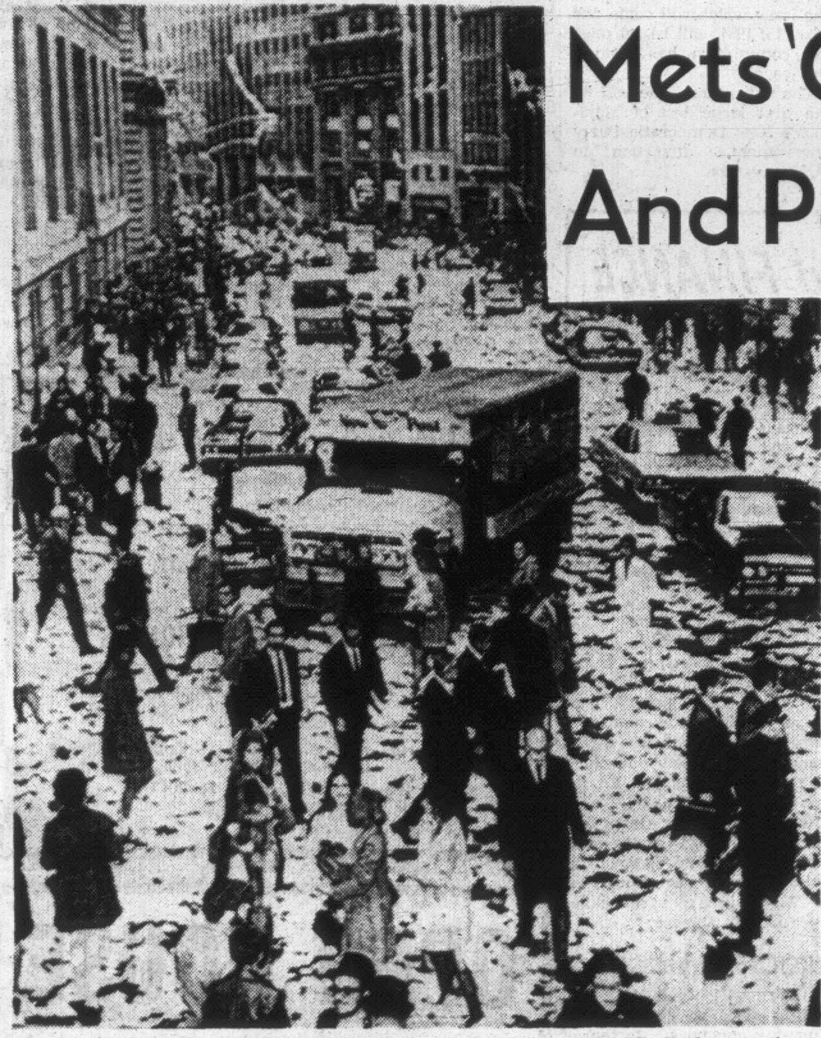
The crowd detoration at the finish? That was something else again.

There is much more to be said for the Mets, and it undoubtedly will, elsewhere on these pages today, and later on.

But for the Orioles it was a crushing blow, and an exercise in frustration, even though it seemed that nobody wanted them to win anyway.

And the sign that flashed in the stands when Swoboda hit his game and series-winning double in the eighth told all:

"Bye, Bye, Birdies."



WALL-TO-WALL STREET PAPER was the carpet as New Yorkers celebrate on paper-littered Wall Street after their Mets took clinching game Thursday in World Series against Baltimore Orioles. Paper storms fell in several parts of city after amazing Mets reached baseball pinnacle.

Mets Didn't Need Gremlins

BALTIMORE (AP) — The World Series dream of Baltimore Orioles turned into a nightmare.

"Even in a nightmare you couldn't dream up the things that happened to us," Baltimore outfielder Frank Robinson said Thursday. "Hollywood wouldn't believe it, either."

New York Mets checked Baltimore rallies with their gloves as they won the World Series with four consecutive victories after losing the opener.

"We hit so many shots," Dave Johnson sighed.

"You can't beat magic," reserve outfielder Curt Motton said, echoing the oft-repeated description of the Mets, who overcame 100-1 preseason odds and won everything in sight.

Manager Earl Weaver of the Orioles, who won the American League pennant in his first full season as a major league skipper, disagreed.

CREDITS PITCHING

"The Mets aren't lucky and they don't need gremlins to win," he said. "No other pitching staff contained us as well during the year."

The Orioles, who compiled a .265 team batting average while winning 109 regular season games, hit .146 in the Series and scored only nine runs on 23 hits. Three of the runs were batted in by pitchers.

"We won all those games, but we didn't win the one which counted," Frank Robinson said.

"I still feel we have the best club, position by position, but the Mets have a fine team. This is proof of what can happen in a short series."

A crowd of 4,000 which welcomed the Orioles home at Friendship International Airport Thursday night carried signs which proclaimed: "We're still No. 1," "Win or lose, Orioles we love you," and "You're still No. 1 with us."

"We're going to win the pennant again next year," Weaver said. "I didn't make that kind of prediction for 1969, but I am now for next year. And, I hope the Mets win again. We'd like another shot at them."

NO APPEAL SAYS KUHN

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Bowie Kuhn Thursday ruled there could be no appeal but the battered Baltimore Orioles and baseball still seethed over the play that gave New York Mets a 2-1 victory in Wednesday's fourth World Series game.

"The game is official and that is that," said Kuhn. "This is a judgment play.

"There is no appeal. The game is over. Nothing can be done about it."

* * *

The ball careened off Martin's wrist and bounced toward second base. Pinch-runner Rod Gaspar scored the winning run from second base, giving the Mets a 10th-inning victory.

"It's a judgment play—just like calling a ball and strike," said Earl Weaver, Baltimore manager.

"It's the plate umpire's call," Weaver said with a touch of bitterness. "It takes a lot of guts to call it, but Martin appeared out of the box."

No reason for the decision was stated.

Mets 'Go All the Way, Baby' And Pearl Has Powder Puff

By MIKE RATHET

NEW YORK (AP) — It was exactly 43 minutes after New York Mets won their first World Series of baseball when Broadway star Pearl Bailey accepted a kiss on the cheek from manager Gil Hodges in his quarters under Shea Stadium and, waving a hunk of sod uprooted from the field, said with a broad grin:

"This is my powder puff now."

Then she pointed to her cheek and daintily patted it with the sod, exclaiming:

"Look, a miracle. No wrinkles."

The little incident in the crowded manager's room Thursday was no more important than the call Mrs. Joan Payson, the Mets' owner, received from President Nixon, nor the congratulations Hodges received from Shea's other tenants, the football Jets, through coach Weeb Ewbank.

But for symbolism Miss Bailey's gesture may have been the most appropriate.

The Mets' miracle began Aug. 13 when they were 9½ games behind Chicago Cubs in the battle for the National League East title and it was completed Thursday, Oct. 16, at 3:17 p.m., EDT., when the Mets won their first world championship with a 5-3 victory over Baltimore in the fifth game of the World Series.

It ended with Baltimore second baseman Dave Johnson lifting a soft fly to left fielder Cleon Jones while the fans stormed out of the stands onto the field chanting "We're No. 1, We're No. 1" while foraging for souvenirs.

They tore home plate from its moorings, scooped up the other bases, took sections of the outfield fences, ripped up hunks of sod, set off orange colored fire bombs and hoisted an improvised plastic banner on the centre field flag pole that said: "We went all the way, baby!"

That the Mets did. But was it a miracle?

"I don't think we're a Cinderella team," said Hodges. "We're professionals. We do things right."

"It's wrong to say they're lucky and have gremlins going for them," said Baltimore manager Earl Weaver. "They're a good ball club."

That doesn't sound like a miracle.

"They got all the breaks and we got none," said Baltimore owner Jerry Hoffberger. "My guys gave 120 per cent. I still think we have the better team."

"The Mets," said baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn, "beat the best damn ball club in sight."

Shoe Polish Played Part in Victory

That sounds like a miracle. Whether it was will be debated through the years as the 1969 World Series, which took place during baseball's 100th anniversary season, is embellished by time and the story-tellers.

It began with an opening game loss to the Orioles last Saturday in Baltimore. But that was all. The time had come for the heroes to surface.

In the second game, it was Jerry Koosman firing a two-hitter and Al Weis collecting the winning hit while Ed Charles made the key fielding play. In the third game, it was Tommy Agee making two spectacular catches and Gary Gentry and Nolan Ryan combining on a shutout. In the fourth game, it was Tom Seaver pitching all the way, Ron Swoboda making a great catch and J. C. Martin getting hit on the wrist by a thrown ball at the right time.

And, in the fifth game Thursday, it was Koosman again, Swoboda and Hodges, and a baseball with shoe polish on it.

The Orioles had built a 3-0 lead on a two-run homer by pitcher Dave McNally and a solo homer by Frank Robinson in the third inning before the shoe polish intervened in the sixth inning.

THROWS TOWARD FEET

Cleon Jones was the hitter when McNally threw a pitch down at his feet, the ball kicking away into the Mets' dugout.

Plate umpire Lou DiMuro at first thought the ball had not hit Jones and did not allow him to take first.

"Jerry Grote was sitting on the bench and he caught the ball," said Hodges. "I was going up to talk to the umpire and Grote tossed the ball to me and said to show him the shoe polish on it. I did, and after DiMuro thought about it he realized there was shoe polish on the ball."

And so Jones was awarded first base.

"There's your turning point," said Hodges. "If the ball goes into their dugout instead of ours, we never see it again."

It was the turning point because Donn Clendenon, the next batter, slammed a home run and the Mets were back in the ball game. Weis tied it an inning later with another homer, and the Mets put it away with two runs in the eighth.

President Nixon saw all that and he saw the top half of the ninth when the Orioles went down 1-2-3 after Frank Robinson opened with a walk.

Then he placed his call to Mrs. Payson.

"I watched the last two innings," the president told Mrs. Payson.

"Those were the two innings to watch," she replied.

GREEN, MAKI SUSPENDED BY CAMPBELL

MONTREAL (CP) — President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League today handed out stiff suspensions and $300 fines to Wayne Maki of St. Louis Blues and Ted Green, Boston Bruins defenceman, for their stick-swinging incident Sept. 21 in Ottawa.

Maki, now with Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League, has been suspended for 30 days, effective immediately.

Green's suspension is for the first 13 league or playoff games of his club—approximately 30 days—after he has been declared physically and medically fit to play again "by competent medical authorities to be designated by the president."

Green, 29, was sent to Ottawa General Hospital with a fractured skull as the result of Maki's blow in the Sept. 21 exhibition game between St. Louis and Boston. He required further surgery Sept. 27.

The Bruin defenceman was released from hospital Tuesday,

Canuck Goalie Earns Shutout Over Totems

SEATTLE (AP) — Vancouver goalie George Gardner blocked 22 shots Thursday night to earn the first shutout of the young Western Hockey League season as the Canucks blanked Seattle Totems 4-0.

All the scoring came in the first two periods as Canucks put the pressure on Seattle netminder Bob Taylor, who replaced the ailing Don Head.

Germain Gagnon got Vancouver on the victory trail early in the first period when he deflected a shot by Marc Reaume into the Seattle net. Late in the stanza Taylor charged Paul Andrea and as Andrea started to slip to the ice, the puck slid off his stick past the Seattle goalie.

Just 47 seconds later, Andy Bathgate took a pass from Bob Lemieux and banged home a 10-footer.

Lack of Snow Halts Skiers

MONTREAL (CP) — Fourteen members of Canada's men's alpine ski team, scheduled to leave for practice sessions in Europe Thursday, have had their departure delayed until Nov. 1.

Al Raine, head coach, said the team was "very tired" after a one-month, dry land training session at Banff, and that snow conditions in various parts of Europe had forced a change of plans.

Raine said the team hopes for early snow at Labrador City, Nfld., in order that it can train there prior to the Nov. 1 departure date for Europe.

Labrador City is the scene of the 1970 Canadian championships on March 21-22.

AUSSIE PRO TRIES HAND AS BUILDER

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — Australian golfer Bruce Devlin has signed a contract to design a $2,000,000 golf course a quarter of a mile from President Nixon's Florida retreat.

Dade County decided to build the course and has commissioned the golf architect company of Von Hagge-Devlin Inc., of which the Australian professional is joint owner.

The course will be built on the island of Key Biscayne, of Florida where Nixon has a holiday retreat. Construction will start Jan. 8.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Road racing star Dan Gurney broke with Ford Thursday and announced he will head a team of Plymouth Barracudas on the Sports Car Club of America's Trans-American circuit next season.

Gurney said he will drive a Plymouth Road Runner in the January 400-mile NASCAR Grand National race at Riverside, Calif., where he has won four times in six years in Fords.

Victoria Cougars may be without the services of Shayne Webster and Pat Askew when they resume B.C. Junior Hockey League activities Saturday in Memorial Arena.

Cats are scheduled to take on Kamloops Rockets starting at 8:30 p.m.

Webster is suffering bruised ribs and Askew has strained knee ligaments as a result of last Saturday's game in Vernon.

Greg Robinson came down with a bout of flu Thursday night but should be able to dress for Saturday's contest.

Despite a 4-2 victory for Cougars over Rockets last Sunday in Kamloops, coach Doug Anderson rates them as the team Victoria must watch out for this season while defending the league title.

"They're a big, young and hard-hitting club," said Anderson, "I'll pick them ahead of Vernon (Essos) as the team to beat."

KNUDSON NEAR LEADER AFTER RECORD EFFORT

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Canadian George Knudson set a record seven-under-par 66 today to move into second place behind Australian Bob Stanton after the second round of the Wills Masters golf tournament. The Toronto golfer totalled 138.

Stanton, 23, was one stroke in the clear after his second-round 69, which gave him a total of 137 in the $22,400 tournament at the Victoria Golf Club. Knudson had a 72 Thursday.

Knudson was four strokes ahead of Maurice Bembridge of Britain, Lu Liang Huam of Formosa, Sukree Onchum of Thailand and Bruce Devlin of Australia, all with 142.

American star Billy Casper slumped with a 76 for a total 146.

Vandals Hit Island Caves, Logging Gear

By STEWART LANG

Some hunters in the Sooke area continue to endanger hard-earned access privileges with brainless vandalism.

The damage toll has risen sharply since last mentioned on these pages two weeks ago—when it consisted of a broken lock and pulled up stakes on a silviculture plot.

Now these abuses have increased to such and extent in both frequency and variety as to warrent further comment.

Near Jordan River, one logging company in the Sooke Combined Fire Organization is missing a 45-gallon drum of gas and five two-gallon gas tins.

In the Sooke River area, another company had a grader window broken and yet another outfit is missing a barrel of diesel oil.

Other complaints involve the strewing of garbage in two operations—the work probably, not only of hunters but also area residents.

A slightly more serious danger was observed when several cars invaded company roads during working hours. One even had the audacity to refuse to leave when asked to do so.

Monty Mosure, who receives all complaints by companies with the SCFO, warned: "in the future we just might have to remove their vehicles and turn them over to the RCMP."

The majority of hunters that use these lands safely and wisely might do well to remember that the ill-considered actions of a few endanger access privileges for all.

With the absence of gate checks in the area, a little self-policing might be in order.

* * *

Along the same vein . . . One ceases to wonder at the actions of some Victoria members of the Canadian Speleological Society in keeping the location of those new caves secret after touring the well-known Horne Lake caverns.

It became immediately apparent that these caves have suffered irreparable damage at the hands of visitors, who have packed off chunks of various limestone formations by the cartload.

Around the edges of various cavities where stalactites and stalagmites had required centuries to grow, there are now only rough-edged patches where each tapered projection was snapped off its base.

Why the visitors believed those souvenirs might look better in their living rooms rather than left for others to enjoy, one can never know.

As far as salmon fishing prospects for the weekend go, the following areas have been producing well during the past week: Saanich Inlet, Oak Bay, Pedder Bay and Otter Point.

In up-Island waters, fishermen have been reporting brisk action on Buzz Bombs from Northwest Bay, French Creek, Deep Bay, Bowser, Comox Bar and Campbell River.

Gadsby Fired . . . Like That!

By CHARLES SVOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Detroit Red Wings lost a coach and a hockey game Thursday night with the 53rd National Hockey League season just six days old.

"Let's call it a game plan that went astray," said Red Wings president Bruce Norris after the announced firing of coach Bill Gadsby.

The press release announcing Gadsby's departure came before the match at Detroit and appeared to send another game plan astray as the Red Wings dropped a 3-2 decision to Minnesota North Stars in Thursday's only scheduled encounter.

General manager Sid Abel coached the Wings.

"We felt we weren't communicating as well as we should," Norris told a news conference after the game.

"We felt we needed a change for the club. I don't want to end up in the situation we were in last year when we had a chance to do something and we didn't."

Gadsby, 42, hired as Detroit coach June 3, 1968, said before the game he didn't know why he was fired.

FIRING A SURPRISE

"I just got the notice an hour ago and I still don't know what's going on. It was a real blow. It really was. I thought we were going to have a hell of a year. I thought everything was great."

After finishing fifth in the Eastern Division last season with 33 wins, 31 losses and 12 ties, the Red Wings started this season with victories in their first two tsarts.

"This is the first time a coach has been fired who is batting a thousand," said Gadsby, who was only the sixth coach in the Wings' history. "But I guess it's just a cold cruel world."

The veteran of 20 years as a player in the NHL told reporters: "I'm still in shock. It'll take a couple of days before I make an official statement."

Sanders Fighting To Retain Status

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Arnold Palmer is back, and Doug Sanders vows he'll be back.

"I'm not giving up," Sanders said Thursday after shooting a six-under-par 65 for the first round lead in the $100,000 Sahara Invitational golf tournament.

"If I don't improve," he noted, "I'm going to have to be out there in those Monday qualifying rounds, and I don't think I'd like that."

Sanders, 36, hasn't won since 1967. He has made only $20,720 on the tour this year and is in danger of losing his exempt status

MEDIOCRE ROUND

He held a one-stroke lead over three longshots—rookies Ted Hayes Jr. and Bob Menne and teaching professional Ed Merrin—going into today's second round, with Palmer still very much in contention.

Palmer, out of action since an arthritic right hip forced him off the tour during the PGA national championship more than two months ago, scored 69.

"It was a pretty mediocre round," Palmer, 40, said. "I hit some good tee shots and some bad ones. My irons still leave a lot to be desired, but they may come around."

Don January and Bob Rosburg were both at 68, with Orville Moody, Jack Nicklaus, Bob Goalby and defending champion Chi Chi Rodriguez in a big crowd at 69.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg scored a one-over-par 38-34—72 and Bob Panasiuk finished one stroke back at 38-35—73.

Bruins Send Unsigned Pact To Ted Green

BOSTON—Ted Green has been mailed the three-year contract he hadn't signed when he suffered a fractured skull in a stick-swinging incident during a pre-season National Hockey League game against St. Louis Blues on Sept. 20.

The announcement was made Thursday by Weston W. Adams, president of the Boston Bruins.

"I feel," Adams said, that this action on my part is plainly and simply a proper and honorable thing to do."

Green, who will at least miss this season, was a holdout at the start of last season although he then still owed the Bruins the second season of a two-season contract.

He felt that he deserved more money because of an excellent 1967-68 season but Alan Eagleson, the Toronto attorney who represents a number of NHL players as well as being counsel for the NHL Players Association, advised him to honor his contract.

Green played well again last season but he had another lawyer to help him in his negotiations this season.

RICH CONTRACT

It was reported that Green's new attorney had arranged an unprecedented three-year contract for Green which guaranteed payment of his salary, said to be about $75,000, even if Green was unable to play because of illness or injury.

However, Green had not yet signed the contract when he and Wayne Maki got into the hassle which hospitalized the Boston defenceman. Legally, the Boston club don't owe Green a cent. But Adams felt there was a moral obligation.

"When Teddy was injured he was actually playing under last year's contract, which would have expired Sept. 30," Adams said.

"He had not signed his contract for the coming season. However, regardless of any legal technicalities, Teddy and the Bruins had pretty much agreed to terms."

Dapedo Rally Set Sunday

Victoria Motor Sports Club will hold its annual Dapedo Rally over a 185-mile course on Sunday.

Registration of vehicles and drivers starts at 8:30 a.m. in the Mayfair Shopping Centre with the first car to start at 9:30.

The route includes approximately 74 miles of gravel roads.

Further information may be obtained by telephoning Larry Lowden at 384-9140 or 388-2317.

Inouye was to leave Victoria this morning to join the 10-man team on its way to Mexico.

Among the hierarchy in judo, Inouye holds a fourth-degree black belt.

Three members of the national team come from B.C.—Hank Mukai and Ricky Yodogawa, both of Steveston, and Charles Maignon of the University of British Columbia.

AROUND OUR SHORES

A Boost for Youth

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

In any competition, sporting or otherwise, it is always satisfying to record a victory for the hometown team. In sailing competitions, as in in many other fields, it is the teenagers that carry the hopes of the future. And over the past few months our yachting "juniors" have acquitted themselves particularly well in inter-city competition against some very talented senior entries.

Hewett

For this reason, the forthcoming visit of Toronto's Philip Goodfellow, chairman of the Canadian Yachting Association, and National Youth Sailing co-ordinator, will be of vital interest to all who are connected with, or even interested in any phase of the youth sailing programs.

Goodfellow will discuss all aspects of the CYA youth programs, which are uniform across Canada, at the Royal Victoria Yacht Club on Oct. 25 at 8 p.m. This will include films, comments on improvements, and suggestions to make the program even more effective.

Junior advisors, instructors, parents, and any interested yachtsmen from clubs up island as well as the Victoria area, are especially invited to attend.

Also on the weekend of Oct. 25, Corinthian Yacht Club's open regatta to celebrate a new clubhouse will probably be the largest competition ever sailed in Puget Sound waters. The modernistic clubhouse on Seattle's Shilshole Bay incorporates a relatively new feature for this area: it will float on pontoons. All PIYA sailors are invited to participate, but registrations must be sent in ahead of time to the club committee.

* * *

Closer to home, this weekend marks the opening of the Frostbite competitions for small-boat sailors.

Royal Victoria Yacht Club kicks off Saturday with the traditional dinghy sailpast in Cadboro Bay, to be followed by the first races of this fall season.

Royal Canadian Naval Sailing Association will run two fall series, on alternate weekends, commencing this Sunday.

The Elk Lake Sailing Association's open house is scheduled Saturday at 1 p.m. at Eagle Park. All visitors, guests, and participants are reminded to bring LIFE JACKETS (as well as kids, wives, rowboats, sailboats, sandwiches, etc.).

A progress report on ELSA will be presented to the membership and all interested boaters on Oct. 22, at 8 p.m. The meeting place is Royal Canadian Naval Sailing, the constitution will be presented and a new executive elected.

Make a note of these two ELSA functions, and come, if you are interested in small boat recreation. This new venture welcomes your support—and your membership.

New Rivals For O'Keefes

Victoria O'Keefes face the first of their two interlocking matches Saturday at 2 p.m. in Royal Athletic Park as the Pacific Coast Soccer League club tangles with Lobbans of the Mainland League.

Other PCSL squads are also committed to play a series of interlocking matches throughout the season with clubs from the lower Mainland and Victoria leagues.

Coach Frank Grealy plans to start veteran Jim Menzies as a striker with Peter Brett in their 3-3-4 formation.

Peter Wilson and Bob Bolitho will start on the wings while link men will be Brian Robinson, Ron Thompson and Mark Robb.

Goalie Barry Saddler will have fullbacks Howie Anderson and Gil McIlraith and centre-half Peter Robarts as his last line of defence.

A lot more than just anti-freeze.

If you think all brands of anti-freeze are the same, you've been taken for a ride.

"Prestone" Anti-Freeze Coolant is the only brand that gives you exclusive Magnetic Film—a complete engine coating of rust and corrosion inhibitors.

With "Prestone" you get total protection against rust up and freeze up—and you know it.

Always ask for "Prestone" Anti-Freeze Coolant by name wherever you see the large "Prestone" sales centre sign.

Vital but Different Functions Filled by Language Specialists

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

Talk to a translator at the Colombo Plan conference and then to an interpreter and you find their work is entirely different. One concentrates on what is seen on a written page and the other on what is heard as delegates speak.

I was well briefed on these facts when I met Adeline Moravia and Monique Cheng, both on loan from the translation bureau of the secretary of state in Ottawa.

Mrs. Moravia translates from French into English and from English into French (mostly the latter).

It's written work. There's time to stop and think about the correct word, phrase or sentence. Also time, she tells you, to check references and quotes. And, if the subject matter is not familiar, there is occasionally time to go to a reference library and learn a little about it before doing the translating.

Interpreting, on the other hand, has nothing to do with the written word.

It's a matter of listening, making a quick assessment of the meaning of what is heard and then changing into another tongue, through the spoken word.

The interpreter must have a good command of both the language she hears and the one she uses. She depends to a degree on the sound and quality of the voice to which she listens, the speed at which that voice speaks and the terms used.

"I concentrate very hard," Monique Cheng told me. She thinks fast too, for in the simultaneous interpreting at which she is adept, she must turn English words and sentences into French (and sometimes French into English) within seconds after they are said.

This type of concentration leaves her with a clear memory of the speaker's sentences but not of her own.

"Later, if I hear a tape recording I am sometimes surprised at my own words," she tells you.

Mrs. Cheng insists that "the more you work at simultaneous interpreting, the more you learn." Then she shrugs her pretty shoulders and adds "it's the only job I know that pays a woman to talk."

A French-Canadian born in Ottawa, Monique belongs to a family of translators and interpreters that includes father and brother.

* * *

She attended the University of Ottawa where she met her husband John Cheng, a Chinese chemical engineer. They now have three children (a son and two daughters) and what Monique says is "a jewel of a Chinese maid from Hong Kong" who makes it possible for her to take assignments like the present one here.

When she first started with the department of external affairs she did translating, then took further training and now does simultaneous interpreting in the House.

"It's nerve-wracking at times but so very exciting," she says. "You're right in the middle of everything and you're meeting the people who direct the affairs of the country."

This is her second time with the Colombo Plan. The first was in Burma when it met there in 1968.

Mrs. Moravia, who has the title of translations officer, was born in Haiti, into a family with a tradition of bilingualism for three generations before her and that is now being continued through her two sons and two grandsons.

She has a knowledge of German and Spanish "rather rusty," also of Italian, and she speaks "Creole," a dialect which developed in 17th century French colonies and is still spoken in Haiti.

During her grown-up life she has lived in six different countries, the last eight years in Canada.

At first she taught English and French in Montreal where her sons and their families live. Then, in 1967, she joined the federal translations bureau. Today, she lives in Ottawa "but commutes every weekend to Montreal to see my grandsons."

She tells you proudly that she is now a Canadian citizen. Also that Moravia is her maiden name, used as do all divorcees according to French and Haitian usage and law.

FLUENTLY bilingual specialists working here during the Colombo Plan Conference include Monique Cheng (left), one of two women among the five interpreters, and Adeline Moravia, the only female translator. French and English are their principal languages, but both have knowledge of additional languages as well. Interpreters deal with the spoken work, while translators specialize in written language.

She also likes it understood that she is not related to the Italian writer Alberto Moravia "whose real name is actually Pincherle."

Adeline Moravia believes implicitly in bilingualism. Also that "to have it you must keep both languages alive every step of the way."

This can be accomplished, she says "by using at home the language not spoken outside and by establishing early reading habits in both languages."

Television, she thinks, is "a great help" to the present generation (her grandsons).

Salvation Army Paper 'Put Out for Sinners'

Many traditionalists were startled when a picture of Brigitte Bardot appeared on the front page of The War Cry—the Salvation Army's famous newspaper.

But it was only a head-and-shoulder picture and the caption underneath said: "Brigitte Bardot is not a sex symbol; she's a woman."

"That's the kind of message we're trying to put over," said Lt. Col. Eric Coward, editor of The War Cry in Canada.

"We're putting out a paper for sinners, not saints, and our job is to capture attention and hold it."

So far, the War Cry has captured 76,000 "sinners" in Canada and its world circulation is approaching 2,000,000.

In Victoria Thursday, Col. Coward said he is touring Canada to learn more of what his readers want.

"I talk to people everywhere and sometimes I go into pubs. After all, we've been selling The War Cry in pubs for generations. They're regular customers and we should find out what they like most."

Spy Activity Grows Among Civil Servants

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP — The average Canadian public servant probably can't imagine foreign powers being interested in him or his work, despite plenty of evidence to the contrary.

The royal commission on security, in its report made public this year, said the risk of espionage and subversion in the current period of East-West relations is higher than ever, despite somewhat reduced friction.

As the commission was formed in 1966, Mounties were closing in on Bower Featherstone, $6,000-a-year employee at the energy, mines and resources department—who could be considered the most average of public employees.

Featherstone was sent to prison in 1967 for 30 months for obtaining copies of two confidential marine charts that could have been of use to Soviet submarines.

The charts showed the location of shipwrecks off the coast of Newfoundland.

NEVER GOT CHANCE

Featherstone never got a chance to turn them over to the Russians. RCMP security men, who had been watching him, moved in too fast.

The court was told at his trial that the father of four had been offered a chance to make money as a Russian courier.

The Featherstone case resulted in the expulsion from Canada of two Russians. The summary departure of at least eight others since 1956 has marked other attempts at subversion.

Mr. Justice Dalton C. Wells, after a judicial inquiry into the George Victor Spencer case, said requirements for anti-espionage work in Canada are "more widespread and urgent than one would normally at first believe possible."

Spencer, a Vancouver postal clerk, first met Soviet agents in 1960 and for three years turned over information which Mr. Justice Wells said "laid the foundation for the establishment of an intlligence 'net' in British Columbia."

TWO MORE EXPELLED

Spencer informed the agents of security arrangements in the post office, supplied information on some farms located close to the United States border, and gathered photos of Vancouver, pipeline maps, names of reliable former members of the Communist party, biographical data from cemetery headstones, and data on the operation of ethnic organizations.

Two Soviet diplomats were expelled in the Spencer case. Spencer was fired and his pension rights withdrawn but the government said there wasn't enough evidence to prosecute. Spencer subsequently died.

Prosecution in security cases is rare. The Official Secrets Act of 1939, written in the glare of war, isn't an easy statute to apply in peacetime.

In a recent case in Montreal, a judge dismissed a charge laid under it, saying the act was contrary to the Bill of Rights.

Security men prefer to stay out of court anyway—witness CIA handling of the Green Berets assassination case in Vietnam. The emphasis in Canada is on prevention rather than punishment.

FIRST SINCE 1945

The Featherstone case was unusual in that it marked the first conviction under the Official Secrets Act since Igor Gouzenko's 1945 defection from the Soviet embassy launched about 20 espionage trials and a dozen convictions.

Wartime officers, government employees, academics, scientists and one member of Parliament—Fred Rose, Labor-Progressive MP for Montreal Cartier—were brought to court by the Gouzenko revelations to a 1946 royal commission.

Emphasis Placed On Prevention, Not Prosecution

One major effect of the Gouzenko affair was the withdrawal of ambassadors by Canada and the Soviet Union for about eight years. When diplomatic relations were re-established on a normal basis, so were attempts at subversion.

In 1956, Soviet embassy official G. F. Popov was expelled for trying to obtain information about new aircraft. The person he approached told the RCMP.

In 1958, Stanislas Michno of the Polish embassy was booted out of Canada for trying to make intelligence contacts.

An unnamed Soviet military attache was ousted in 1959 for the same reason, as was a Czech in 1960.

Lt.-Col. A. F. Loginov cultivated a civil servant for months, only to be trapped by RCMP in 1961 when receiving fake documents he thought contained secret data.

SOME GET AWAY

Vasily Tarasov, a reporter on Parliament Hill for the Soviet newspaper Izvestia, was caught in a police plant by a civil servant in 1964.

What about the ones that got away? Agents turn up all over the world using fake Canadian passports. The passport data comes from the kind of detail Spencer got from old city photos and cemetery headstones.

Most worrisome is the possibility that a high-level agent exists within the Canadian system, such as Kim Philby, the top British intelligence man who turned out to be a Communist. Philby fled to Moscow as the net closed in.

The RCMP security and intelligence directorate, known as S and I, draws most of its counter-espionage agents from the ranks after careful observation. The word from Communist agents who have defected to the West is that the RCMP hasn't been penetrated.

This integrity may have been the key to government rejection of the royal commission's proposal that a civilian security service be formed to replace the RCMP's S and I. A top RCMP officer says this would be "absolutely lethal" and open the way to foreign infiltration.

DIPLOMAT APPOINTED

However, the government has appointed diplomat John Kennett Starnes as director-general of S and I effective Jan. 1.

Mr. Starnes has been Canadian ambassador to West Germany and Egypt. He was a military intelligence officer during the Second World War and later ran the external affairs department's security and intelligence liaison division.

"It's just like any other job —a difficult, painstaking matter of piecing things together," Mr. Starnes says of counter-espionage.

"It isn't that sexy."

Two Given Awards

A promising 13-year-old pianist and a scholar-athlete have been chosen as $250 scholarship winners by Victoria city council's finance committee.

Wendy Stofer, of 1677 Christmas St. will be awarded the McPherson Scholarship. She was chosen by the Music Scholarship Audition Committee of the Victoria Conservatory of Music.

David Broadlands, who received 91.5 per cent in June departmental examinations at Mount Douglas Senior Secondary School will receive the Andy Hebénton Scholarship.

DRUG ABUSE GROWS IN S. AFRICA

PRETORIA (Reuters) — The South African government is investigating a widespread increase in drug-taking among white teen-agers.

Drug-taking is not new in South Africa, where thousands of Africans smoke marijuana as part of normal life. But, in the last year, social and medical authorities have warned of a marked increase in drug abuses by all sections of society, particularly by white teen-agers.

Most authorities agree the country is comparatively free of the menace of hard drugs such as heroin, cocaine and morphine. It is the amphetamine type, and marijuana, which is catching on rapidly with pleasure-loving young whites and led to the appointment of a government committee of inquiry.

The committee will probe the types of drugs being used, who is using them, their effect and preventive and control measures.

One mystery social and medical workers hope the inquiry will clear up is exactly where the drugs—apart from home-grown marijuana—are coming from.

A sociology professor making his own study suggested the supply has shot up dramatically because of the vastly increased number of ships calling at Durban, the country's biggest port, since the Suez canal closed two years ago.

So big is the marijuana business that there have been cases of gangs using combine harvesters to garner their profitable crop.

Pollution End, Goal of Society

Some 100 persons met Wednesday at the University of Victoria to form a steering committee here for the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control (SPEC).

Similar groups have already formed at Kamloops, Powell River and Smithers, taking their cue from the parent organization which was formed last January in Vancouver.

David Swanson, spokesman for the Victoria group and a fourth-year Uvic sociology student, said the group's first objective will be to identify major pollution problems in the capital region.

He said membership was representative of a cross-section of the population.

Mrs. Shirley Swift, a Coquitlam real estate saleswoman, told how the Vancouver group was formed. She said as a result of an open-line radio show, interested citizens decided to act to solve local pollution problems.

PROJECTS

Since the beginning of the year, SPEC has undertaken a number of projects: measurement of noise, coliform count on Vancouver beaches, representations to various municipalities asking that DDT no longer be used, and investigation of industrial pollution.

Through the news media and speaking engagements in schools SPEC attempts to inform the public on various pollution practices.

Mrs. Swift said so far the group has been financed through membership fees, but will attempt to get grants from municipal and provincial governments.

One of its future aims is establishment of a technical information centre to serve the public.

"The problem here is that we get so many calls from people who want information," she said.

Other SPEC objectives include:

- Liaison with anti-pollution groups in Canada and the United States;
- Purchase of equipment for sampling air and water and for noise analysis;
- A campaign to bring practical specialists such as architects, engineers, doctors, sociologists, economists, geographers and lawyers into the core of SPEC.

Labor To Support Tenants

The recently-formed Victoria Tenants Association will get support from the Victoria Labor Council, which Wednesday decided to send a delegate to the group's next meeting Tuesday in South Park School.

Council secretary Larry Ryan, who sat in on the organizational meeting, was appointed to attend.

Vice-president John Schibli said he felt labor should be deeply involved in the association, not only for the sake of many who are unable to speak for themselves and are the implied victims of high rents, poor accommodation or lack of it, "but for our own interests as well."

He said that in a matter of a few years most people will be renters, with only the wealthy able to own their own homes.

The subject drew some debate, including opposition from transit driver's delegate Ashley O'Connell, who said he and his wife had been landlords for 10 years.

He said he had been forced to raise rents because of cost of maintaining property, including high taxes and a business licence, though he recognized that some tenants are unable to cope with current rents.

ABDUCTION SUSPECT REMANDED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Douglas Patrick Shaben, 42, of North Vancouver, was remanded in custody Thursday for a week on four charges in the abduction last weekend of two 11-year-old girls.

No bail was sought. Shaben is charged with confining Phyllis Cohen and Kathleen Matheson against their will and holding them for ransom.

Crimes of Violence Record a Decrease

Break-ins and shoplifting incidents may be increasing in Victoria but crimes of violence occur less frequently than three years ago, says Mayor Hugh Stephen.

Stephen, chairman of the police commission, said in the last three years there have only been one or two major crimes of violence.

"Before this crimes of violence were on the increase in Victoria," he said.

"There's no doubt incidents of petty theft and break-ins have increased."

Stephen was commenting at a committee meeting at which Ald. Robert Baird pointed out that break-ins in his area of the city had increased by 15 per cent from 1968.

Stephen said the statistics could be meaningless. He said recently police arrested a young man who admitted to breaking into 60 apartments. "One case like this upsets the statistics," he said.

Fly-by-Night Firms Target

Management and labor in the construction industry have joined forces in an attempt to eliminate fly-by-night contractors working in the Greater Victoria area.

The Amalgamated Construction Association, in conjunction with the Victoria Building Trades Council, is requesting Victoria city council to amend its trades licence bylaw as it applies to contractors, to make it mandatory to post a fidelity bond before a licence is issued.

Discussions between the industry and a special council committee have been in progress for some weeks.

The industry is asking council to amend its bylaw to ban the issuance of building trades licences until the applicant has posted with the city a $2,500 fidelity bond from an approved surety company.

Ed Phillips, executive director of the Victoria branch of ACA, said that management and labor were in full agreement that by making bonding mandatory the general public would receive greater protection.

"The whole purpose of the fidelity bond is to protect the citizens of Victoria from the hazards of unethical business practices," Phillips said.

The construction industry has suggested that bonds should be held for not less than six months after the licensee ceases to hold a trades licence.

Phillips said no bond would be required in the city if the contractor could prove that he had already posted a similar bond in another municipality.

"Neither do we feel a bond essential if a man or company has performed ethically in the city for five years prior to January 1, 1969," Phillips added.

"We are not concerned here with ethical operators. What labor and management are anxious to do is stamp out the unethical operator who each year takes a great toll among our citizens, usually the elderly.

"If they have to post a bond—and that isn't difficult if the man or firm is reputable—we think fly-by-night contractors will quickly disappear from the Victoria scene."

The move has been endorsed by the Better Business Bureau.

ACA has presented a proposed draft of the bylaw amendments to the city for further study.

Crack Spy Ring

SEOUL (AP) — A North Korean spy ring operating in Seoul was smashed and all its 19 members arrested, the South Korean Central Intelligence Agency announced today. Their arrests brought to 38 the number of North Korean espionage agents and South Korean collaborators captured in the last month, the CIA said.

TV Distribution By Microwave Issue at Hearing

By KEVIN DOYLE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Most Canadian television viewers are expected to be profoundly affected by the decisions that follow the intensive three-day public hearings here of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

The hearings, which ended Thursday night, dealt mainly with the import of U.S. television programs by microwave for distribution by cable and the need to permit multiple ownership within the CTV network.

A directive on the use of microwave is expected soon from the regulatory body.

If microwave is permitted, and most broadcasters expect it will be, it would mean that areas far from the international border would be able to receive U.S. programs over a microwave network connected to a cable system.

It would also mean improved signal reception in centres on the fringes of areas that can be served by existing cable arrangements.

MEET OPPOSITION

But the commission was confronted with opposition from broadcasters and station owners in areas not served by cable. They argued that unlimited U.S. competition would drive them out of business.

The CRTC expressed priority for Canadian broadcasting—providing a second Canadian service to as many areas as possible—should be assured before microwave is permitted.

Supporters argue that the use of microwave would make better TV reception possible everywhere and benefit all Canadians as a result.

The arguments emerged during a series of applications for a licence to operate a cable system using microwave in the Kamloops area of B.C.

The decisions on these are expected to set the precedent for future development.

On the issue of ownership in CTV, Baton Broadcasting Ltd., owners of CFTO-TV Toronto, and Bushnell Communications Ltd., owners of CJOH-TV in Ottawa, asked the commission to overthrow a 1966 ruling by its predecessor, the Board of Broadcast Governors.

The BBG regulations states that no one person or company can own shares in more than one of the network's 12 affiliated stations.

CJOH wants permission to buy the broadcasting interests of Canadian Marconi Ltd., including CFCF-TV in Montreal, another CTV affiliate.

Both stations argued that larger interests would enable them to carry out a more intensive production schedule and greatly improve the service.

A possible compromise solution covering the microwave question and the CRTC's desire for a second Canadian service was offered Thursday.

British Columbia Television Broadcasting System Ltd., operators of CHAN-TV in Vancouver and CHEK-TV in Victoria, applied for a licence to set up four re-broadcasting stations in four areas of the B.C. interior using microwave.

If there were no other complications, the proposal would allow both a limited use of microwave and fulfillment of the commission's desire for second service.

Electronic Art Boggles Mind

Spats. Spats and Hmmmnnn and fizzle.

Those are noises. Used to be modern art just sat there or hung there. But the Intermedia show at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria is filled with pieces that hummed, crackled, blinked, winked, dribbled and burst into smoky flames for the 238 persons who attended the show's opening Wednesday night.

The show runs, during regular gallery hours, until Nov. 9.

It was produced by the Vancouver Intermedia group specially for the Victoria exhibition and its spectators found themselves either curious, excited, skeptical or completely bewildered by this "art of the electronic age."

One of the sculptures, or whatever, was not exhibited at the opening. Gary Lee Nova plans to photograph 16 identical cubic foot blocks of ice as they melt then run the film rapidly so the ice seems to vanish.

Electronic art fans will just have to wait to see modern art disappear.

Birth Unexpected

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — A baby was born in a washroom of the Savoy Hotel here Thursday while the father rushed around looking for someone to call an ambulance. Mother and daughter later were reported "doing fine" in hospital. Names were withheld.

Lawyers' Role In Jail Escape Hit by Official

By PIERRE VENIOT

MONTREAL (CP) — Police Director Jean-Paul Gilbert of Montreal criticized Thursday what he said was the involvement of one and possibly two lawyers in the dramatic escape of nine Bordeaux Jail prisoners earlier in the day.

Barely containing his anger, Mr. Gilbert fired off a salvo at the lawyers after the prisoners escaped from an unescorted van.

By midnight Thursday, a police dragnet had captured five of the nine, among 34 being taken in the van to a courthouse in downtown Montreal.

Police described all the escapees as "very dangerous."

Mr. Gilbert, red-faced at a news conference, told reporters the break was engineered by outside elements and possibly "with the assistance" of the lawyers

There was no need, he said, for five of the nine to be headed toward Sessions Court.

He quoted reliable sources as informing him that one of the lawyers had obtained a warrant for the court appearance of the five at a preliminary hearing for a man charged with attempt for a man charged with attempt-

No Special Precautions Taken

concerned with any case in the court," but "they were asked . . . to be present in court."

Mr. Gilbert said lawyers have been questioned, but not detailed, in connection with the escape.

He declined further comment on the lawyers, but said he could not understand why four prisoners in particular would be of any use at a court hearing.

He did not elaborate on the fifth person involved.

Mr. Gilbert was also critical of the lack of any escort for the windowless Bordeaux van, which had two guards armed and two unarmed.

"Police are asking themselves why no special precautions were taken to prevent the escape."

It was just "a coincidence" that a police vehicle was several cars behind the van, which was stopped at a red light when the escape began about 9 a.m. at the corner of Barre and Sauve streets in north-end Montreal.

Justice Minister Remi Paul of Quebec said the guards were "negligent, to say the least" to have allowed the escape by prisoners who had been examined naked at the jail before boarding the van.

Police Conducting Investigation

He said an investigation was in the hands of Quebec provincial police and Maurice Gauthier, director of Quebec prisons. Bordeaux is under the jurisdiction of Quebec

Andre Bonami, 37, one of the prisoners, had a revolver with him and fired "in the direction" of the driver and his fellow guard, set off from the prisoners by a grille.

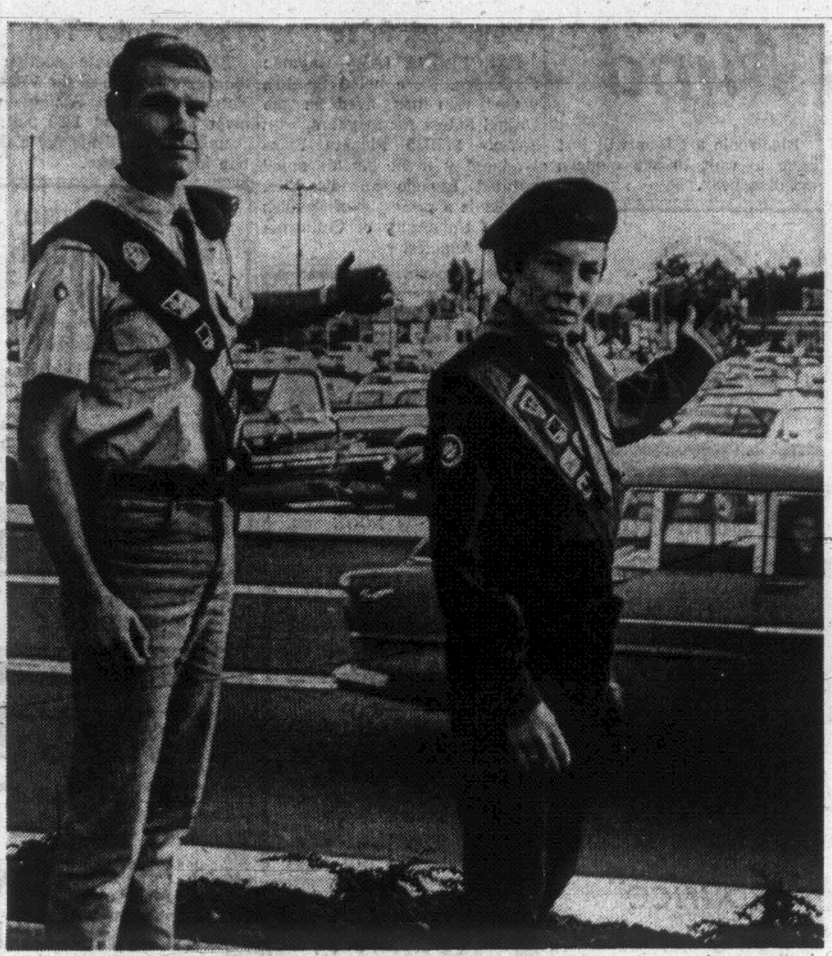
The nine—with Bonami then taking a revolver from an armed guard—then scattered, some stealing four cars, in an outburst of shooting with police.

While the nine escaped, the rest of their companions remained in the van which continued to the courthouse on downtown Notre Dame Street.

The list of escapees read like a Who's Who in holdups and included Richard Blass, 24, who has survived at least four underworld attempts to murder him, with the most notable the time he was shot and stuffed into a car trunk at Montreal International Airport.

By 6 p.m. Thursday, police—hundreds patrolled Montreal Island in the search—captured Blass, Michel Marion, 29, Denis Thouin, 31, Michel Kelly, 20, and Michel Bergeron, 18.

That left still free, Bonami, Rene Ferland, 25, Roger Marceau, 36, and Gilles Gingras, 23.



SCOUTS AND CUBS will set up shop at more than 30 Victoria gas stations Saturday for a mammoth car wash in aid of the United Appeal. Looking for likely customers in the Hillside shopping area are Venturer Bruce Wilson and Scout Mark Clayards of 5th Camosun group.

Activist Catholic Priest Given Six-Month Sentence

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) —County Judge F. Ryan Duffy today ordered the parole of the Rev. James. E. Groppi revoked and sentenced him to six months in the house of correction.

Duffy said theat the controversial priest, in his role as a leader of disruptive welfare demonstrations at Madison, had violated a probation imposed nearly two years ago.

He said Groppi would have to serve the six-month sentence originally set down less six days credit for the time spent in the county jail the past week.

Duffy said even by the most liberal standards, Groppi's conduct at Madison had "not been proper."

An attorney for the priest asked for a stay of the sentence pending a decision of the U.S. Supreme Court but Duffy refused.

Duffy held a hearing on the matter Thursday and ordered the militant Roman Catholic priest held in county jail overnight pending his decision.

A few of Groppi's followers demonstrated briefly with a march to the safety building, where Duffy's court is located, Thursday night and about a dozen were found in a hall near the courtroom early today.

They had apparently entered the building and were staging a sitin.

Meanwhile, in Madison, Gov. Warren P. Knowles ordered the remaining 300 National Guardsmen called up during the capitol demonstrations released from active duty.

Films, Puppets

Maurice Eastwick, secretary of the Scripture Union of Canada, will meet young people, expecially five to 12-year-olds, at the Quadra Bible Chapel, Tolmie and Jacson at 6:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 20, through Friday, Oct. 24.

Eastwick's presentation includes puppets, film strips and bible stories.

NIXON NAMES BURNS TO POST

Reserve Board Head Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon announced today the appointment of Arthur F. Burns to the Federal Reserve Board to succeed William McChesney Martin when Martin's term expires next January.

In a statement made public by the White House, Nixon praised the 62-year-old Martin's 18-year tenure as head of the FED, saying "it is difficult to think of any economic policy-maker in this country, since the time of Alexander Hamilton, whose influence has been as considerable as chairman Martin's over such an extended period of time."

In Burns, Nixon said, the FED will have "a strong and effective" new leader in the campaign for "a stable and prosperous economy."

Martin's full, 14-year term on the board runs out next Jan. 31 and he is not eligible for reappointment. He previously served out the final three years Nixon said he was announcin of an unexpired term.

Nixon said he was announcing Burns' selection now in the interest of a smooth transition.

Martin, 62, has headed the powerful FED since 1951. Burns, 65, is a former chairman of the White House Council of Economic Advisers during the Eisenhower administration and since January has been a special economic counselor to Nixon.

Burns told newsmen at Hot Springs, Va., where he was attending a meeting of high-level businessmen, that he was delighted at the appointment, acknowledging Nixon gave him the word "some time ago" that he would be named to succeed Martin.

But Burns said, "I'm not going to discuss what I'll do until I'm on the job and am actively in the process of doing it."

Burns is a long-time friend of Nixon's, and has played a key role so far in Nixon administration economic policies.

When he named Burns a special counselor, Nixon described his role in the administration as "that of a generalist, dealing with a broad province of legislative and executive actions."

The White House said Nixon shortly would nominate Burns to the FED's board of governors for a 14-year term.

After senate confirmation, the president would designate Burns as board chairman, the White House said.

The president has the power to designate a FED chairman from existing board members every four years.

The White House announcement of the Burns appointment came shortly after 9 a.m., PDT and a few minutes after Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., a ranking member of the senate banking committee, broke the news on Capitol Hill.

Canada to Withdraw From Control Group

NEW DELHI Reuters — Canada is planning to withdraw its staff from the International Control Commissions in Cambodia and Laos but will not withdraw entirely from the commissions, and Indian government spokesman said today.

India is chairman of the commissions, set up to supervise the Geneva agreements on the Indochina war. Canada and Poland are the other members.

The spokesman told reporters: "Canada has played an important and useful role and we think it will be unfortunate if they withdraw."

He told a questioner the Canadians had said they were withdrawing their staff from Vientiane and Phnom Penh to curb expenditure, but representatives in Saigon, South Vietnam would cover the Laotian and Cambodian commissions as well

37 MILLIONS TO JAM ISLANDS, OPEN AREAS

Keep 'Urban Nightmare' From Gulf Paradise

By JIM HUME

By 1981 the Gulf Islands and Vancouver Island north of Victoria will be the recreation or residential target for 37 million persons.

Ald Ian Stewart, of Victoria, chairman of the capital region planning board, told the Nanaimo Rotary Club today the combined populations of Victoria, Nanaimo, Vancouver and the states of Washington, Oregon and California would be exerting fantastic pressures on the Gulf Islands and Vancouver Island a decade from now.

"It is already well established that the affluent society, with its high salaries and portable pensions, is a nomadic society.

"At one time California, the paradise of the Pacific coast, was the place they dreamed of retiring to.

●

"But that one-time paradise has been ruined by overdevelopment, frightening smog in its urban areas, and the recent tragedy brought about by off-shore drilling.

"In the state of Washington we already have what is basically one city stretching from Bellingham in the north to Tacoma in the south."

Stewart said the mounting population could only look to one area for privacy, insulation and environment free from the nightmares of urban living.

Stewart has long been the advocate of an over-all plan for the essential control of the Gulf Islands and Vancouver Island north of Victoria.

"Possibly I am thinking too big," he said. "But the ideal plan for the future of the Gulf Islands and Vancouver Island would be one formulated by the Canadian, Unites States and British Columbia governments who should be thinking now of developing a parks-acquisition program to provide an environment fit for our children to live in, not only in the Canadian islands but in the San Juan group as well."

●

Stewart said the provincial government could lead the way by stating immediately "we will not approve one more subdivision in the Gulf Islands until the regional plan now under design, is completed.

"Only after that will we consider any proposals, commercial or residential for the Gulf Islands."

The alderman added that it was obvious that development cannot be allowed to proceed beyond its present point without an over-all design.

"You don't turn your business over to your son after you've run it into the ground.

"Neither do you turn your community over to your son after you've ruined it."

In addition to the over-development threat, Stewart said he looked with considerable fear on the recent permission to permit an oil company to start drilling exploration in the Strait of Georgia.

"Once you permit that, I think you have gone too far," he said.

"You have permitted a commercial operation, with all its heavy ancillary industries to intrude into what should be retained as a recreational, scenic and residential area."

Stewart also warned that in addition to the obvious population increase, the Roberts Bank development would create the greatest commercial explosion ever known on the West Coast.

Tune In To The Inner Harbor

STEWART
. . . shares his 'fever'

By JOHN DRISCOLL

It could have been a production by the San Fransisco Chamber of Commerce.

While about 150 businessmen—contractors, realtors, financiers—milled about sipping refreshments the music in the background exhorted those going to San Fransisco to be sure to wear flowers in their hair.

Slides of San Fransisco were automatically being projected on a small screen and posters of that city stared down from the walls.

On tables were mounds of booklets with advice on eating, sightseeing and taking pictures in San Fransisco.

But it was Victoria city council making the presentation Thursday and it wasn't designed to sell San Fransisco to local contractors and developers.

* * *

The presentation at the McPherson Playhouse was designed to convince people to pump $30 million in the redevelopment of Victoria's Inner Harbor area.

The San Fransisco theme was an illustration of what can be done.

"We're trying to stimulate a little interest outside city hall in a very precious area of our city," explained Ald. Ian Stewart.

Stewart, along with city planning director Geoffrey Greenhalgh, visited San Francisco in April and came back armed with photographs and a belief that the redevelopment there can be applied to Victoria.

"We want to transfer this redevelopment fever to you," said Stewart.

The Inner Harbour or Warf Street renewal scheme involves 55 acres designed to open up the waterfront area to the public and integrate residential, commercial and industrial uses.

* * *

"In San Francisco we saw a community that recognized its historic background and had pride in its place, enough to work to create something beautiful."

Stewart said it was up to the contractors, financiers and property owners to involve themselves in the venture.

"I think we can do what they did in San Fransisco. City hall can supply the leadership but it's up to you."

Stewart said the only financial involvement by the city would be the purchase of Ocean Cement Ltd. which will have to be relocated if the project is to succeed.

Greehalgh showed slides of San Fransisco redevelopment and contrasted them with some pictures of the current development in Victoria's Inner Harbor.

Those who attended the meeting were asked to pay $1 to join the Victoria Civic Development Society. The society was formed for the purpose of chartering a plane to San Fransisco in April.

* * *

Stewart said today more than 110 people joined the society and will be asked to pay their own way down to San Fransisco.

"This is probably the first time this kind of meeting between the council and the business community has taken place," he said.

He said redevelopment commitments have already been made in the area. The full scope of the project will have tremendous impact on Victoria, he added.

"Renewal means new ideas for an area," he said. "We're running this like a campaign and a successful campaign."

Health Club Man To Try Again

Health club operator Ove Witt who missed a Victoria council seat by 400 votes in 1968 will make another try in December.

The 42-year-old Witt called a press conference for this afternoon at which he was to formally announce his candidacy.

In 1968 he finished in sixth place in the aldermanic race, but only 400 votes behind fourth place finisher Harold Olafson.

A native of Denmark, Witt has operated his health club in the basement of the Strathcona Hotel for the past 11 years.

Witt is the second candidate to enter the aldermanic race. Car dealer Peter Pollen has also announced that he will be a candidate.

Clean-Up Kids Ready Saturday

Clean-minded kids are going after dirty old Colquitz Creek again Saturday.

SPACE (Students promoting a clean environment) will be there. So will SFERE (Students for environmental rescue). So will some University of Victoria types.

They all have the blessings of Saanich municipality, in particular parks administrator Bert Richman who will see to refreshments.

Saanich wants the creek banks cleared of scrub and brush.

SPACE was formed Thursday at a Victoria High School meeting. Sue Williams, a 16-year-old student there and group president, says that while the group's prime target is litter, "we're also concerned about air, water and soil pollution."

SFERE is based at Oak Bay Senior Secondary. Most of its 65 members are expected at the 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. session at the creek.

The area, along Interurban, was the scene of a combined rock-show, anti-pollution happening when a man named Joe Pilot led the New Left in a down-with-dirt-in-the-creek campaign during the summer.

BOYS CAN TALK WAY TO IDAHO

Eloquent boys from 11 to 16 years of age can talk their way to Boise, Idaho next June and maybe to a $1,000 scholarship as the result of an offer by the three Optimist service clubs in Victoria.

The service clubs are sponsoring a free public speaking course for 12 boys beginning Nov. 4 with Rev. Frederick W. Hayes of St. Alban's Anglican church instructing.

The district winner on completion of the course in May will go to the Pacific Northwest convention in Boise and if successful on to an international convention in September to try for the scholarship.

Classes will meet every Tuesday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at Oaklands school.

SWISHING through the fallen leaves—and probably feeling groovy—Philip Patterson and Blair Rhodes head down Beach Drive, just inside the Uplands gates, this morning during Malvern and Westerham Schools' walking tour of the Oak Bay-Victoria perimeter. About 80 boys from the Rockland Avenue school took part in the walkathon to raise money to buy a van. Others who enjoy sluffing through leaves—or raking them—are faced with splendid prospects: a sunny, cool weekend.

City Cadets 'Most Proficient'

Victoria's Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps has been judged the most proficient among Canadian corps with more than 100 members.

National headquarters of the Navy League of Canada announced Thursday that the local corps had won the award for 1969. In second place was RCSCC Mountbatten of Sudbury, Ont.

The Victoria corps also placed second for attendance, trailing RCSCC Victory of Montreal.

The year-old Navy League Wrenette Corps Lady Exeter of Guelph, Ont., was judged the most efficient wrenette corps. In second place was NLWC Jenny Wren of Calgary.

Top place for Navy League Cadet Corps was won by NLCC Chambly of Barrie, Ont. The second most proficient corps was NLCC 70 of Louisbourg, N.S.

Low Rent Scale Set; $143 Tops

Top rent for families moving into the Rose-Blanshard urban renewal housing has been pegged at $143.70 a month.

The B.C. Housing Management Commission, which recently opened a Victoria office at 822 Cormorant, is now accepting applications from low-income families for the 184-unit project.

The first 58 units are expected to be ready for occupancy in February.

Commission regional manager E. S. Roberts explained today how the rent scale operates.

Only families with a gross income of $479 a month or less are eligible for rental accommodations.

Rents are on a sliding scale with a top rent of 30 per cent of gross income. As the family income decreases the percentage decreases on a graduated scale, to 25 per cent of income.

Exceptions to the income limit are made in cases where people whose accommodations were torn down to make way for the project, wish to move back into the renewal scheme.

About 30 of the 127 families who lived on the site have applied.

While little publicity has been given to the opening of the commission office, Roberts said the flow of applications has been steady.

No Room for Single Persons

Thus far however applications from Victoria's huge elderly population far outweigh applications from those for whom the project has been designed.

Roberts explained that there are no accommodations for single people in the development.

"We have discovered a great demand for single accommodations, especially from women living on pensions," said Roberts.

"But this project is designed for families and there are no bachelor quarters."

The development consists of 25 four-bedroom and 90 three-bedroom units in row houses and 69 one and two-bedroom units in apartment blocks.

While there are more than enough applications for the one and two-bedroom units applications for the larger units have been slower in arriving, said Roberts.

City urban renewal co-ordinator William Hooson was not surprised at the flood of applications from the elderly.

"Don't forget we have the highest percentage of population over 65 years of age in Canada," he said. "There has always been a great need for housing for the elderly in Victoria."

STUDENT HIT BY CAR

A nine-year-old girl was admitted to Resthaven Hospital today suffering from head injuries received in an accident on West Saanich Road in front of the Brentwood Tsartlip Indian school.

Injured is Laureen Daniel of Cole Bay.

Police said the girl was driven to school by Dorothy Henry of Cole Bay.

She got out of the car, stopped to let a southbound car pass, but apparently did not see a northbound car driven by Andrea Sampson of Tsartlip. She ran in front of the vehicle, police said.

Jury Pondering Negligence Case

A verdict was expected in Assize Court this afternoon in the trial of Warren Green, 19-year-old Esquimalt sailor, charged with criminally negligent driving causing the death of Verda Lynne Fawns.

Miss Fawns died in a two-car collision on the Old Island Highway, near Price Road, soon after midnight on March 3.

In his address to the jury of one woman and 11 men, defence counsel Dermod Owen-Flood said Green could be convicted on the lesser charge of dangerous driving.

The jury retired to consider its verdict at 11:20 this morning.

Green was also charged with driving a motor car while impaired by alcohol or a drug. Crown counsel E. George MacMinn said a blood test taken about an hour after the accident showed Green had an alcohol content of .17.

Ask The Times

Q. With fall here our bridge club has started up again. Some of us were wondering how bridge began to be played. Can you help?—E.P.

A. Bridge (a corruption of Biritch) is of Levantine origin, having been played in Greece in the early 1880s. The game was known in London, England, in 1886 as Biritch or Russian Whist. Auction bridge was introduced in 1904 but was swamped by the contract game, which was devised by Harold S. Vanderbilt of the United States when he was on a Caribbean trip in November, 1925.

Drums and bugles of the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, will herald D (for Depart) Day for Earl Levy on Saturday.

At 11:30 a.m. in the Mayfair Shopping Centre, 30 musicians will play him farewell as firemen hoist him up a ladder to the clock tower.

Once inside the trap door Levy will remain in his sky-borne retreat until the United Red Feather-Red Cross target of $694,000 has been reached.

To make everything legal, a "judge" will pronounce sentence before the ascent.

Before being banished, Levy will be driven around town in the Junior Chamber of Commerce's "fire-truck" in a nosy farewell to ground-bound life.

Arthur Mayse . . .

LIKE MANY ANOTHER Canadian, I hoped that the unwarranted meddling by France in our domestic affairs would end when the Frenchman who turned the Cross of Lorraine into a double cross retired from office. But the latest affront to Ottawa by Paris makes it plain that De Galle's hatred for Canada, as distinct from Quebec, was contagious.

★

Prime Minister Trudeau, who before his election stated flatly that he would tolerate no interference from that source, has answered this latest insult to Canada by terming it an impertinence, and a disservice to Canadian unity. There's a suggestion, too, that if the French government persists in its tactics, Ottawa may have to "change or denounce" the pact under which cultural, scientific and educational exchanges are made.

But why should it be necessary to wait for a reply—which may not be forthcoming in any case—to a trespass so glaringly obvious?

The French interpretation of the pact has been made abundantly plain.

Whatever the lesser French purposes may be, the main intent is to use those 'cultural exchanges' as an umbrella under which agents provocateurs may operate in Quebec.

I think that a Canadian government which represents 10 provinces should go rather farther in its attempt to convince a trouble-making foreign power that it has no stake in Canada.

★

Meanwhile, the individual Canadian who resents French mischief-making in his country may choose to give point to his sense of outrage by refusing to buy any commodity or article that carries a 'Made in France' label.

THE DAILY TELEGRAPH, an English newspaper of Conservative cast, saw the Moratorium Day demonstrations as "America's yellow belly," and feared the spectacle of a great nation "in a delirium of treason and shame."

Those are harsh words and they show complete failure to understand the nature of the sombre occasion that sparked them.

Those who turned out in their hordes to protest their government's failure to make a full retreat from Vietnam were, in their own way, bringing a flag-draped American concept to trial.

"Our country! In her intercourse with foreign nations, may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."

Stephen Decatur, an American hero, delivered that toast in the youth of a land now sorely troubled.

Perhaps the time is past for such patriot calls to blind obedience.

It would be foolish to claim that all who took part in the demonstrations were moved by honest concern for their country's welfare. But I think it safe to assume that the great majority were impelled by this motive. They felt that the United States was in the wrong, and they shared a grim determination to put her in the right.

How effective their mass protest proved, we may be some time learning. The war goes on, and those who stood out against further American participation in it are accused by the hawk-minded of giving aid and comfort to the enemy.

★

It may be, however, that they were braver than those American leaders who still hang back from an unpalatable truth.

If the United States persists in an entanglement that ever more of her people detest, she risks a major uprising at home, or even outright revolution.

It's a devil's choice—to drag on in Vietnam or to leave that country to work out its own destiny—but there's only one ultimate answer.

For what comfort it's worth against those who will see a remove from Vietnam as the end of American prestige, England once faced a hard choice of her own. Should she break off her war against American colonies who had defeated an expeditionary force, or should she send other armies to prolong an unpopular struggle?

The choice she made is history, and I hope it will be repeated.

LAST AUGUST, A VANcouver naturopath by the name of Joe Boucher returned with his brother, Tony, to a Vancouver Island West Coast he had travelled for B.C. Packers in the '30s.

Boucher sailed the coastal stretch known as 'The Graveyard of the Pacific' in those years. He made his 1968 journey on his own two feet, in a photographer's trek from Nootka to San Juan.

★

The resulting film will be shown at the McPherson Playhouse at 8 p.m. Oct. 23, 24 and 25, and I mean to see it.

Incidentally, much of what Boucher learned about the wild coast came from shipmates who were former rum-runners. No men knew it better.

Work Island Saves Steps

When you build a new house, it is easy to plan a good kitchen. You are concerned with making the most of available space. But when you remodel, you must start with existing plumbing and appliance locations. To move pipes and wires adds measurably to your building costs. This compounds the problem. However, the joy of seeing a handsome, efficient kitchen emerge Phoenix-like from the ashes of the old, justifies the pains and agonies.

Such a kitchen, by architect Adolp Roskrans, is pictured here. In older homes, often a butlers pantry, a service porch, or a breakfast room now outmoded, can be incorporated into the kitchen for extra space. One large, airy room is far more livable than several that are small. The service porch became a part of this kitchem, adding considerable square footage.

Although large, the kitchen functions well because the locations of appliances and work centers save the homemaker needless steps. The island, a baking center, contributes largely to this, with storage for equipment and staples, a cutting board and a counter, conveniently between oven and refrigerator. Additional storage in the cabinet base puts pots and pans near the areas where they will be used. And the island is but a step or two from any side of the kitchen.

The planning desk, cupboards for china and glassware, with drawers for silver and linen occupy the far kitchen wall, away from the food preparation area. Two people can work simultaneously at different tasks and not get in each other's way.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Smoked-Out Wife

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Every time a letter appears in your column from someone who hates cigarettes and puts down cigarette smokers, my husband accuses me of writing it. You had such a letter in your column recently and since I got the credit for writing it, even though I didn't, I am now putting in my two cents worth.

I'll put it in the form of a Dear Abby letter:

Dear Abby: If all your lovely new furniture already has cigarette burns in it, and your husband always smells like he's been fighting a fire in a tobacco warehouse, and the smell of stale tobacco on his breath kills all inspiration for romance, are those sufficient grounds for divorce?

My husband's kisses taste terrible. He is a very affectionate man, and he knows how I feel about his smoking because I have told him that that is the reason for my holding out in the romance department, so why in Heaven's name does he continue to smoke? — Holding Out.

DEAR HOLDING OUT: Because your husband, poor slave, is hooked and thus far has been unable to kick the habit. But I don't recommend the hold-out technique. He might turn to something (or someone) else.

DEAR ABBY: Last week my 20-year-old daughter came back from a two-week beach vacation. She went with two other girls from the office where she works. I happened to notice when she was drying herself after a shower that she was tan all over!

I commented on this, asking where she could get a sun-tan without a bathing suit. She said an overnight quick tan lotion was responsible.

I accepted her explanation until this week. While cleaning her room, I knocked a book over, and when I picked it up some snapshots fell out. I was shocked beyond belief when I saw several pictures of my daughter and her girl friends (all of them!) completely naked!

When I asked her about the pictures, she said they had found a deserted section of the beach where they were able to get an all-over tan and another girl took the pictures.

I told her I would have to tell her father. She said if I did, she would leave home. Please tell me how to handle this. — Shocked and Disappointed.

DEAR SHOCKED: Your daughter is obviously not telling you the whole truth. Don't tell her father. What is needed now is a closer relationship between you and your daughter. Don't be critical of her, don't punish her and don't drive her away with threats and admonitions. A mother is helpless to help her daughter unless they remain good friends. And your daughter needs help.

Duck Beats Fish To Baited Hook

By PENNY SAVER

"I say, Penny," said one of my neighbors who is an avid fisherman. "Have you heard about the time I caught a duck?"

In spite of myself I was interested.

"I was trolling with the line near the surface when this crazy duck decided to take the bait. Well, he managed to get the hook in a nostril and took off in disgust. He put up quite a fight before I could get him into the boat and free him. Bit me too—see, there are the bruises—and knocked my portable scale into the water."

"Portable scale? Fish or weight?"

"Weight, of course, so I know how much the fish I catch weigh. Quite a handy little gadget it is too. It only costs 51 cents and will take up to 25 pounds. Look, I've got my new one in my pocket."

This little scale has a brass face and the weight is indicated by a little marker that travels up and down the scale.

A hook on the top lets you attach it to a handy nail while another on the bottom holds the item to be weighed (either directly or in a sling or some sort).

This little gadget could be handy in the kitchen for cooks (like myself) who keep forgetting how much the butcher said that nice roast weighed.

Mathilda has one-upped me again. I found an individual dry-poacher and she found poaching rings for 65 cents.

These little rings are made of aluminum and are much like the rings used for keeping fried eggs from spreading.

To poach an egg with them just put one inch of water in the bottom of a pan and drop the egg into the water in the middle of the ring. The ring keeps it from running all through the water and becoming stringy and messy.

These rings could also be used for shaping individual Yorkshire puddings (muffin tins are good for that too) or crumpets or making boiled rice into a nice neat shape before drenching it in sauce.

Mixing things in a glass can be difficult but an egg whip will do the trick. A smallish French-style egg whip made of wire is 79 cents while a spring egg whip is 65 cents.

This latter can be squooshed up and down in a glass to mix chocolate milk, eggnogs or whatever. It just fits inside an eight-ounce straight-sided glass.

Please call 382-3131 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. for information in this column.

Appreciating a break in the round-table discussion, Bethany Armstrong relaxes a moment from her job as rapporteur at Colombo Plan conference currently in session at the Parliament Buildings. A political science graduate from Carleton University, Bethany is a member of the external affairs department attached to the Thailand delegation for the conference. (Ian McKain photo.)

Long Hours Are Part of the Job

By NEILL GADDES

Bethany Armstrong was exhausted by 5:30 Wednesday afternoon.

Her day started nine hours earlier with a meeting of fellow rapporteurs to discuss problems encountered at the Colombo Plan conference the day before.

Rapporteurs, Bethany explained, act as liaison between delegates, and each is assigned to one delegation.

A member of the external affairs department, she is one of Canada's host delegation who arrived from Ottawa a week early, making preparations to ensure a successful conference.

As rapporteur to the Thai delegation, Bethany explained that her job is to make sure everything runs smoothly in the delegation.

This means for example, seeing that all reference material needed by the delegates is found and that there are enough copies of the Thai papers to be distributed to the rest of the delegates.

The rapporteurs also monitor the tape recordings of all the proceedings.

Each day this week there are six working groups, consisting of a donor country and three recipient countries, meeting to review what has been accomplished since the previous conference.

"I'm with a special topic working group that is concerned with administration of aid," Bethany explained.

At this point, a colleague wanted to know if the tapes of the afternoon session could be separated from the morning session without confusion. The two left the room to set the tapes right.

It was a long day for Bethany and her 32 colleagues in the corps of rapporteurs who have been chosen from federal government departments in Ottawa. They will probably be kept just as busy for the rest of the three-week conference.

Young Readers No Longer Cynical Author Tells University Women

Victoria author Alice Munro said she felt young readers today had rejected cynicism and were searching for a definition of life, when she spoke to the University Women's Club Wednesday on Youth and Literature.

"The cynicism of the young writers, and presumably the young readers, of the 50s has given way to a more attractive, if more confused, search for whatever can give resonance, meaning and beauty to life.

"The young are not afraid to speak of these things, to ask for them."

But the author admitted that she was looking at the scene from the outside.

"Middle aged readers generally prefer re-creation of color, sights and sound ... nostalgia. This is the kind of writing I try to create.

"But this demands solid roots in reality. Perhaps our children don't have these roots and never have. Perhaps we are the last generation to feel this way."

To simplify her subject Mrs. Munro dismissed the non-readers, those who read only romances and nurse stories and the "small core of readers who pop up in each generation ... whose reading reflects not their age but themselves," and took the remainder "the trend followers who all read or have read the same books."

These trends are interesting, she said because they are unlike adult trends "shaped by reviewers, the unnatural atmosphere of competitions and promotions."

The young, she felt "are not influenced by the publisher spending a lot of money pushing his product or by the opinions of prestigious critics. What they read is like an underground movement—a vast grapevine.

"I think this more than a fad. The books reflect genuine needs.

"As a writer I am encouraged to think books could be this important. When I was young in rural Canada reading was a surreptitious activity and if reading was unfashionable you can imagine what writing was.

"Today a kind of Elizabethan glamour surrounds the young man who writes poetry."

Some of the most popular books, she went on included Lord of the Rings, "a dense and complicated fantasy.

"It sounds like escapism, but I don't think it is. In Lord of the Rings the battle of good against evil is very real."

Closely allied to this is science fiction "an exercise in what if ..."

Herman Hesse has also had a tremendous flowering of popularity, she pointed out, and his books "deal not so much with surface life as with the soul's journey."

Victorian Elected Chairman

Mavis De Girolamo, president of the Victoria Voice of Women, was re-elected to the national council and chosen as national chairman for ADD, when VOW members met recently in Ottawa for their ninth annual meeting.

ADD—Appeal for Disarmament Day—will take place on the 15th of each month. On November 15 it will tie in with VOW's support for the International Mobilization Day of Protest against the Vietnam war. It is not, however, intended as a protest against any one war.

A petition regarding Canada's part in ABM, through NORAD, is in circulation now and will be presented to the government on December 15.

Petticoat Revolution Hits Legal Profession

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Dorothy Wright Nelson, the only woman in the United States who heads a fully-accredited law school, is a sign of the petticoat revolution going on in the legal profession.

Mrs. Nelson, 40, is the new dean of the University of Southern California Law School.

A few years ago, lady lawyers often had to settle for government work, but there has been a "radical change" in the variety of opportunity open to them, particularly in private practice, Dean Nelson said. In addition, more women are entering law school.

The type of woman entering law school has changed too.

"More and more we are finding women in our law school look like models," Mrs. Nelson said. "Ended is the era of the hornrimmed, briefcase woman, very masculine, who was going to be a labor union president.

"Just as firms want to show they have a minority member in their employ, firms now proudly point to their woman.

"And some firms find clients want to speak to a woman.

"One firm told me that clients, particularly in family matters — domestic relations or probate—come in and say 'Do you have a woman.' Women do very well in these fields, but they're also doing very well in business and criminal law now."

She credits the field of poverty law with opening up new horizons for lady lawyers.

"Women prosecuted big cases all the way up to the supreme court," she said. "It offered opportunities to women that weren't available in the past and gave them experience that made them more acceptable to private law firms once they had it."

These 'Empty' Streets Impress Czech Artist

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Clean, empty streets, single family homes and beauty—green, fresh beauty everywhere you look.

Those are the dominant impressions of Victoria for Zdenek Kris, newest resident in a growing colony of professional musicians being attracted to this city.

Here less than two weeks, Kris is the violist from Czechoslovakia who has been engaged to lead his section in the Victoria Symphony Orchestra and join the faculty of the Conservatory of Music.

Coming to Canada for the 36-year-old musician means starting life over without family, capital funds or other than personal possessions.

HIGH OPTIMISM

But on first meeting it is clear that his is a warm, relaxed disposition that allows him to anticipate the new life with high optimism.

The interview was conducted to the accompaniment of coffee and Czechoslovakian cigarettes for his visitors and an English-Czech dictionary for himself.

However he consulted the dictionary only once during our conversation. Communication was not difficult despite his limited self-taught English.

SIMPLIFIED

About his surname, Kris says it is "Just like your word, cross," but he admits that it has been simplified from the original Czech spelling.

"Zdenek" is pronounced exactly as it is spelled and sounds very like Sten-ek.

His first Canadian adventure was a misadventure.

"I expect first time I go out will be to the theatre" (for rehearsal), he explains. "But I go to the hospital instead."

A dinner of B.C. salmon had resulted in his being hustled off to emergency a few days ago with a fish bone in his throat.

Besides his viola, the possessions he brought with him include a large envelope stuffed with pictures, mostly of his wife and three children—a seven-year-old son and daughters aged 10 and 11.

KRIS
... joins symphony

Noticeably devoted to his family, he is hopeful that they will be able to join him here early in the New Year.

Kris marvels over the street upon street of private houses and the fact that few children play and even fewer adults stroll, or stand about and talk in the streets.

"In Bratislava several families live in every dwelling and people fill the streets and children play in them all day long," he says.

FOUR ORCHESTRAS

But the crowded city whose population is not much bigger than Greater Victoria's, boasts four full-time orchestras and supports three to four hundred professional musicians.

Bratislava, one of the centres of Slovak musical culture, is where Kris studied pedagogical subjects and performance at the university and where, for seven years, he played with the Radio Symphony Orchestra.

Following graduation he taught at the university, wrote a new violin "school" for students and published articles on pedagogical problems.

As an orchestral musician he has travelled over a good part of Europe including England, Germany, Italy, Austria, Hungary and Egypt.

STUDIED SINGING

Besides viola, he plays violin and bassoon and has studied singing and piano.

Already in rehearsal for the coming weekend's symphony concerts, he has also had one or two sessions with the "fine musicians" of the Victoria Trio at the conservatory.

This is an aspect of his new life which he finds most delightful — "Chamber music is my second love," he comments.

Soon now the Victoria Trio will bow to the public wearing its collective alternative hat as a quartet, a development that Messrs Wood, Kessler and Hunter have eagerly anticipated.

Geographically and physically Zdenek Kris knows already that life in Victoria can be delightful.

Culturally, a few years ago, for such a man it might have been barren. But today, thanks to the major development of symphony, conservatory and university, a new life in Victoria can offer a Zdenek Kris some challenge and fulfillment.

Darien Gap Faces Closure

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — You can drive from Canada to Argentina now except for a 510-mile gap in the Pan American Highway system, and prospects for filling the missing link are bright, automobile club leaders of the Americas were told here.

The gap was described to a Convention of the Inter-American Federation of Touring and Automobile Clubs as largly uninhabited swampland area in Panama and Colombia. Motorists must have their cars ferried there.

"I am confident that construction on the Darien Gap is approaching, federation president Cesar C. Carmen of Argentina said. "President Nixon is asking his Congress for $100,000,000 in aid for completion of the highway. And our federation will co-operate in the great venture."

The gap derives its name from Darien, Panama.

Colombian delegate Carlos Lersundy reported: "Studies show that the Darien Gap could be constructed within a period of 10 years."

Cyprus Capital New Spy Spa

By DAVE McINTOSH

NICOSIA, Cyprus (CP) — There seem to be more spies in Cyprus than there are China-watchers in Hong Kong.

But most of them are so inept that they can be spotted as spies the moment they arrive on the island.

The suspicion is that Cyprus is a training ground for the United States National Security Agency and for the Russian KGB espionage service.

For instance, all spies arriving at Nicosia's international airport seem to be met by other spies. You can spot them because the new arrival and his greeter are the only two persons in the terminal whispering and pointing toward their American or Soviet counterparts, as the case may be.

Informants say they believe the Americans have about 100 operatives in Cyprus and that Russia likely has a similar number.

HOTEL TAKEN OVER

The NSA had so many agents here it had to take ovver an entire hotel. Moreover, it established a downtown club where its personnel could spend off-duty hours, presumably without their conversations being bugged.

Long-time spy watchers here also say the Soviet embassy is groaning under the weight of operatives. The Russians also occupy an entire row of villas.

The Americans openly run a monitoring station to pick up radio signals from all over the Middle East. The Russian monitoring station is believed to be in the embassy itself.

Both Americans and Russians have large staffs who spend their time decoding messages snatched from the atmosphere.

A new spy complication is the presence of Arab and Israeli agents on the island. They seem to spend most of their time at the airport observing who is going to and from Tel Aviv and the Arab capitals.

The reason is that there is no direct route between Israel and its Arab neighbors. Most travellers use Nicosia as a transfer point.

Students Chosen

VANCOUVER (CP)—Four university students from British Columbia will play a part in the National Safety Council's annual congress in Chicago, Oct. 24. Simon Fraser University student Brian Doutaz and University of B.C. students Marilia Neto, Liz Moss and Ian MacKay will present a panel discussion before 5,000 of the 15,000 delegates on "Youth and safety in the community."

Boxcars Rolling

SASKATOON (CP) — A daily average of 200 boxcars are carrying Saskatchewan wheat to Vancouver, the president of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool said Wednesday. E. K. Turner said the grain movement was "not as good as would be liked," but the Vancouver elevators were congested.

CASTELLANI APPEAL DECISION RESERVED

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada has reserved its decision on an appeal by Rene Emile Castellani of Vancouver against his conviction in 1967 of poisoning his wife.

Because he was convicted of capital murder before Parliament amended the Criminal Code to abolish capital punishment for most murders, Castellani could be hanged unless his appeal is successful.

Mrs. Castellani was admitted to hospital in May, 1965, after a series of attacks of nausea and stomach pains. After her death two months later, doctors found the cause to be chronic arsenical poisoning.

C. R. MacLean of Vancouver, appearing for Castellani, argued that the trial judge had committed a number of errors, thus causing prejudice to his client.

Press Watchdogs Hit Christine's Publisher

LONDON (CP) — The hot poker of censure has been stamped on Rupert Murdoch's News of the World but there is no indication it will have any impact on the Sunday paper's continued publication of Christine Keeler's torrid memoirs.

In one of the strongest condemnations, the 26-member Press Council, Britain's watchdog over newspaper ethics, Thursday accused the News of the World of rehashing the sordid details of Christine's much-publicized life story for the purpose of exploiting sex and vice for profit.

It also condemned the mass-circulation paper for paying for vice articles which are contrary to the council's accepted principles and of dragging up the past of former war minister John Profumo when he already had paid his debt to society for his association with Christine.

Profumo, now a social worker in London's East End slums, withdrew from politics after admitting he had lied in Parliament six years ago over the Keeler incident.

The council said the public interest does not justify raking up of unsavory scandals and dragging up a man's past in his lifetime.

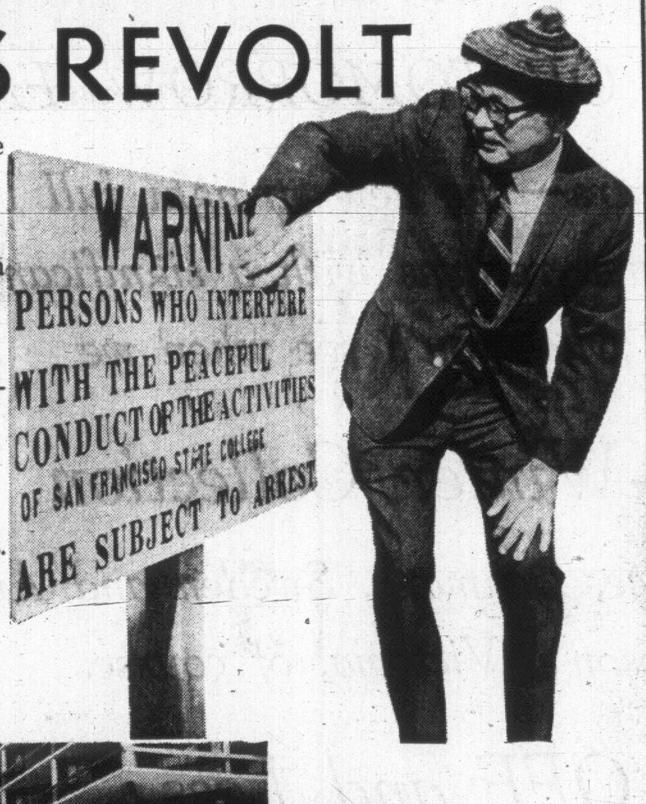
HAYAKAWA on CAMPUS REVOLT



"... police should be called in, the students should be hauled away, and they should be heavily punished," says the Canadian-born president of San Francisco State College, Samuel Ichiye Hayakawa. A firm believer in fight-fire-with-fire tactics in response to student violence, Dr. Hayakawa has been honored by conservatives and called a 'fascist puppet' by radicals. His advice to college presidents makes for controversial reading in Weekend Magazine.

MAX'S MILLIONS

Biafra Disaster for Mankind, Says Moderator

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

In 2½ years the war in Biafra has cost 2 million lives.

"This is more than all the people who have died at Vietnam and more than the United Kingdom lost in two world wars," Rev. Dr. Edward H. Johnson, new moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, said here Thursday.

"The Biafran war is a disaster for Nigeria and a disaster for mankind," he told a public meeting in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. "When you see the consequences of this war you almost want to resign from the human race."

Johnson, 59, is executive vice-president and one of the founders of Canairrelief, which provided three Super Constellations to fly relief supplies to Biafra under cover of darkness.

"There are three hazards on these flights," he said, "anti-aircraft fire from below, the bombing of runways and landings on primitive jungle air-strips."

Johnson was formerly overseas secretary of the general board of missions of the Presbyterian Church. He was the first Canadian to visit Biafra after the war started and latter flew to Lagos for talks with Nigerian government leaders.

"We have been in touch with some of the leading people on both sides of the conflict," he said. "There have been many conflicting reports on this war and some talk of a quick kill by the Nigerian government forces.

"Those of us who have seen the Biafrans in action do not believe there will be any quick kill. These people are fighting for self-respect and human dignity. They have tremendous courage and determination. They would rather die than surrender."

Johnson said his church has been involved with the Biafran war from the beginning because its general board of missions had been working in Nigeria since 1954.

He said one of the tragedies of the war is that the Biafrans were a virile nation of 55 million people who could have given valuable leadership in Africa.

Johnson spoke of the terrible hardship and starvation inflicted upon them and said:

"Biafra is a man-made disaster and it challenges the most fundamental of all human rights—the right to survive in your own country."

Visiting Victoria for the first time as moderator, Johnson was welcomed by Very Rev. J. Lewis McLean, DD, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian and himself a former moderator.

After calling on Lt.-Gov. John Nicholson at Government House, Johnson met members of Greater Victoria Council of Churches at a luncheon in St. Andrew's Kirk Hall.

For those who missed it, don't blame me.

As I said before, bring a friend along too.

We don't train anyone who turns out a flop.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

MOVIE TO WATCH tonight is on Channel 7 at 7. The Brass Bottle is a comedy from 1965, with Tony Randall and Burl Ives. Fame, fortune and romance await Tony, a young architect, when he buys an antique oriental urn, unaware that it houses a fun-loving genie, Burl Ives.

★ ★ ★

SINGALONG JUBILEE. 9, Channel 2. Guest singer is Edith Butler. Regulars include Fred McKenna, the Dropouts, Jubilee Singers and host Bill Langstroth, late of the now-defunct Don Messer Jubilee. Tonight's songs include Buffalo in the Park, A Dollar Ain't a Dollar and Easy Rider.

★ ★ ★

THE HIGH CHAPARRAL. 7:30, Channel 5. "Bad Day for a Bad Man." Good episode. Manolito is robbed while on a mission for John and it looks as though the ranch is headed for foreclosure. Since we all know that this is not about to happen, fans can just relax and see how the loot is recovered. Actually, it's Victoria, aided by a gal (Marianna Hill), who tried to make off with the cash herself, against an aging bandit (Malachi Throne) and his henchman (Robert Yuro). Even though there are no surprises, the episode is well played and it's reasonably entertaining.

★ ★ ★

JIMMY DURANTE PRESENTS THE LENNON SISTERS. 10, Channel 4. Veteran Jimmy Durante has two other veterans on the show tonight when Martha Raye and Buddy Ebsen add their sparkle to the hour. Martha and Jimmy do a skit together; Buddy dances to "Make Mine Country Style"; the three of them act in a riverboat comedy sketch, and sing "When the Saints Go Marching In" and "Do You Know What It Means to Miss New Orleans." Other spots include tunes from the Lennon Sisters and songs from their other guest, Bobby Goldsboro.

★ ★ ★

THE NAME OF THE GAME. 8:30, Channel 5. "Chains of Command." Fairly interesting drama. Ace crime reporter Robert Stack takes a job as a guard at a prison near the Mexican border, which he knows is involved in a racket involving using wetbacks (Mexicans sneaked over the U.S. border) for cheap labor. The storyline is pretty routine, but it's fun watching Dorothy Lamour pretending to be an actress again as the owner of a saloon; Sidney Blackmer drinking away as the prison superintendent; and villainous Pernell Roberts as the boss. Also, the method of bringing in the poor Mexicans is quite clever.

★ ★ ★

NET PLAYHOUSE. 8:30, Channel 9. "Past Intruding" (repeat). First shown here in 1967, this strange, offbeat film from Japan retains a message of importance within its intricate framework. A psychiatrist in contemporary Tokyo, who has successfully buried the memory of his horrible war experiences, finds himself compelled to recall their terror during the course of treating a patient. The link in imagery between the present and the past is deftly portrayed, and clarifying English titles accompany the original Japanese dialogue.

Bracken's World Regular Elizabeth Allen
Tonight at 10 on Channel 5

MOVIE. 8. Channel 8. Jigsaw, a 1968 suspense drama, offers swift pace and excitement in unconventional murder plot. LSD sugar cubes in his coffee send Jonathan Fields on an unplanned trip. He wakes up in strange apartment with strange corpse.

Marijuana Lobby Urges Legal Trade in 'Grass'

TORONTO (CP) — More than 300 bearded and beaded university students pleaded with a government commission Thursday night to ignore RCMP warnings and recommend that the sale of marijuana be made legal in Canada.

Meeting in a residence at York University, the students bombarded members of the federal-appointed committee into the non-medical use of drugs in Canada with reasons why grass is good, blasted the press for biased reporting and blamed the RCMP for undue prosecutions.

"The kids today think of the Mountie only as a Narc (undercover drug agent) out to prosecute us," said one long-haired teen-ager.

The students, most of whom were in their early 20s, were united in their criticism of an RCMP brief presented earlier Thursday to the commission calling for a halt to the spread of marijuana "at all costs" because of social and economic harm.

The brief, presented by Assistant Commissioner J. R. R. Carriere, of Ottawa, argued that there is a transition from marijuana to harmful "hard drugs" like heroin.

The students, standing on chairs and yelling before the two-hour hearing closed, argued that it was impossible for RCMP to prove a conclusive link.

CAN'T GET PURE STUFF

One student who identified himself as a social scientist said "it's almost impossible to get pure marijuana" in Toronto.

"The grass bought here is almost always cut with other drugs and users get addicted to the substances put in the marijuana. That's where other drugs come into the picture."

The students also blamed society for the present drug rise.

"Society caused all this tension and left us only two choices either a direct attempt to alleviate it or an escape through drugs," a student said.

Chairman of the commission, Gerald E. LeDain, 45-year-old dean of Osgoode Hall Law School, emphasized in his opening address that the commission was not present to answer for the present drug laws, but here instead to listen to reasonable arguments about drug use.

One member, Ian Campbell, 41, dean of arts at Sir George Williams University in Montreal, asked why there is a major increase in the use of amphetamines or speed.

OFFERS AN ANSWER

"The answer is simple," yelled a law student. "Pushers make more money from speed. It does not have to be imported like marijuana. It is easy to get and can be made locally.

"Now when a user goes to his pusher and asks for grass, he is told there is none available or that it is in short supply. He is offered speed instead."

Most students agreed amphetamines are dangerous. But they claimed marijuana was distorted by the press which emphasized dangers and played down any intelligent argument.

The confrontation with the students capped the first day of the commission's cross-Canada hearings. Mr. LeDain told the students that the commission—established by Health Minister John Munro in June—hopes to have an interim report in six months and a final report within two years.

Moscow, S. Africa Draw Canadian Ire

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada took the Soviet Union and South Africa to task in the United Nations Thursday—but used notably different language toward the two.

Canadian delegates used the mildest of diplomatic language in disagreeing with a Soviet proposal on world peace but spoke out harshly and with force in criticizing South Africa's continued jurisdiction over the territory of South-West Africa.

Speaking to the General Assembly's political committee, Canadian Ambassador Yvon Beauine said the Soviet proposal was "of fundamental importance" but warned against "ideas which are imperfectly defined."

Russia has suggested the committee adopt what it calls an Appeal to All States of the World.

First put forward by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, it calls for "peaceful co-existence of states regardless of their social systems," regional collective security arrangements and holding periodic Security Council meetings to review the world situation.

Canada pulled out its bitter words in the General Assembly's trusteeship committee in criticizing South Africa for not handing over the jurisdiction of South-West Africa to the United Nations.

South-West Africa, known here and to many independent black African countries as Namibia, was ruled by South Africa under a mandate from the old League of Nations. But the UN revoked that mandate and demanded that South Africa hand back to the UN its jurisdiction over the area by Oct. 3. These demands have gone unheeded.

Marvin Gelber, speaking for Canada in the committee, said his government "condemns the efforts of South African authorities to continue its control of Namibia, to divide its peoples and to export its obnoxious racial policy of apartheid (racial separation)."

Gelber said the situation in southern Africa could "one day" endanger international peace and security. But he added that Canada does not think that threat exists now and there is no need for strong measures at the moment.

Before the Judge

Louie Gene Cardinel, 636 Admirals Road, was committed to the Criminal Assizes following a preliminary hearing Thursday into a charge of criminal negligence causing death.

The hearing was held before Judge J. A. Byers, who fixed bail at $1,000.

The charge arose from the death of 22-year-old Jeannie Cockburn, 1331 Pandora, killed on Sept. 27 in a three-car collision on Johnson at Cook.

She was riding in a car driven by her husband.

Twenty days in jail was the sentence imposed upon D'Arcy P. Lubin, 26, of 1022 Summit, who pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

It was his second impaired driving offence.

Arthur D. Glynn, 30, of 621 Seaforth, was fined $500 for the same offence.

Ralph E. Harvey, 18, was remanded to Nov. 3 for a pre-sentence report after pleading guilty to stealing a car.

He admitted taking a car owned by Robert C. Ward, 1205 Tolmie Ave.

The youth also pleaded guilty to driving without a valid driver's licence. He was fined $25.

Ornamental Pepper Plants

By HILDA BEASTALL

The cheery little ornamental pepper plants that used to be raised for Christmas gifts along with ornamental cherries in pots have been making their appearance this fall. Delightful plants they are for apartment dwellers, who should consider them as short-lived annuals in pots and not expect them to remain permanently in perfect condition.

Hilda

Many years ago they were designated as Christmas pepper and Christmas cherry, though the latter was also known as Jerusalem cherry and Cleveland cherry.

The seed was sown in February in the greenhouse and the potted plants buried in soil outdoors in summer for flowering. Then returned to the greenhouse in fall for fruiting.

The pepper is Capsicum frutescens, a shrubby member of the same genus as our red and green sweet and hot peppers, while the cherry is Solanum capicastrum, related to tomato and potato. Both are in the same family as the Deadly Nightshade.

In the home, the pepper and the cherry need a good light but not full sunlight for they hold their fruits better in a temperature around 65 deg. F.

The soil in the pots should be kept moderately damp; overwatering and underwatering will cause the fruits to fall. Both these plants react to draughts in a room by dropping their leaves.

The close relationship to the edible tomato is evident by their immediate reaction to even a faint trace of gas (heating or illuminating) in the atmosphere. All the leaves will drop within two or three hours.

Greenhousemen in the east who heated their structures with gas earlier in this century made a habit of always having a tomato plant or two growing with other plants in order to detect gas leaks before their valuable crops became affected.

Unlike tomatoes, sweet peppers and eggplants, the berries or fruits of ornamental pepper and cherry are said to be poisonous if eaten.

Otherwise, these plants are likely to continue to be popular for decoration for a good many years, for after all, few of our decorative plants either indoors or out, are suitable for eating. So we just don't take chances with those.

'Scout' Films May Find Cause

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Nausea is a most distressing symptom for which, until a few years ago, we physicians had no good remedy. The first thing to do is to look for the cause and to treat that if it can be found. It can be physically caused, or it can be due to some problem with the bowel.

Sometimes it comes in waves, and this may mean that the person is feeling actual waves of reverse peristalsis running up the bowel.

The fact that in many cases a person who is suffering from nausea can suddenly get complete relief after a big burp, or one retch, suggests that with the running out of a big reverse wave, peristalsis in the stomach or bowel quiets down or starts running normally downward again.

Also, nausea can be helped or made much worse by lying on one side or the other of the body. It also is less distressing if the person is kept busy, as is a sailor on a ship.

When a person comes in complaining of nausea and abdominal discomfort, I like to get a "scout film" of the abdomen, to see if a segment of small bowel is full of gas.

DISTENDED LOOP

I remember a big, healthy ranch woman who began to suffer much from nausea just after she had a hernia repaired. When I had her X-rayed, I saw a distended loop of bowel, and an operation showed the bowel kinked where the surgeon had inadvertently run a suture through the wall of the bowel and fastened it to the abdominal wall. The minute this kinked segment was freed, the woman was well.

Tension and emotion play an important part in producing nausea. Persons who are overworking and very tense may wake at night and suffer with nausea for an hour or two.

The best thing for them to do is take a vacation, or spend a restful evening at home; or they can go without supper.

During wartime, soldiers become nauseated from fear or disgust. Some highly sensitive persons can become nauseated by unpleasant smells, or by disgust at the unattractive appearance of some food, or at the thought they may have eaten spoiled food.

A woman who was once badly poisoned by the paste in a cream puff, always thereafter avoided going into a pastry shop because if she saw a cream puff she became ill. I have known women who suffered nausea following sexual intercourse with an unloved husband.

FATIGUE, DISGUST

In many frail women, nausea comes with fatigue or disgust. This type of nausea is indicated by the phrase, "You make me sick." Nausea can easily be produced by a bad smell.

That the sensation can be psychic and originate in the brain is indicated by many facts, such as that it can come with an attack of migraine, Meniere's disease (dizzy spells with some deafness due to disease in an ear), or motion sickness, or after a small stroke, or an attack of encephalitis, or when a woman mistakenly thinks she is pregnant, or when she gets the idea she has eaten dirty food.

It can come with the stormy emotions resulting from the sudden break-up of a love affair. I have seen it come in sensitive men when the wife was pregnant. It is a common complaint of the relatives of the psychotic.

Nausea is, of course, severe during some pregnancies, or it may be troublesome at the beginning of a menstrual period. This is due to reversal of waves in the bowel. Sometimes it occurs when the person had a food allergy. I know a man who lost his every-morning nausea and vomiting when he had his teeth extracted to cure a bad pyorrhea.

Nausea, and even vomiting can be produced by pain, or can be very distressing symptom of a failing heart, or can be due to a big stroke. And in elderly people I have seen nausea as the earliest and, for a time, only symptom of cancer of the colon.

CAUSED BY DRUGS

I have seen persons suffering from chronic nausea which proved to be due to the taking of certain drugs, such as digitalis, or aminophylline. Men can make themselves chronically nauseated from chewing tobacco.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

They Brought Wives Into the Campaign

By BOB BOWMAN

Poor military leadership was partly responsible for Britain losing the American Revolutionary War. Benjamin Franklin once described the British generals as being as effective as a soldier on a tavern sign.

Jack Burgoyne was a British general who was more unlucky than incompetent. He arrived at Quebec early in the war with regiments of crack British troops and German mercenaries who were hired because many Britons refused to fight the Americans, their own flesh and blood.

Burgoyne invaded the U.S. by the Lake Champlain route where he was supposed to meet another British army advancing from New York.

The New England states would then be cut off. A more comical invasion would be difficult to imagine. A number of British officers brought their wives and lady friends along, riding in carriages which also carried private supplies of wine and food.

Roads had to be cut through the woods so the carriages could get through, and regimental bands played for the entertainment of all.

The Germans loved animals and collected a weird assortment of pets while they were training at Quebec. The soldiers marched through the woods wearing long blue or scarlet coats, waistcoats, tight breeches, high-buttoned gaiters, and lace stocks knotted around their throats.

They had to carry loads weighing 60 pounds or more, and yet they insisted on bringing their pets: bear cubs, raccoons, and even trained eagles.

With all that great effort, Burgoyne's army reached its objective on the Hudson River only to find that the other British army had gone to Philadelphia instead.

As a result Burgoyne's army was surrounded at Saratoga on Oct. 17, 1777, and surrendered with 6,000 men.

History books do not reveal what the Americans did with the 300 wives, lady friends and trained animals that had accompanied them!

Other events on Oct. 17:

1760 — British engineers under "Foul Weather" Byron, grandfather of the poet, destroyed Louisburg fortifications.

1794 — Captain Vancouver left Nootka after third voyage of exploration.

1877 — Sitting Bull refused to leave Saskatchewan and return to U.S.

1878 — Sir John A. Macdonald became prime minister again after election victory.

1899 — Canada agreed to send volunteer force to South Africa under Colonel W. D. Otter.

"Always half of what I happen to have at that time, eh? Fine if I last that long," replied Ted. "I have less than twenty bucks on me."

So the two friends started playing, and Ted ended up with $2.79 in hand.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

The tragedy of playing hurriedly to the first trick is strikingly illustrated in the deal diagrammed today. The hand arose in a recent rubber-bridge game.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♡

South's two no-trump opening call was a distinct overbid. As it turned out, however, he had it in his power to fulfill the final three no-trump contract. But he missed the boat.

West's jack of hearts opening lead was captured by the board's queen, after which a club was led, South's queen being finessed successfully.

Declarer now led a low heart, with every intention of inserting the board's nine-spot. But West spiked South's plan by putting up the heart 10, thus forcing dummy to win the trick with the ace.

Another club finesse was then taken, declarer's jack winning. As is apparent, South couldn't reach dummy again, since it is illegal to lead a king and overtake it with a nine-spot. So, in desperation, declarer laid down the club ace, hoping to catch East's king. When the king did not fall, South ended up with just eight tricks.

Had South looked ahead after the opening lead of the heart jack had been made, he would have perceived the possible necessity of reaching dummy three times to take three club finesses. He could have accomplished this objective in simple fashion once it was appreciated that West's lead of the heart jack denoted the possession of the 10 of hearts.

The opening heart lead should have been captured by the board's ace, with South dropping the king on this trick! With the dummy now possessing the Q-9 of hearts, and declarer the 6-5, it would be a routine matter to get to dummy two more times by finessing against West's 10 of hearts. South would now be assured of the opportunity to take three club finesses; and he would have come home with nine tricks.

She bought the long pink gown (8.00) and robe (27.00) on impulse one day, just because it looked so cosy. It was cosy . . . and she loved the soft feel of the brushed nylon. In fact, she wore it so often that when her birthday came round her husband (a wise and observant man) didn't have to ask. He went right to Eaton's and bought her the short length duo (gown 7.00, robe 23.00) this time in a delicious citrus colour. Now she's discarded all other sleepwear. NIXON VETOES PAY CONTROLS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon declared today that the nation "is on the road to recovery from the disease of runaway prices."

In a broadcast report on his administration's battle against inflation, Nixon said the steady rise in the cost of living had not yet been halted, but he said it had been slowed.

The president said: "We are not considering wage or price controls." Nor, he said, would he use the so-called guideline system of telling the working man how much he should charge for his services or how much a businessman should charge for his goods.

•

Labor Seeking Price Freeze

OTTAWA (CP)—In an unprecedented joint news conference, the Canadian Labor Congress and the Confederation of National Trade Unions today called for a one to two-year freeze on all prices.

CLC President Donald MacDonald said recent price increases have created serious hardships for many persons, particularly those on fixed incomes and in weak bargaining positions.

"Price increases should be permitted only in the case of those business firms which can properly justify such cases," he said. A prices review board would study requests for price increases.

"We reject outright the idea that voluntary guidelines can cope effectively with the current inflation. This is a highly oversimplified approach to a very complicated problem."

Any restraints on wage increases would be unjust unless other forms of income, such as profits, rents, interest, professional fees and real estate speculation, were similarly restrained.

RESEARCH LACKING

Since there was no practical way to restrain these other forms of income, the voluntary wage restraint approach was "highly impractical."

The federal prices and incomes commission has an important role to play in analysing the inflationary pressures in the economy, he said, but the commission was wrong to try to ask unions, business and governments for major policy commitments before it had completed the necessary research.

He disagreed with a suggestion that constitutional problems would prevent implementation of a freeze on prices.

"We believe it's quite within the competence of governments to restrain prices if they so desire."

Price regulation machinery could be established within 12 to 16 months, he said.

Wages, however, were not to be classed with prices. "There seems to be an impression abroad that wage increases of themselves are inflationary. This has not been established and we don't accept it."

A prices review board could determine whether wage increases justified price increases, he said.

"If there is to be any sacrifice within the various sectors of the economy then there has to be equality of sacrifice and the tendency has been to request of labor sacrifices that are in-

Russian Trawler Hit By Vietnam Shellfire

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese Navy vessel fired on and hit a Soviet trawler off the coast of South Vietnam on Thursday but the trawler escaped with smoke pouring from her forward section, official sources reported.

The informants said today the trawler was intercepted by a South Vietnamese naval patrol boat inside South Vietnam's 12-mile territorial waters limit south of Da Nang.

The patrol boat asked the trawler to identify herself and when she refused the Vietnamese fired a warning shot, the sources added.

When the trawler continued on her course, the Vietnamese craft fired another shot but this time aimed to hit and did, the sources said. Nevertheless, the trawler headed into open sea.

Earlier reports said the U.S. ships were involved, but a spokesman for the U.S. command denied this.

A spokesman for President Nguyen Van Thieu said: "We had a report of an incident off Quang Ngai. We have conflicting reports and we are checking further." Quang Ngai is a province south of Da Nang.

Soviet trawlers loaded with electronic monitoring equipment regularly shadow U.S. 7th Feet vessels off Vietnam.

Dock Strike Settlement Seen Close

Members To Study New Terms

About 600 Vancouver Island longshoremen will meet in Nanaimo Monday to study the terms of an agreement reached early today in Vancouver for settling the British Columbia strike which has halted all loading except grain in B.C. ports for 23 days.

Local spokesman Stan Ball said members of the Victoria, Port Alberni and Chemainus locals would take a ballot on the recommendations.

"We will have to vote on whether we will buy it. We don't know yet what's in the package."

He agreed with local shipping agent George Dawson that it would be three or four days before a decision could be reached and cargoes start moving.

At present there are 16 freighters waiting it out in Vancouver Island waters, three of them anchored at Royal Roads off the Victoria coastline.

BACK PACT

Following a nine-hour session ending about 3 a.m. PDT, federal mediator William Kelly said both the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union and the B.C. Maritime Employers Association had agreed to recommend approval of the terms to their members.

Settlement of the wage dispute came on the 23rd day of the strike by 3,200 longshoremen.

Mr. Kelly described the proposed contract, which would cover a two-year period, as a

Australians Urge Grants, Not Loans

By JOHN MIKA

The Australian delegation, seizing the initiative on the eve of the plenary sessions starting Monday, urged the Colombo Plan conference here today to reform its organization into a foreign aid plan rather than a foreign loan exchange.

The problem of interest charges and repayment instalments for the 18 recipient countries is growing so rapidly that one survey has estimated all Colombo Plan financial assistance will be totally eaten up in debt payments by 1975 unless there is a new trend to "soften" terms and increase the flow of financial aid.

P. J. Flood, head of the aid section in the Australian department of external affairs' delegation here, said his country has formally proposed to the six donor nations that they change their aid policies to ovecome the problem.

In a statement this morning, he said Australia has backed its position with deeds by consistently increasing its foreign aid

No Such Pact—Paris

PARIS (CP) — Informed circles here were quoted by Le Figaro today as saying it has never been part of arrangements between Ottawa and Paris that French ministers visiting Quebec should automatically visit the federal capital as well.

Neither is it true that a minister's visit to Ottawa would automatically mean that he should go to Quebec City, the newspaper reported the circles as saying.

FILTHY WATER pours into bucket as thirsty child waits for drink. Ottawa this week agreed to provide funds for clean water at Shell Beach.

Shell Beach Knows The Vivid Reality Of Polluted Water

By REG SILVESTER

The trail follows a gully, carved by the creek that's only a trickle in the bottom now.

About 200 yards up from the main road through Indian Reserve 13, a white pumphouse sits in such deep seclusion the sound of leaves tumbling down is startling.

But the pumphouse, leaves float on top of the still water that is making people sick at Shell Beach.

The little reservoir is contaminated.

"All specimens show coliform organisms," says the Indian health unit at Nanaimo.

They tested it in May of this year, and the year before.

But at last, relief is in sight. National NDP leader T. C. Douglas said in an interview from Ottawa this week the people of Shell Beach will get fresh, uncontaminated water from a clean-water well on the reserve which is to be uncapped and equipped with pump and pipes.

He said the Indian department would meet with band members to work out a long-term approach to the problem.

Shell Beach consists of 16 houses across Chemainus Bay from Ladysmith. On the other side of the peninsula, which is the reserve, a similar small community — Culleet Bay — also has bad water.

Responding to complaints this week, the Indian Affairs Branch uncapped a well of clean water, dug in 1966 but unused because of lack of money, and promised to spend about $2,500 to pipe water on a temporary basis to Culleet Bay.

Four out of five specimens taken from the current water source there show coliform organisms.

. . . SHELL BEACH

Mrs. Lawrence Harris, the kindergarten bus driver at Shell Beach, pours water from the tap in her yard into a bucket. She watches for the scum she has become used to seeing settle to the bottom. It doesn't.

Her husband is the chief, so she knows the Indian Affairs branch sent two engineers that day to look at the supply system.

"They must have put chlorine in it."

But if they did, it would only last a couple of days. The 1,000-gallon tank the pumphouse fills often, empties fast. At times during the summer, people would find their taps dry, the tank empty and await until morning athe only way to get water.

Across the grounds of a deserted school from the Harris house, Vince Louie, a band councillor, is digging out his septic tank. It's stopped up and overflowing, and he wants to fix it.

"I'm luckier than most of the people here. I have indoor plumbing," he says, climbing out of the trench to talk.

He credits the plumbing for the fact that none of his family has been sick. All the water they use goes through the hot water tank first.

Three other houses have indoor plumbing, and three now under construction will probably have it too.

One of them belongs to Raymond Harris, the chief's son. Until it's finished, he's living in a different part of the reserve where the water is clean.

But during the summer, he and his wife brought their infant daughter and two-year-old son to stay for two weeks in his parents' house while they were on holidays.

Within four days, the children were in hospital with the stomach cramps and diarrhea that accompany salmonella, a disease usually caused by food poisoning.

As the kindergarten bus driver, his mother heard of other cases of the disease and began to complain.

During the past year, the hospital at Ladysmith handled at least 13 cases of salmonella from the reserve. Children are usually the most susceptible.

The head of the Indian health unit in Nanaimo says the contamination is not necessarily human. It could be vegetable.

It's hard to keep still surface water from being contaminated, he said, especially when there's no control of the watershed that feeds it.

The water at the reservoir at Sheell Beach, sitting three to four feet deep behind a small concrete dam, comes from a swamp.

If you drink the water regularly, health officers say there's "a good possibility" you will get sick.

The people at Shell Beach are drinking the contaminated water. The let it sit in buckets first, hoping the contamination will settle out.

But it still doesn't taste good, and it makes their tea very, very black.

'Good Night' Will Change To 'Goodbye'

NEW YORK (AP) — After more than 13 years of saying "Good night, David," Chet Huntley is expected to leave NBC News next year, the New York Times say.

Huntley, who has paired with David Brinkley in one of television's best-known news teams, probably will leave between February and June, The Times says.

But NBC News President Reuven Frank said a more realistic date would be after the 1970 non-presidential-year elections.

Huntley, 57, said his departure is contingent upon completion of arrangements for a $15,000,000 resort area he plans to develop in his native Montana.

"It has to come to an end sometime," Huntley told The Times. "There's no crunch now. But I don't intend to keel over in this office."

Brinkley was quoted as saying: "I'd stay a while if they asked me."

The pair was teamed in October, 1956, and the "Good night, Chet . . . Good night, David," closing soon became familiar to many households.

Their program brings NBC advertising revenue estimated at $30,000,000 a year.

Suspects Released

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — Two suspects, held almost 24 hours for investigation into the $600 armed robbery of a Credit Union office, have been released into the custody of British Columbia Penitentiary officials. Municipal Police Inspector Frank Colpitts said the two men were taken over as parole violators. He said no charges concerning the robbery had been laid against the men.

history-making arrangement. He said it could set the pattern for handling containerization problems plaguing most North American ports.

Details of the agreement were not released.

Mr. Kelly said work could be back to normal within a week at the six deep sea ports affected by the strike—Vancouver, Prince Rupert and Kitimat on the B.C. mainland and Victoria, Chemainus and Ladysmith on Vancouver Island.

SOUGHT 93½ CENTS

The dock workers downed tools Sept. 25 after rejecting an employer offer of a 75-cent hourly wage increase over three years. The longshoremen wanted 93½ cents over two years, on a base rate of $3.88 an hour.

From the start, the longshoremen offered to continue handling grain cargos but the employers association, despite federal government pleas, refused to put on gangs to work ships except for four grain ships in harbor when the strike started.

The federal government, arguing that a stoppage in grain shipments would endanger export contracts vital to Prairie farmers, took over direction of grain loading with longshoremen working under the national harbors board.

The federal government's intervention brought bitter protests from B.C. businessmen that the action discriminated against the province's vital forestry and mining exports.

LEGISLATURE MEETS AGAIN JAN. 22

The next legislative session will begin Jan. 22, Premier Bennett announced today.

He picked the traditional Thursday for an opening of the first session of the 29th legislature of B.C. which will be dominated by 38 Social Credit MLAs.

The NDP representation as official opposition was cut to 12 and Liberals contingent reduced to 5 in the Aug. 27 election.

Bank Act 'Blunder' —Bennett

Premier Bennett today said the federal government should reopen the Bank Act in its coming session and wipe out the "blunder" it made in the last amendment which permitted chartered banks to charge more than 6 per cent for loans.

In a vehement statement to a press conference, he said Ottawa should clamp the 6 per cent ceiling on chartered banks again and the central bank should "roll back" the current level of high interest rates through its monetary control of chartered banks.

Bennett said the federal government's bank rate "blunder" and its record of deficit financing were among the main reasons for the present inflationary spiral.

He said the only other major reason was for inflation was the tendency of wages to outstrip productivity.

Bennett contended that the federal government must meet the three causes head on and "solve not just salve them over" if inflation was to be overcome.

He predicted, however, that interest rates have hit their peak and will start a decline, probably slowly, from present levels.

Bennett emphasized that he was not demanding more program curtailments which could bring unemployment.

He accused "The United States and Canada of trying to force "stormy economic weather.

"You can see it in all of their (government) statements—saying to cut back and cut back," he said.

Bennett said Socred policies in B.C. were neither inflationary nor deflationary.

WIRES BACK WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House reports President Nixon's Vietnam policy is being supported by more than 4 to 1 in telegrams tabulated in the wake of Vietnam Moratorium Day.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the telegrams did not relate directly to the demonstration but coincided with it.

outflow at a time when total world aid to developing nations is stationary or even declining.

OUTRIGHT GIFTS

"Australia now has formally suggested to a conference special committee, that a much higher proportion of aid needs to be in the form of grants, that is, outright gifts," he said.

"Too much 'hard-term' lending to the developing countries is being classified as 'aid' when it is no more than commercial credit.

'The loans must take account of the repayment capacity of recipient countries. Australia has asked 'what's the point of hard-term loans which givers know, at the outset, cannot be repaid?'," he concluded.

But his question will be taken up as one of the main themes of the conference proper which ends Oct. 31.

PACIFIC NATIONS

There will be plenty of well-known and unknown government representatives from various Pacific nations mulling it over as the 20-year-old Colombo Plan enters one of its most crucial discussions, according to conference secretary-general John Hadwen who gave a press briefing Thursday afternoon.

Hadwen — an ambassador in Canada's external affairs department — said there was no question that the Colombo Plan will survive but the current meeting likely will re-shape it to meet changed conditions.

He asid the calibre of ministerial delegates and their staffs attracted to this year's meeting is above average because of the vial nature of the discussions.

He said most of the Asian member countries are sending senior government ministers to the meeting and particularly noted as significant the likelihood that Indonesia's foreign minister will come for the windup.

CHAIRMAN

Hadwen said External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp will arrive to lead Canada's delegation from Monday on and is expected to be named conference chairman as well.

He said at least one other federal minister — believed to be Finance Minister Benson — is expected to attend along with five MPs who are members of the external affairs parliamentary committee. Some provinces also will send representatives.

The five MPs are: Norman Cafik (L—Pickering), Keith Penner (L—Thunder Bay), Marcel Prud'Homme (L-Montreal-St. Denis), Gordon Fairweather (PC—Fundy-Royal), and Bruce Howard (L—Okanagan-Boundary).

The week-long meetings of technical staffs behind closed doors ended today with preparation of the reports which will be discussed at the plenary sessions in the coming two weeks.

PUBLIC SPEECHES

Many of the plenary sessions also will be closed to the press and public but considerably more briefings, interviews and one-shot public speeches will make Victorians more aware of the international group gathered in their midst.

The technical reports assembled this week largely recount the operations—both successes and failures—of various aid projects in the recipient countries to enable all participants to provide both criticism and advice aimed at improving the Colombo Plan's effectiveness.

That's a leading reason for keeping so many meetings under wraps but the conference planners also will try to achieve a goal of increasing public understanding everywhere of the need and value of continuing foreign aid programs and that's why there will be several spectacular breaches of the general silence.

Fatal Shot Fired At Close Range

Seven witnesses appeared before Coroner Edmond St. Jorre de Jorre Thursday night to give evidence at the inquest into the death of Norma Maureen Desjardins.

Miss Desjardins who was also known as Norma Maureen Shepard died Oct. 4 as the result of a bullet from a .303 rifle fired from close range, experts said.

Dr. John Marsden, St. Joseph's hospital pathologist who conducted the autopsy, told the jury the bullet that killed her shattered her right wrist before inflicting a large wound in her upper left chest. A small exit wound was left in her back.

S. Sgt. H. G. Van Dusen, RCMP firearm expert from Vancouver, said after having test-fired the rifle found at the scene it was his opinion it had been fired at close range.

Constable Hugh B. McCombe of the Colwood RCMP detachment said he arrived at 232 Island Highway about 10 p m. Oct. 4 and found the deceased and Arthur David Shepard who was "upset and talking all the time."

McCombe and Constable Richard F. Lee, who also testified, later took two statements from Shepard who was charged with non-capital murder. A stay of proceedings was ordered later by the Crown.

Dr. John S. P. Lane, a general practitioner in the Colwood area, said he went to the Shepard address in answer to a call and pronounced the woman dead around 10:35 p.m. Oct. 4.

Bruce G. Chayter, who lives in the apartment below the Shepard residence, said he tried to administer first aid to the woman before police arrived.

Brian A. Calloway, the dead woman's brother-in-law, told the jury he indentified the body.

The inquest was adjourned until Wednesday at 7.30 p m. in the Law Courts.

Pope, Bishops Must Consult —Archbishop

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Roman Catholic archbishop of Paris submitted a working paper to the Synod of Bishops today calling for considerably more consultation between the Pope and his bishops.

The key points in the paper presented by Francois Cardinal Marty to the 146 prelates from around the world were:

1. The Pope should inform himself of the thinking of all the Church's bishops before releasing a major document.

2. The national bishops' conferences should insist on at least being warned before the release of such documents.

3. A synod of bishops should meet once a year, or at the most once every two years, to advise the Pope.

4. Commissions should be set up by each national bishops' conference corresponding to the offices of the Roman Curia to increase contract between the central church administration and the bishops in the field.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

Although you can get sunburned in winter if you are out under the blue sky on the sunny side of a mountain slope, it isn't nearly as easy to get a burn as it is in the summer. It isn't because there is less heat to be felt in the sun. It's because of the slant of the sun.

You can probably remember a summer's afternoon when you sat in the shade to get away from the glare of the sun, but discovered that night that your face and arms were burned a fiery red. The ultraviolet rays that you couldn't see gave you the sunburn.

When the sun is high overhead, as it is in summer, you are in danger of burn from the ultraviolet rays. In winter the rays have too far to go and they are coming at you from a different angle.

They slant through layer after layer in the earth's lower atmosphere and by the time they reach you they aren't very potent. The sun feels good but it won't burn except under unusual conditions.

Regional Evolution

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS MINISTER Campbell is quite right in his description of the difference between metro government and the regional system. The former is a fourth level of government, the latter technically is not. However, when regional boards assume a large number of important powers they become an agency of administration which ought to be placed under the restrictions that govern a level of government—that is, they should become directly responsible to the electors and not merely to the municipal councils that appoint representatives to regional boards.

As Mr. Campbell rightly says, there are a number of aspects of municipal government which should be preserved. Even when regional boards take over many of the functions heretofore under municipal jurisdiction, there will remain responsibilities such as provision of sewerage connections, construction and repair of streets, garbage collection, and similar services. But whether municipal councils will be content with such relatively minor chores is another matter.

The point would come at which the regional board would find it more efficient to levy taxes directly for necessary revenue—and at that point the spending of such revenue would have to come more closely under the control of the voting public. After that, the difference between a metro government and a regional board would become largely academic. The name of the game should be dependent on the results of the function performed.

Regionalism, at any rate in the form which we enjoy at present in this area, is certainly not equivalent to amalgamation. It is, as the minister points out, merely a mechanism by which separate municipal governments may perform joint activities for joint benefit. Hospital construction, parks which cater to the whole regional area, planning for the area as a whole—these are very proper functions for regional boards. To them Mr. Campbell now adds water distribution, property assessment, garbage disposal, transit, air pollution and housing.

How long will it be before police and fire services are also added? There is little doubt that, although staff at the patrol level would probably not be reduced, there could be appreciable savings at the administrative level. There is little more than custom to support the present compartmented arrangement, even though excellent teamwork exists among the various forces.

What the public must watch for, in welcoming the increased efficiency and expectable savings to be derived from further applications of the regional system, is that an overall regional board and its subsidiary committees should not be so removed from direct public control and selection that they become relatively independent satrapies, in practice if not in theory beyond the reach of the voter.

Mr. Campbell has done the province a service in pressing for regional arrangements to simplify local government. It is well that he has refrained from force in urging that this service or that should go regional. But it is obvious that the force is available if required. In most cases municipalities have been happy enough to set up regional boards composed of municipal council representatives. But the real test will come when the tail begins to wag the dog, when junior outgrows his municipal progenitors and begins to overshadow the parental authority. Some mayors and aldermen may already see the portent of things to come; it would be unlikely that Mr. Campbell does not see it also.

Best They Can With What They Have

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE of the B.C. Teachers' Federation leaves no doubt of its continuing opposition to the current provincial school financing formula. The federation's October Newsletter is emphatic on that score—but adds that "problems caused by the formula should not be accepted as an excuse for any deterioration of teaching and learning conditions."

Leaders of the profession's governing body issue what amounts to an injunction to members to keep doing the best they can even if circumstances are not entirely to their liking. This is in contrast to objections last year which took the form of token work stoppages because of what were called intolerable conditions.

There is room for argument about the profession's opposition to "legislation which requires a school board to seek approval from municipal councils or representatives or from ratepayers through a referendum for any portion of its operating budgets."

When that legislation was promulgated, the minister of education made the point that some school boards were not as provident as others, and that the ones who paid the piper, meaning the taxpayers, had some claim to call the tune. The method by which the tune is called, however, has brought from the teachers an examination of referendums. They are, says the federation, undemocratic. Only owner-electors vote and a mere 40 per cent of those voting can defeat a referendum—a case of minority rule. The referendum, adds the federation, reflects more the public's reaction to higher municipal taxes than it does to matters of education.

Less acceptable is the BCTF's implied complaint that when a referendum is defeated the schools suffer for taxation practices over which they have no control. Is it the opinion of the teachers that they should tell the taxpayer what he should pay? Anyone who thinks so might consider the statement made here last month by Dr. S. N. F. Chant. He quoted Dr. R. B. Bryce, deputy minister of national revenue, and one of the country's most highly regarded experts on government finance, to the effect that the cost of university and college education alone in Canada will equal the country's total productive capacity by 1994 if current trends continue.

Somewhere along the line, obviously, the taxpayer has to reserve the right to call a halt, to point out that there are limits and to remind educationists that services other than education also have to be financed.

What Limits on the High Seas?

FROM SAN DIEGO COMES NEWS of "a furious war" to see which nation can develop the tuna fleet most effective in harvesting the fish on the high seas. According to present statistics, the Japanese still lead, but the United States, a virtual non-competitor as recently as 10 years ago, has moved into an "uneasy" second place, with Taiwan, Korea, European and South American countries expanding their fleets to participate in a haul of a reported million tons a year.

This is interesting as an indication of technical progress in harvesting a highly palatable and useful fish. Each of the nations concerned may be expected to improve its equipment and methods and conceivably will continue to increase its catches.

But for how long? On the high seas, who establishes the conservation measures which seem essential for all types of food fish if they are not to be over-exploited? Are we here being informed of more "progress" in liquidating a resource? Or have we come around to the point where that possibility is worth considering on an international basis?

REPORT FROM MRS. NOGGINS

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Secret of Perpetual Commotion

MY neighbor, Mrs. Alfred Noggins, returned from a visit to her married daughter in Ottawa today and informed me that things were fine in the nation's capital.

Hutchison

"Since we got participatory democracy," she said, "nobody knows wot the gover'mint is doin' and even the cabinet can't read the Thoughts of Chairman Pierre in the little red book, all the pages blank so far. Well, it's best to keep national policies secret or first thing you know the 'Ouse of Commons will start arguin' about the public business, the elected members might generate some idears of their own and the country couldn't stand the strain.

"But don't worry. The solutions to all our problems will be comin' out of the computers any day now, neatly packaged, pre-cooked and ready for instant use. They probably won't work, of course, but in this troubled age you can't expect everything.

"Anyways, you can 'ear the whir and clank of the thinkin' machines on Parliament Hill a mile off, and so many of Trudeau's lost task forces are rushin' about the town in search of the final answers that traffic is at a standstill, the post office department 'as collapsed under the weight of Eric Kierans' new efficiency and Canada is the first nation in 'istory to build a just society before it's learned how to deliver the mail.

Leadin' the World

"Tis no matter. We're above these sordid considerations. We're leadin' the world into collective security by cuttin' down our defences. We're teachin' China the ways of peace by negotiations at Stockholm while the mobs wreck Montreal, projectin' a shiny image of Canadian identity everywhere, and the army is movin' up to the Arctic to protect us from the Eskimos and the polar bears. We may not 'ave law and order, but we've sure got sovereignty and that's wot counts.

"Besides, we've got permanent prosperity, thanks to the Economic Council which gallantly offered to rescue the gover'mint from a fatal mistake in the nick of time. Jest do the opposite of anything you intend to do, the council tells Trudeau, jest plead guilty to all charges, repujiate everything you've ever said, stop fightin' the false bogeyman of inflation and you'll be all right.

"Then Trudeau suddenly remembered that the mess we're in was all planned by the experts from the beginnin' and 'e decides, as a reckless experiment, to do the opposite of wot they say, and with a little bit of luck we might pull through the crisis yet, in spite of all the scientific advice.

"Only one thing is clear up to now. It's that wages and profits 'ave nothing to do with prices. Every labor union and business executive 'as always known this obvious fact but it's some'ow escaped public notice.

"If the cost of production rises, and prices follow it's merely an odd coincidence, as Uncle 'Erbert said when the London detectives found 'im with the Egyptian belly dancer, a case of stolen champagne and a dreadful 'angover.

"Nacherally, that wise man, Bryce Mackasey, 'as warned the gover'mint that it can't interfere with collective bargainin' even if the western ports are closed, Montreal without police or firemen and prices so 'igh that a roast of beef 'as become a wistful folk memory in a nation with the world's second richest livin' standard.

"But these abundant blessin's don't satisfy the left wing of the NDP in the season of Thanksgivin' and it's meetin' in Winnipeg to frame a truly socialist system. I can't imagine why, when we've achieved a better system than Karl Marx ever dreamed of.

"The gover'mint doesn't need to nationalize anything more because it already takes more than 'alf the profits of every business in taxes without takin' any investment risks or responsibility. If things go wrong somebody else is to blame, never the gover'mint, and the revenues pour in all the faster as inflation speeds up and no one suffers, except the people. I tell you Canada 'as discovered the secret of perpetual commotion at last.

"Poor old Karl didn't live to see 'is Utopia in full bloom but the modern socialists are determined to improve it still more. Since gover'mint always mismanages everything it touches, and can't even keep the mails movin' on time, it's logical, says the NDP, to extend the control of the state over the rest of the economy and finish the job that Marx started, while the premier of Manitoba, with a frightened look back over his shoulder, assures the wicked capitalists of New York that private enterprise is absolutely safe in 'is sympathetic 'ands.

"So the Just Society advances on all fronts, with every class and province in the country 'atin' the others more every day in a broad regional equality. Myself, I'd settle for a letter from my girl in Ottawa only a week or two late but I guess that's too much to ask until Kierans scraps 'is old-fashioned computin' machines and trains a new flock of carrier pigeons for the glorious age of technology."

The Voice of Autumn

Through shadowy veils of rain we are aware
Of burning bush, and feel we tread on holy ground.
Now even those callous to color stare
At autumn-splendored trees as if they sense the sound
Of that strong Voice within the fire that empowers
The heart to sing in thanks for bounty that is ours.

—Margaret Hurdon Keifer.

Times Good Music

I do want to tell you how much I enjoyed your program Monday evening, first hearing that dear Scottish song and my favorite, "Loch Lomond." Second on hearing remarks about TV being the wrong thing for school children, which I do think is correct as there are so many programs on TV that are decidedly wrong for school children. I used to listen all the time to your hour on CJVI as I always have my radio tuned to that station—for 14 years now—in preference to any Vancouver station. — Mrs. Barbara McGalliard, 12664-24 Ave. White Rock.

Caddy or Otters?

In reference to your October 8 front page story regarding "Caddy's Kiddy" — from the description (and the photo on page 17) it looks as though it might be one of the Aleutian Islands sea otters recently released hereabouts.

On the TV news reports showing the release of these delightful creatures it was apparent that they made an undulating movement through the water, not unlike everyone's idea of a sea serpent. Also, they appeared to be between four and five feet in length.

The reason they may be unfamiliar to your readers is because no one has seen a sea otter in these parts, its original home, since the turn of the century when they were virtually exterminated for their fur.— Phyllis Young (Miss), 3024 Kings Ave., Vancouver.

White Collar Unions

In the Times of October 7, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce urges the federal government to prohibit strikes by federal employees.

The Chamber of Commerce is highly critical of the Woods Task Force on Industrial Relations, as is also the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. This attitude is to be expected from groups that are mainly profit motivated. The Chamber of Commerce, among other proposed restrictions, would refuse the establishment of a public interest disputes commission.

I am a member of the Professional Institute of Public Service of Canada, whose executive director is L. W. C. S. Barnes. May I quote from the Exec. Directors Notebook of P.I.P.S. Magazine September 1969:

"Some of the research studies carried out on behalf of the Task Force on Labor Relations (the Woods Task Force), are now being published. An interesting example is a paper on the growth of white-collar unionism by George Bain in the current issue of 'Industrial Relations.'

. . . "On the assumption that democratic decision making is in itself desirable, he draws the conclusion that the relative lack of unionism amongst the white-collar sector of the community is a serious matter. After reviewing the major influences which govern the development of white-collar unionism, he goes on to show that, while the organization of white-collar workers and professionals in the public sector is more advanced than in the private sector, there is still room for improvement in both law and philosophy as they govern the public service staff relation scene."

In the past, the professional has been status conscious, but times are a-changing, and he is now asking for a voice in the decision making as it affects his work.—Mrs. Berta Schmidt, 765 Arden.

AT UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

Sympathy for Nixon Follows Moratorium

THE United Nations tried very hard to be diplomatically correct about the Vietnam "Moratorium" in the United States. It was a domestic matter, and States. It was a domestic matter, and the world community could not be officially involved. But the fact is the international community here, from Secretary-General U Thant down, was extremely interested in Wednesday's events, a little astonished that they could happen in a country at war, and eager to analyze their probable effects. Much of the UN comment, in private, reflected a sympathetic concern for what is seen as President Nixon's "plight"—a desire to disengage from the war but inability to do so in honorable conditions. Many UN people doubted that the moratorium would help, and were therefore critical of it.

Frye

Senator Edmund Muskie (D) of Maine, who lunched with Thant Tuesday, put into words one major concern of those who worry about the effect of the moratorium.

Peace Initiatives

Pressure from young Americans for total, precipitate disengagement, Muskie said, "may deprive us of the freedom" to take imaginative diplomatic initiatives leading toward peace and American withdrawal in conditions of political stability for South Vietnam.

Muskie, who was Democratic candidate for vice president in 1968, said he and Thant had discussed several possible peace initiatives which could be taken if there were sufficient "flexibility" in Washington, Saigon and Hanoi.

They included:

● An effort to deal with the "political results of disengagement"—presumably an offer to talk with the Communists about a coalition regime.

● An offer of, or unilateral decision to initiate, a stand-still cease-fire, with "some kind of discussion of the political arrangements tied to a cease-fire."

In so far as Wednesday's moratorium presses President Nixon and the Saigon government in these directions, it could be constructive, Muskie indicated. But he said he feared it might, in fact, have exactly the opposite effect.

"We might be deprived of the chance to try such initiatives," he said, "if we get caught up in a wave of emotionalism about disengagement."

"Political realism is essential on all sides," he said. "If either tries to press the other toward a capitulation, this will hinder the prospect of peace."

He indicated that he feared the moratorium would tempt the Communists to do just that.

Other non-Communist comment here, even from sources not normally friendly to American policy, includes similar concern that the moratorium may encourage the Communists to hold out for victory, rather than negotiate a compromise of the kind the United States could accept.

This note of sympathetic concern for the American diplomatic posture is new here. During most of the Johnson era, private comment on Vietnam was harsh.

The UN community, broadly speaking, has accepted the proposition that Nixon wishes to disengage from the war if it can be done in conditions of minimum honor. By that is meant the absence of an overt Communist government in Saigon, and-or a massive purge of Vietnamese anti-Communists.

UN people say, however, that the reality would be a military defeat for the United States. They know the United States has never lost a war (although it did accept a stalemate in Korea) and that — as Muskie indicated — the experience may be traumatic for many Americans.

Domestic Backlash

Some diplomats, speaking very privately, say they fear the possible domestic backlash in the United States of a humiliating defeat. They say it could lead to a wave of recriminations and irrational anti-Communism reminiscent of the MacCarthy era that followed national frustration in Korea.

UN people, however, do not see anything they can usefully do, as an organization, about it. They are trying hard not to "become involved."

Thant, for example, has carefully avoided public comment — something he has not always done in the past when he felt Washington needed to be nudged.

The effect of this policy is to avoid adding to Washington's embarrassment — a fact which, in itself, reflects the new attitude of solicitude for the administration.

Looking Back

From the Times of Oct. 17, 1909:

There is a distinct improvement in the state of Victoria Musical Society's subscription list for the coming season. Much, however, remains to be done and those who wish to secure for this city a continuance of visits from notable musical artists are asked to support the society in its hour of need. Season tickets can be secured for $5, $7.50 or $10, according to location of seats.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Bloom Off Stock Boom

Late-in-the-day performance helped Toronto maintain a five-day string of trading advances, but at New York the market was off and volume considerably short of Thursday's sharp rally.

Western oils were still in decline and at Vancouver profit-taking was seen in the mines list.

AT TORONTO, prices were slightly up near the close of trade, bringing the market's rise to its fifth consecutive day.

All groups except western oils showed strength in afternoon trading which overcame slight early declines.

Among industrials, Algoma was up ⅞ to 16¾, Cominco ¾ to 30 and Union Gas ⅜ to 16⅞. Stelco fell ⅝ to 23 and Consumers' Gas and the CPR ¼ each to 15½ and 76½, respectively.

Western oils continued to drift down. Asamera was off 1½ to 22½ and Dome Pete ⅝ to 71⅜. Imperial dropped ⅛ to 17⅛ and Texaco ½ to 26½.

AT MONTREAL, the stock market firmed slightly but continued lower during light afternoon trading.

Papers led losses while utilities alone were higher than at Thursday's close.

In banks, Montreal declined ¼ to 15⅜ and Canadienne Nationale ⅛ to 10⅞.

Among industrials, Velcro declined 1 point to 43, Radio Engineering 1 point to 27, Du Pont ⅝ to 27¾ and Falconbridge ½ to 144½ while Asbestos Corp. picked up ½ to 24.

AT VANCOUVER, profit-taking hit the mining section of the Vancouver stock exchange in late-morning trading.

Brenda fell .25 to $12, Lornex dropped .50 to $14, Utica was off .15 to $2.35 and Valley Copper lost .12 to $16.

On the plus side, a good gain was made by Bethlehem, up $2 to $18. Magnum put on .15 at $2.95.

In oils, Abidonne rose .10 to $2.50 while Bison fell .15 to $2.10.

United Bata gained .05 to $3.70.

Hamilton Harvey rose .45 to $2.95 and Fields was up .37 to $8.12. Capital Estates lost .25 to $2.

AT LONDON, the stock market moved ahead, although there was little buying support to extend initial gains.

Among leaders, Rank A was 1s 4½d higher at 111s 3d while Unilever was 9d up at 55s and Beechams 6d firmer at 38s 6d.

In shipping Furness-Withy rose 3s 4½d to 62s 4½d. Elsewhere, Hudson's Bay, Bowaters and banks were firm.

The firm trend in transatlantic markets enabled Canadians to go ahead, although in oils, Dome lost 6 points at 172, Pacific Petroleum eased 1¼ at 72 and Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas, Imperial and Gulf eased.

Gains were made by International Nickel, West Coast Transmission, Hiram Walker, Consolidated Bathurst, Brascan, Noranda and Central Del Rio. Banks were firm.

CHICAGO (AP) — Early losses ranging around 1 cent in wheat, corn and soybeans futures were sharply trimmed today in a late rally on the Board of Trade.

Liquidation of the three major commodity futures was active on the opening and prices quickly fell back around 1 cent.

Some of the selling in corn and soybeans was of a hedging nature against purchases in the country. But there also was some speculative liquidation along with some profit taking off recent advances.

Around midsession, however, soybean oil and soybean meal attracted some buying interest and turned strong.

Money Squeeze Eased, Rates Dip

OTTAWA (CP) — Pressure on the Canadian money market eased this week and rates for short-term cash dipped to the lowest point since mid-summer.

Weekly statistics issued Thursday night by the Bank of Canada show commercial banks with more ready money on hand after a squeeze position which forced a record borrowing of $42 million from the central bank last week.

The rare drawing from the government bank, shown as repaid in this week's statement, had Bank of Canada officials wondering whether the chartered banks were testing to see how far they could push their emergency right to borrow in a cash-shy situation.

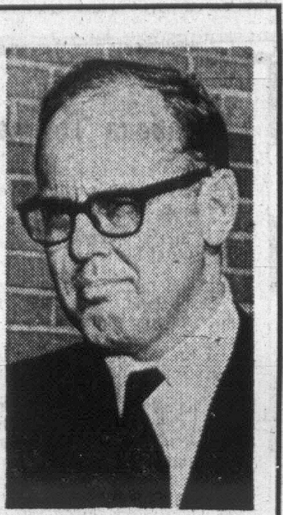
Tune In To The Inner Harbor



STEWART
. . . shares his 'fever'

By JOHN DRISCOLL

It could have been a production by the San Fransisco Chamber of Commerce.

While about 150 businessmen—contractors, realtors, financiers—milled about sipping refreshments the music in the background exhorted those going to San Fransisco to be sure to wear flowers in their hair.

Slides of San Fransisco were automatically being projected on a small screen and posters of that city stared down from the walls.

On tables were mounds of booklets with advice on eating, sightseeing and taking pictures in San Fransisco.

But it was Victoria city council making the presentation Thursday and it wasn't designed to sell San Fransisco to local contractors and developers.

* * *

The presentation at the McPherson Playhouse was designed to convince people to pump $30 million in the redevelopment of Victoria's Inner Harbor area.

The San Fransisco theme was an illustration of what can be done.

"We're trying to stimulate a little interest outside city hall in a very precious area of our city," explained Ald. Ian Stewart.

Stewart, along with city planning director Geoffrey Greenhalgh, visited San Francisco in April and came back armed with photographs and a belief that the redevelopment there can be applied to Victoria.

"We want to transfer this redevelopment fever to you," said Stewart.

The Inner Harbour or Warf Street renewal scheme involves 55 acres designed to open up the waterfront area to the public and integrate residential, commercial and industrial uses.

* * *

"In San Francisco we saw a community that recognized its historic background and had pride in its place, enough to work to create something beautiful."

Stewart said it was up to the contractors, financiers and property owners to involve themselves in the venture.

"I think we can do what they did in San Fransisco. City hall can supply the leadership but it's up to you."

Stewart said the only financial involvement by the city would be the purchase of Ocean Cement Ltd. which will have to be relocated if the project is to succeed.

Greehalgh showed slides of San Fransisco redevelopment and contrasted them with some pictures of the current development in Victoria's Inner Harbor.

Those who attended the meeting were asked to pay $1 to join the Victoria Civic Development Society. The society was formed for the purpose of chartering a plane to San Fransisco in April.

* * *

Stewart said today more than 110 people joined the society and will be asked to pay their own way down to San Fransisco.

"This is probably the first time this kind of meeting between the council and the business community has taken place," he said.

He said redevelopment commitments have already been made in the area. The full scope of the project will have tremendous impact on Victoria, he added.

"Renewal means new ideas for an area," he said. "We're running this like a campaign and a successful campaign."

37 MILLION TO JAM ISLANDS, OPEN AREAS

Keep 'Urban Nightmare' From Gulf Paradise

By JIM HUME

By 1981 the Gulf Islands and Vancouver Island north of Victoria will be the recreation or residential target for 37 million persons.

Ald Ian Stewart, of Victoria, chairman of the capital region planning board, told the Nanaimo Rotary Club today the combined populations of Victoria, Nanaimo, Vancouver and the states of Washington, Oregon and California would be exerting fantastic pressures on the Gulf Islands and Vancouver Island a decade from now.

"It is already well established that the affluent society, with its high salaries and portable pensions, is a nomadic society.

"At one time California, the paradise of the Pacific coast, was the place they dreamed of retiring to.

•

"But that one-time paradise has been ruined by over-development, frightening smog in its urban areas, and the recent tragedy brought about by off-shore drilling.

"In the state of Washington we already have what is basically one city stretching from Bellingham in the north to Tacoma in the south."

Stewart said the mounting population could only look to one area for privacy, insulation and environment free from the nightmares of urban living.

Stewart has long been the advocate of an over-all plan for the essential control of the Gulf Islands and Vancouver Island north of Victoria.

"Possibly I am thinking too big," he said. "But the ideal plan for the future of the Gulf Islands and Vancouver Island would be one formulated by the Canadian, Unites States and British Columbia governments who should be thinking now of developing a parks-acquisition program to provide an environment fit for our children to live in, not only in the Canadian islands but in the San Juan group as well."

•

Stewart said the provincial government could lead the way by stating immediately "we will not approve one more subdivision in the Gulf Islands until the regional plan now under design, is completed.

"Only after that will we consider any proposals, commercial or residential for the Gulf Islands."

The alderman added that it was obvious that development cannot be allowed to proceed beyond its present point without an over-all design.

"You don't turn your business over to your son after you've run it into the ground.

"Neither do you turn your community over to your son after you've ruined it."

In addition to the over-development threat, Stewart said he looked with considerable fear on the recent permission to permit an oil company to start drilling exploration in the Strait of Georgia.

"Once you permit that, I think you have gone too far," he said.

"You have permitted a commercial operation, with all its heavy ancillary industries to intrude into what should be retained as a recreational, scenic and residential area."

Stewart also warned that in addition to the obvious population increase, the Roberts Bank development would create the greatest commercial explosion ever known on the West Coast.

Health Club Man To Try Again

Health club operator Ove Witt who missed a Victoria council seat by 400 votes in 1968 will make another try in December.

The 42-year-old Witt called a press conference for this afternoon at which he was to formally announce his candidacy.

In 1968 he finished in sixth place in the aldermanic race, but only 400 votes behind fourth place finisher Harold Olafson.

A native of Denmark, Witt has operated his health club in the basement of the Strathcona Hotel for the past 11 years.

Witt is the second candidate to enter the aldermanic race. Car dealer Peter Pollen has also announced that he will be a candidate.

Clean-Up Kids Ready Saturday

Clean-minded kids are going after dirty old Colquitz Creek again Saturday.

SPACE (Students promoting a clean environment) will be there. So will SFERE (Students for environmental rescue). So will some University of Victoria types.

They all have the blessings of Saanich municipality, in particular parks administrator Bert Richman who will see to refreshments.

Saanich wants the creek banks cleared of scrub and brush.

SPACE was formed Thursday at a Victoria High School meeting. Sue Williams, a 16-year-old student there and group president, says that while the group's prime target is litter, "we're also concerned about air, water and soil pollution."

SFERE is based at Oak Bay Senior Secondary. Most of its 65 members are expected at the 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. session at the creek.

The area, along Interurban, was the scene of a combined rock-show, anti-pollution happening when a man named Joe Pilot led the New Left in a down-with-dirt-in-the-creek campaign during the summer.

BOYS CAN TALK WAY TO IDAHO

Eloquent boys from 11 to 16 years of age can talk their way to Boise, Idaho next June and maybe to a $1,000 scholarship as the result of an offer by the three Optimist service clubs in Victoria.

The service clubs are sponsoring a free public speaking course for 12 boys beginning Nov. 4 with Rev. Frederick W. Hayes of St. Alban's Anglican church instructing.

The district winner on completion of the course in May will go to the Pacific Northwest convention in Boise and if successful on to an international convention in September to try for the scholarship.

Classes will meet every Tuesday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at Oaklands school.

SWISHING through the fallen leaves—and probably feeling groovy—Philip Patterson and Blair Rhodes head down Beach Drive, just inside the Uplands gates, this morning during Malvern and Westerham Schools' walking tour of the Oak Bay-Victoria perimeter. About 80 boys from the Rockland Avenue school took part in the walkathon to raise money to buy a van. Others who enjoy sluffing throug leaves—or raking them—are faced with splendid prospects: a sunny, cool weekend.

City Cadets 'Most Proficient'

Victoria's Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps has been judged the most proficient among Canadian corps with more than 100 members.

National headquarters of the Navy League of Canada announced Thursday that the local corps had won the award for 1969. In second place was RCSCC Mountbatten of Sudbury, Ont.

The Victoria corps also placed second for attendance, trailing RCSCC Victory of Montreal.

The year-old Navy League Wrenette Corps Lady Exeter of Guelph, Ont., was judged the most efficient wrenette corps. In second place was NLWC Jenny Wren of Calgary.

Top place for Navy League Cadet Corps was won by NLCC Chambly of Barrie, Ont. The second most proficient corps was NLCC 70 of Louisbourg, N.S.

Low Rent Scale Set; $143 Tops

Top rent for families moving into the Rose-Blanshard urban renewal housing has been pegged at $143.70 a month.

The B.C. Housing Management Commission, which recently opened a Victoria office at 822 Cormorant, is now accepting applications from low-income families for the 184-unit project.

The first 58 units are expected to be ready for occupancy in February.

Commission regional mager E. S. Roberts explained today how the rent scale operates.

Only families with a gross income of $479 a month or less are eligible for rental accommodations.

Rents are on a sliding scale with a top rent of 30 per cent of gross income. As the family income decreases the percentage decreases on a graduated scale, to 25 per cent of income.

Exceptions to the income limit are made in cases where people whose accommodations were torn down to make way for the project, wish to move back into the renewal scheme.

About 30 of the 127 families who lived on the site have applied.

While little publicity has been given to the opening of the commission office, Roberts said the flow of applications has been steady.

No Room for Single Persons

Thus far however applications from Victoria's huge elderly population far outweigh applications from those for whom the project has been designed.

Roberts explained that there are no accommodations for single people in the development.

"We have discovered a great demand for single accommodations, especially from women living on pensions," said Roberts.

"But this project is designed for families and there are no bachelor quarters."

The development consists of 25 four-bedroom and 90 three-bedroom units in row houses and 69 one and two-bedroom units in apartment blocks.

While there are more than enough applications for the one and two-bedroom units applications for the larger units have been slower in arriving, said Roberts.

City urban renewal co-ordinator William Hooson was not surprised at the flood of applications from the elderly.

"Don't forget we have the highest percentage of population over 65 years of age in Canada," he said. "There has always been a great need for housing for the elderly in Victoria."

STUDENT HIT BY CAR

A nine-year-old girl was admitted to Resthaven Hospital today suffering from head injuries received in an accident on West Saanich Road in front of the Brentwood Tsartlip Indian school.

Injured is Laureen Daniel of Cole Bay.

Police said the girl was driven to school by Dorothy Henry of Cole Bay.

She got out of the car, stopped to let a southbound car pass, but apparently did not see a northbound car driven by Andrea Sampson of Tsartlip. She ran in front of the vehicle, police said.

Jury Pondering Negligence Case

A verdict was expected in Assize Court this afternoon in the trial of Warren Green, 19-year-old Esquimalt sailor, charged with criminally negligent driving causing the death of Verda Lynne Fawns.

Miss Fawns died in a two-car collision on the Old Island Highway, near Price Road, soon after midnight on March 3.

In his address to the jury of one woman and 11 men, defence counsel Dermod Owen-Flood said Green could be convicted on the lesser charge of dangerous driving.

The jury retired to consider its verdict at 11:20 this morning.

Green was also charged with driving a motor car while impaired by alcohol or a drug. Crown counsel E. George MacMinn said a blood test taken about an hour after the accident showed Green had an alcohol content of .17.

Arthur Mayse . . .

LIKE MANY ANOTHER Canadian, I hoped that the unwarranted meddling by France in our domestic affairs would end when the Frenchman who turned the Cross of Lorraine into a double cross retired from office. But the latest affront to Ottawa by Paris makes it plain that De Galle's hatred for Canada, as distinct from Quebec, was contagious.

★

Prime Minister Trudeau, who before his election stated flatly that he would tolerate no interference from that source, has answered this latest insult to Canada by terming it an impertinence, and a disservice to Canadian unity. There's a suggestion, too, that if the French government persists in its tactics, Ottawa may have to "change or denounce" the pact under which cultural, scientific and educational exchanges are made.

But why should it be necessary to wait for a reply—which may not be forthcoming in any case—to a trespass so glaringly obvious?

The French interpretation of the pact has been made abundantly plain.

Whatever the lesser French purposes may be, the main intent is to use those 'cultural exchanges' as an umbrella under which agents provocateurs may operate in Quebec.

I think that a Canadian government which represents 10 provinces should go rather farther in its attempt to convince a trouble-making foreign power that it has no stake in Canada.

★

Meanwhile, the individual Canadian who resents French mischief-making in his country may choose to give point to his sense of outrage by refusing to buy any commodity or article that carries a 'Made in France' label.

THE DAILY TELEGRAPH, an English newspaper of Conservative cast, saw the Moratorium Day demonstrations as "America's yellow belly," and feared the spectacle of a great nation "in a delirium of treason and shame."

Those are harsh words and they show complete failure to understand the nature of the sombre occasion that sparked them.

Those who turned out in their hordes to protest their government's failure to make a full retreat from Vietnam were, in their own way, bringing a flag-draped American concept to trial.

"Our country! In her intercourse with foreign nations, may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."

Stephen Decatur, an American hero, delivered that toast in the youth of a land now sorely troubled.

Perhaps the time is past for such patriot calls to blind obedience.

It would be foolish to claim that all who took part in the demonstrations were moved by honest concern for their country's welfare. But I think it safe to assume that the great majority were impelled by this motive. They felt that the United States was in the wrong, and they shared a grim determination to put her in the right.

How effective their mass protest proved, we may be some time learning. The war goes on, and those who stood out against further American participation in it are accused by the hawk-minded of giving aid and comfort to the enemy.

★

It may be, however, that they were braver than those American leaders who still hang back from an unpalatable truth.

If the United States persists in an entanglement that ever more of her people detest, she risks a major uprising at home, or even outright revolution.

It's a devil's choice—to drag on in Vietnam or to leave that country to work out its own destiny—but there's only one ultimate answer.

For what comfort it's worth against those who will see a remove from Vietnam as the end of American prestige, England once faced a hard choice of her own. Should she break off her war against American colonies who had defeated an expeditionary force, or should she send other armies to prolong an unpopular struggle?

The choice she made is history, and I hope it will be repeated.

LAST AUGUST, A VANcouver naturopath by the name of Joe Boucher returned with his brother, Tony, to a Vancouver Island West Coast he had travelled for B.C. Packers in the '30s.

Boucher sailed the coastal stretch known as 'The Graveyard of the Pacific' in those years. He made his 1968 journey on his own two feet, in a photographer's trek from Nootka to San Juan.

★

The resulting film will be shown at the McPherson Playhouse at 8 p.m. Oct. 23, 24 and 25, and I mean to see it.

Incidentally, much of what Boucher learned about the wild coast came from shipmates who were former rumrunners. No men knew it better.

The service clubs are sponsoring a free public speaking course for 12 boys beginning Nov. 4 with Rev. Frederick W. Hayes of St. Alban's Anglican church instructing.

The district winner on completion of the course in May will go to the Pacific Northwest convention in Boise and if successful on to an international convention in September to try for the scholarship.

Classes will meet every Tuesday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at Oaklands school.

Queen's Own to Drum Up Appeal's Levy on 'D' Day

Drums and bugles of the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, will herald D (for Depart) Day for Earl Levy on Saturday.

At 11:30 a.m. in the Mayfair Shopping Centre, 30 musicians will play him farewell as firemen hoist him up a ladder to the clock tower.

Once inside the trap door Levy will remain in his sky-borne retreat until the United Red Feather-Red Cross target of $694,000 has been reached.

To make everything legal, a "judge" will pronounce sentence before the ascent.

Before being banished, Levy will be driven around town in the Junior Chamber of Commerce's "fire-truck" in a nosy farewell to ground-bound life.

City Cadets 'Most Proficient'

Victoria's Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps has been judged the most proficient among Canadian corps with more than 100 members.

National headquarters of the Navy League of Canada announced Thursday that the local corps had won the award for 1969. In second place was RCSCC Mountbatten of Sudbury, Ont.

The Victoria corps also placed second for attendance, trailing RCSCC Victory of Montreal.

The year-old Navy League Wrenette Corps Lady Exeter of Guelph, Ont., was judged the most efficient wrenette corps. In second place was NLWC Jenny Wren of Calgary.

Top place for Navy League Cadet Corps was won by NLCC Chambly of Barrie, Ont. The second most proficient corps was NLCC 70 of Louisbourg, N.S.

LIKE MANY ANOTHER Canadian, I hoped that the unwarranted meddling by France in our domestic affairs would end when the Frenchman who turned the Cross of Lorraine into a double cross retired from office. But the latest affront to Ottawa by Paris makes it plain that De Galle's hatred for Canada, as distinct from Quebec, was contagious.

★

Prime Minister Trudeau, who before his election stated flatly that he would tolerate no interference from that source, has answered this latest insult to Canada by terming it an impertinence, and a disservice to Canadian unity. There's a suggestion, too, that if the French government persists in its tactics, Ottawa may have to "change or denounce" the pact under which cultural, scientific and educational exchanges are made.

But why should it be necessary to wait for a reply—which may not be forthcoming in any case—to a trespass so glaringly obvious?

The French interpretation of the pact has been made abundantly plain.

Whatever the lesser French purposes may be, the main intent is to use those 'cultural exchanges' as an umbrella under which agents provocateurs may operate in Quebec.

I think that a Canadian government which represents 10 provinces should go rather farther in its attempt to convince a trouble-making foreign power that it has no stake in Canada.

★

Meanwhile, the individual Canadian who resents French mischief-making in his country may choose to give point to his sense of outrage by refusing to buy any commodity or article that carries a 'Made in France' label.

THE DAILY TELEGRAPH, an English newspaper of Conservative cast, saw the Moratorium Day demonstrations as "America's yellow belly," and feared the spectacle of a great nation "in a delirium of treason and shame."

Those are harsh words and they show complete failure to understand the nature of the sombre occasion that sparked them.

Those who turned out in their hordes to protest their government's failure to make a full retreat from Vietnam were, in their own way, bringing a flag-draped American concept to trial.

"Our country! In her intercourse with foreign nations, may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."

Stephen Decatur, an American hero, delivered that toast in the youth of a land now sorely troubled.

Perhaps the time is past for such patriot calls to blind obedience.

It would be foolish to claim that all who took part in the demonstrations were moved by honest concern for their country's welfare. But I think it safe to assume that the great majority were impelled by this motive. They felt that the United States was in the wrong, and they shared a grim determination to put her in the right.

How effective their mass protest proved, we may be some time learning. The war goes on, and those who stood out against further American participation in it are accused by the hawk-minded of giving aid and comfort to the enemy.

★

It may be, however, that they were braver than those American leaders who still hang back from an unpalatable truth.

If the United States persists in an entanglement that ever more of her people detest, she risks a major uprising at home, or even outright revolution.

It's a devil's choice—to drag on in Vietnam or to leave that country to work out its own destiny—but there's only one ultimate answer.

For what comfort it's worth against those who will see a remove from Vietnam as the end of American prestige, England once faced a hard choice of her own. Should she break off her war against American colonies who had defeated an expeditionary force, or should she send other armies to prolong an unpopular struggle?

The choice she made is history, and I hope it will be repeated.

LAST AUGUST, A VANcouver naturopath by the name of Joe Boucher returned with his brother, Tony, to a Vancouver Island West Coast he had travelled for B.C. Packers in the '30s.

Boucher sailed the coastal stretch known as 'The Graveyard of the Pacific' in those years. He made his 1968 journey on his own two feet, in a photographer's trek from Nootka to San Juan.

★

The resulting film will be shown at the McPherson Playhouse at 8 p.m. Oct. 23, 24 and 25, and I mean to see it.

Incidentally, much of what Boucher learned about the wild coast came from shipmates who were former rum-runners. No men knew it better.
